EGYPT'S INDEPENDENCE TO BE RECOGNIZED BY GREAT BRITAIN, THE LONDON TIMES SAYS; IRISH DISORDERS GROW, 7 POLICEMEN SLAIN

NEW PLAN TO FREE EGYPT

Milner's Mission and Native Delegates Said to Have Made Agreement

GARRISON STAYS AT SUEZ

EGYPT TO NAME ENVOYS

And Control Foreign Relations, but Must Not Make Anti-British Treaties.

LONDON, Monday, Aug. 23.—The London Times says this morning it understands that Great Britain has agreed to recognize the independence of Egypt.

The decision, according to the London Times, resulted from recent conversations here between the Viscount Milner mission, which recently visited Egypt, and an Egyptian delegation headed by Said Zagloul Pasha, former Minister of Justice.

Among the fundamental points of the agreement are:

"Egypt will recognize Great Britain's privileged position in the valley of the Nile and agree, in case of war, to afford every facility for access to Egyptian territory. Great Britain will maintain a garrison in Egypt in the Canal zone. Egypt regains control of foreign relations, subject to her not making treaties contrary to British policy, and will have the right to maintain diplomatic representatives abroad. Capitulations will be abolished."

Washington Without Confirmation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—Neither the State Department nor the British Embassy has received any confirmation of the report which reached Washington last night, based on an announcement by the London Times, that England had agreed to recognize the independence of Egypt. So far as could be obtained from responsible authorities, neither the Department nor the Embassy had any inkling that the British Government contemplated granting full independence at this time to the Egyptian people.

The disposition among officials and diplomats was to await authoritative official dispatches and ascertain, before commenting, what action had been determined upon by the British Government regarding Egypt. Any action on this question, however, will be eagerly studied as having a direct bearing on an important international question.

The three most important imperial problems that have been confronting England in the last year have been Ireland, India and Egypt.

There has been considerable interest in the Egyptian problem in the Senate, where the Foreign Relations Committee, last year, heard the "case of Egypt" presented by former Governor Joseph W. Folk of Missouri, who appeared before that committee as counsel for the Egyptian Commission appointed by the legislative assembly of Egypt.

Article 147 of Section 6 of the Treaty of Versailles as submitted to the Senate stipulated that "Germany declares that she recognizes the protectorate proclaimed over Egypt by Great Britain on Dec. 18, 1914, and that she renounces the régime of the capitulations in Egypt," the renunciation to take effect from Aug. 4, 1914. Senator Owen of Oklahoma, offered in the Senate an interpretative reservation to define what the United States understands by the word "protectorate" in connection with Egypt, but the Owen reservation was not adopted. The Owen reservation provided that the United States understood the protectorate to have been merely a war measure to preserve the integrity and independence of Egypt during the war.

Milner Mission at Work.

The British more than six months ago sent a special mission to Egypt headed by Lord Milner to confer with Nationalist and other leaders and to go into the question of the future character of government in Egypt. The Milner mission met the Nationalists, and it was stated here tonight that some sort of tentative agreement was arrived at by them, but that it was not understood that the Milner mission had submitted its final report.

Diplomats having some familiarity with the subject were inclined to construe The London Times announcement as meaning that England had decided to grant some form of dominion home

Germany's Entry Into the League Expected; Lloyd George Sees Giolitti, Will Meet Simons

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LUCERNE, Aug. 22.—The moment David Lloyd George crossed the frontier the Philistines were upon him in the shape of Swiss journalists, who insisted on interviewing him, but he pelted them with so many questions about the Alps and glaciers that they complained that Lloyd George was fonder of asking than answering questions.

At the villa belonging to the King of the Belgians, where Lloyd George is staying, four miles from Lucerne, a constant succession of couriers is arriving and departing, and the Prime Minister's secretaries are continually busy. The Italian Prime Minister Giolitti is to confer with the British Prime Minister, while Von Simons, the German Foreign Minister, who came here ostensibly for rest and to see relatives, is also expected to meet Lloyd George.

It is considered here that Germany's joining the League of Nations is a certainty and that she will send delegates on Nov. 15 to attend the first assembly at Geneva convened by President Wilson.

BERNE, Aug. 22.—A declaration was issued at Berne today that Premiers Lloyd George and Giolitti will discuss at their conference all pending questions, but that the Premiers will merely become acquainted with each other's point of view, without the expectation of arriving at definite decisions.

The Italian Premier will leave here on Wednesday for his return to Rome. He crossed the lake in a motor boat to Mr. Lloyd George's residence today, and the conference between the two statesmen began at 10 o'clock in the morning.

No decision of international importance will be taken at the meeting. Only an informal exchange of views is planned.

MURDERS AND RIOTS INCREASE IN IRELAND

RIOTS AND PILLAGE ENSUE

BELFAST, Aug. 22.—Official telegrams received today indicate that there have been organized onslaughts against the Irish Constabulary and that thus far during the week-end seven have been killed.

Police Inspector Swanzy, accused by a coroner's jury of murdering Lord Mayor MacCurtain of Cork, in March last, was assassinated as he left church at Lisburn today.

A patrol Sergeant and three men at Dundalk were suddenly confronted by six armed men, who fired. Constable Brennan fell dead and Constables Isbell and Witherden, recruited from the English army, were badly wounded.

Sergeant Maunsell was shot dead last night at Macroom, County Cork.

A police patrol was ambushed near Naas, County Kildare, Saturday night, when one constable was killed and a Sergeant seriously wounded. Two constables are missing.

Constable O'Hanlon was shot dead at Kilrush.

While Police Sergeant Thomas Craddock was walking late on Saturday night through King Street, Athlone, with a constable, a dozen shots were fired at him. Several of them took effect and Craddock died fifteen minutes later at a hospital.

Inspector Slain Amid Crowd.

The killing of Inspector Swanzy was among the most daring of a long series. The congregations were leaving all the Protestant churches at the time and converging on the scene of the shooting. The officer had been with his mother and sister in attendance upon the services at Christ Church, and had reached the corner of Railway Street, where he resided.

Here three men, armed with rifles, confronted Swanzy and fired on him in the presence of his horrified family. Swanzy fell, but to make doubly sure the assassins discharged their weapons again into his body.

Turning, the assassins ran along Castle Street. The congregation was just emerging from Lisburn Cathedral. Captain Woods, commandant of the Lisburn branch of the Ulster Volunteers, made a dash for the assassins, although only armed with a stick. The assassins fired on Woods, a bullet shattering the stick in his hand. He was not injured.

The murderers then fired at other persons who had joined in the pursuit, but without effect, and jumped into a waiting taxicab and drove off toward Belfast.

All the roads converging on the city were promptly patroled by police and military, but the assassins escaped.

The verdict at the MacCurtain inquest found Premier Lloyd George, Viscount French, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and others, including Swanzy, guilty of murder. Applause followed the mention of Swanzy's name, and it was deemed advisable to transfer him to Lisburn, an overwhelmingly Unionist centre.

In some quarters here the belief is expressed that the shooting of Swanzy was an attempt to intimidate the Government in connection with the incarceration of Lord Mayor MacSweney of Cork,

KOLEHMAINEN WINS MARATHON RACE

Endurance Test of Olympics Is Run in the Record Time of 2:32:35 4-5.

U. S. ATHLETE IS SEVENTH

By P. J. PHILIP.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ANTWERP, Aug. 22.—The sixth modern Olympic marathon was won here today by the famous Finnish runner, Hannes Kolehmainen. He was followed at sixty yards into the Stadium by the Esthonion, Loosman. The first American was Joe Organ, in seventh place, and behind him two other Americans finished—Carl Linder in eleventh place and Charles Mellor in twelfth.

It was in every sense a great race and the time of 2 hours, 32 minutes, 35 4-5 seconds was more than four minutes faster than the old record of 2 hours, 36 minutes, 54 seconds made by K. McArthur, South Africa, at Stockholm in 1912. The third man to finish behind Kolehmainen and Loosman was the Italian, Arri; the fourth, the Belgian, Broos, and the fifth, another Finlander, whose name is given as Dumofsky.

When the winner appeared in the stadium he was greeted with tremendous enthusiasm, for the Finns have made themselves popular as sportsmen during the last week. The course was finished three-quarters of the way around the stadium, and before the Finn was sixty yards from the gate the Esthonian, Loosman, the second man, appeared. He seemed even fresher than the winner, but contented himself with running around at the same even pace at which he had covered the classic course of 26 miles 385 yards. The time made by the winner was 2:32:35 4-5. The Esthonian was only thirteen seconds behind him. The third man, the famous Italian long-distance runner, Arri, arrived a minute afterward, and to show his freshness indulged in three cartwheel turns the moment he got past the post. Of all the Belgian, Broos, naturally had the greatest ovation, and he well deserved it.

The three Americans ran well up to form the whole way, and their performance more than pleased their trainers. Organ, especially, has improved under coaching on this side, and has learned a better pace. The Americans were matched against an exceptionally strong set of Marathon runners, almost every country contributing a native champion. The Chilean, Jorquera, ran well up to the thirtieth kilometer and then dropped out of the race.

Besides those mentioned, the countries which had representatives in the finish were Sweden, Denmark, Canada, Japan, England, France and Greece.

Run in Heavy Rain.

The race was run most of the time in a pouring rain. There were forty-five starters, seventeen countries being represented. One lap and a half of the Stadium course was covered, and then the runners passed out at the great gate, led by the Belgian, Broos. The four American competitors, Arthur Roth, Carl Linder, Joe Organ and Charles Mellor, were running together at a steady pace.

The most remarkable man in the whole field was undoubtedly the great South African, Gitsham. He stands well over six feet, and had a long, steady stride that seemed well calculated to eat up ground.

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 22.—Eight persons were killed and seven injured, several seriously, tonight when a Pennsylvania Railroad electric train hit a heavily loaded bus at Fairview, near here, in the third fatal accident at the spot within a few months.

Late tonight only one of the dead had been identified, Percy Gunn, 30 years old, a salesman of Fairview. James Dalton, 26, of Brooklyn, was one of the injured. He suffered a broken leg and lacerations on the head. The dead were four men, a girl, seemingly about 18 years of age, a woman about 45 years old and two babies, the latter flung far into a field near the scene of the collision.

The crash took place at the Morgan Street crossing of the Pennsylvania at Fairview, a suburban colony on the outskirts of this city. Fairview, formerly known as Yorkshire Heights, is the home of many well-to-do Philadelphians.

According to witnesses, two buses filled with persons apparently returning to Camden after a holiday in the country, came down the approach to the crossing just at dusk. According to these witnesses, the gates at the crossover had been out of use for several days and a watchman had been placed on duty to safeguard traffic.

Evidently, the witnesses declared, the watchman after looking up and down the tracks thought the buses would have a clear field, for he waved the first of the vehicles on. The bus shot safely over the tracks and, increasing its speed, sped off toward this city.

The second vehicle, filled to capacity with passengers, began the crossover. About halfway over the tracks an electric train, bringing four coaches of passengers into Camden from Branch Borough, N. J., came speeding down the rails. Before the operator of the bus could accelerate his motor and make the rest of the passage safely, and before the motorman of the train could shut off his power and put on his emergency air-brakes, the electric train caught the bus squarely.

The light vehicle lodged on the front of the train as though it were without weight or substance. The bus and its passengers were, in the words of one man, "scattered over the landscape." The train, an express, ground down to a halt and passengers piled off and ran back to investigate. When they found the extent of the accident, many of them tore off their coats and began to apply first aid to the victims.

Calls were sent in for physicians and ambulances and the more severely hurt were rushed to the institutions for treatment.

REPUBLICANS FEAR LOSS OF THE SENATE

33 TO BE CHOSEN IN FALL

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—Republican politicians are beginning to admit that their party is in danger of losing control of the United States Senate in the November elections. They concede that the party will have to make strenuous efforts in order to retain its majority of two.

A survey of the Senatorial campaign indicates that the Republican danger exists, irrespective of whether the party elects its candidate for President. In the contests there are many complex angles that put them apart from the Presidential battle. Local conditions that will hurt or help this or that candidate for the Senate do not apply to the candidacies of Governor Cox and Senator Harding.

It is an open secret that Republican leaders are worried. Many of them openly say that some of the Senatorial candidates whose success is essential to continued Republican control of the Senate will have an uphill fight.

According to reports reaching politicians here, the Presidential campaign has not aroused a great deal of interest in most States. The contrary is true of a considerable number of the Senatorial campaigns. Primary contests are being waged with vigor, and there is a promise of equally spirited conflicts when the Senatorial candidates of the two major parties begin the fight.

Thirty-three Senators to be Elected.

Thirty-two States will elect thirty-three Senators this year to fill terms that will expire on March 4, 1921, the day the new President will be inaugurated. Eighteen of the seats to be filled are held by Democrats and fifteen by Republicans, but most of the Republican seats are from States where the result of the Senatorial contests is doubtful, while the Democrats are assured of electing Democrats to succeed members of that party in eight at least of the prospective vacancies.

The States where Democrats are regarded as certain to be chosen to succeed the present Democratic Senators are Florida, Louisiana, Arkansas, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama (two). The Democrats are reasonably sure of carrying some other States in the Senatorial contests, but uncertain elements have been injected into the situation in these and the Republicans intend to do their utmost to make gains in them.

Republicans have no assurance of victories in as many States now represented by Republican Senators whose terms will expire in March as have the Democrats. There will be several changes, however, in the Democratic personnel of the Senate, due to the fact that sitting Senators of that party have declined to be candidates for re-election or have been defeated in the primaries.

It is pointed to as significant that several Democratic Senators who have been conspicuous in their opposition to President Wilson have failed of renomination. Among these are Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma, the blind Senator, who was defeated in the Democratic primaries by Representative Scott Ferris, and William E. Kirby of Arkansas, who went down before Representative Thomas H. Caraway. Judge Priest, candidate of Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, the most bitter Democratic critic of the President in the Senate, was defeated for the nomination in Missouri by Breckinridge Long, a strong Administration supporter, the League of Nations having been a leading issue in the Missouri primaries.

Will Force Fighting in New York.

Democrats intend to force the fighting against the return of Republican Senators from New York, New Hampshire and Connecticut. If Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., Republican, is renominated in the New York primaries, the Democratic committee in charge of Congressional campaigns will

GOV. COX PROMISES PROOF OF CHARGES

Declares Hays Does Not Really Deny Republicans Have $15,000,000 Fund.

SAYS HE WILL GIVE FACTS

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, Aug. 22.—Governor Cox promised tonight to give to Will A. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, proof of his charges that a fund of not less than $15,000,000 was being raised by the Republican Party, and that most of it was being contributed in one way or another by financial and industrial interests which were interested in gaining what he terms an "underhold on the Government."

Governor Cox made known his determination after reading in the newspapers the speech by Mr. Hays, in Augusta, Me., in which the Chairman made what Governor Cox considered an unsatisfactory and half-hearted denial of the charges. The Governor indicated that he was ready to "go the limit" in backing up the statements he made first at South Bend and later at Canton.

"I was much gratified that Mr. Hays made a response," said Governor Cox to-night. "As I read his statement, however, it was no denial. He says the preliminary estimate made by the Republican Party was $3,000,000. Now, I want Mr. Hays to tell us into how many subdivisions the country was split up by his party, what territory each subdivision covered, and the quota imposed on each subdivision, State and district.

"Mr. Hays has talked much about quotas, so now let's have them. The public is entitled to the information, and, as the sub-committee of the Senate investigating campaign expenditures is going to insist upon having it, why not have it now?"

Will Make Formal Reply Soon.

Governor Cox made it evident that he was prepared to have the matter out with Mr. Hays and the other Republican leaders who have gathered about Senator Harding. He will make a formal reply to Mr. Hays in an address soon, and will develop his charges.

While talking with the newspaper correspondents the Governor announced that he had just received a telegram from Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, who is a member of the Senate sub-committee investigating campaign contributions.

"It was a very pleasant telegram," said Governor Cox. "Senator Reed is now in Chicago. He says that the committee will begin sessions there tomorrow. Senator Reed also says that every bit of information they get is to be carefully and thoroughly investigated."

It is the intention of Governor Cox and other Democratic leaders to demand that full information be brought out concerning the activities of the Ways and Means Committee, headed by William Boyce Thompson, which was appointed by Chairman Hays to help finance Senator Harding's campaign.

Governor Cox would not discuss today the exact nature of the information which he personally has at hand to back up his charges that the expenditures in behalf of the election of Harding will be not less than $15,000,000, but apparently he is satisfied that his evidence will be sufficient.

Governor Cox referred to the story published by The New York World that prominent men had contributed liberally to the publication of a book entitled "Republicanism of 1920," written by William Barnes.

"This exposure," he said, "is not only significant as showing who made the contributions, but its chief significance is in showing the amount of money which is being collected outside of the Republican National Committee."

Governor Cox came to Trail's End, his Summer home near Dayton, today on his return from Canton. He spent several hours roving about his farm with Mrs. Cox, inspecting his live stock and gardens. Tonight he discussed the campaign informally with the newspaper correspondents.

Finds Young Men Interested.

RED ARMY IN CORRIDOR FLEEING TO ESCAPE; 35,000 PRISONERS TAKEN BY POLES SO FAR; CLASH OVER MUNITIONS AT DANZIG ACUTE

Red Terms Made More Drastic; To Be Rejected; Warsaw's Messages Withheld From Peace Envoys

WARSAW, Aug. 21.—The Foreign Office this evening issued the following communication with regard to the negotiations between the Poles and the Bolsheviki at Minsk:

"The Foreign Office received Saturday a cipher radio dispatch sent by way of Moscow. This was number two, and from it it appears that there has been sent a first telegram, which has not been received.

"From this telegram it seems that the Soviet delegation put certain formal difficulties in the way of the Polish delegates in the matter of the mutual investigation of credentials, but finally began negotiations, the terms presented by the Soviet only becoming known to us from press dispatches.

"In several points they are more drastic than the conditions given the British Government by M. Kameneff (one of the Bolshevist representatives in London) and, of course, will not be accepted by the Polish Government.

"Current events on the front seem to have considerable influence on the attitude and conduct of the Soviet Commissaries and are making them more inclined to discuss matters. This is characteristic in the fact that the Polish delegation does not confirm the receipt of wireless dispatches which are sent daily to Minsk and also by way of Moscow. It would seem that, notwithstanding several clear agreements, telegraphic communication with our delegates is difficult."

LONDON, Aug. 22.—Leo Kameneff, head of the Soviet Russian Trade Mission here, has made public the following message from Moscow, dated Sunday:

"The Poles are still trying to prolong the negotiations. After the sitting of August 19 they demanded that the next sitting be held on the 23d. Danishevsky formally protested against the delay, but in vain. The Poles refused to convene before the 23d. They clearly do not want peace, but only to create a make-believe."

BOLSHEVIST DISASTER GROWS

BIG STORES OF BOOTY TAKEN

BUDENNY NEARING LEMBERG

Russian Cavalry Engaged in Encircling Movement Designed to Capture Galician City.

WARSAW, Aug. 22.—A War Office communication issued today reports Polish successes on all parts of the battle front, excepting on the extreme right, where General Budenny's detachments have crossed the Dniester River and the Red advance guards have reached the Stryi on the railroad south of Lemberg. Fighting is reported northeast and east of Lemberg. Budenny is using cavalry and infantry in an encircling movement against Lemberg. At several points the Reds have been repelled.

On the northwest front, according to the communication, the Reds who designed the capture of Thorn and the cutting off of Warsaw and Danzig, are in full retreat.

The Bolsheviki are reported to have suffered tremendous losses and to be endeavoring to escape along the Prussian border in the face of the Polish drive which is clearing Poland of Reds all through the northwest. More than 10,000 prisoners were captured on this front Friday.

Three More Towns Recovered.

Advances northeast of Warsaw are announced. The Poles have reached Ostrov, Czyzow and Bransk. At Mietezyrzec 400 Cossacks surrendered.

Military authorities here announced today that the Poles have captured 35,000 prisoners to date in their counter-attack against Bolsheviki. Many guns, thousands of rifles, hundreds of machine guns and munition carts and a great number of horses also have fallen into their hands. Thousands of Reds are thought to be cut off in the forests, awaiting an opportunity to surrender.

Among the three hundred Bolshevist soldiers killed in the fighting at Mlawa were found, it is claimed, a German officer and several German soldiers.

The Bolsheviki attempted to retake Brest-Litovsk, but were repulsed. In the region of Durienka, where the Poles pushed the Reds across the Bug, the communication says that on the Bolshevist side was a Jewish volunteer detachment from Vladowa. The Poles have captured Hrubieszow, which was taken after an hour's hand to hand fighting in the streets of the village. The Poles are still holding Hrubieszow, notwithstanding the efforts of the Bolsheviki to recapture it.

Intercepted messages show they have been sending out wireless appeals for ammunition and supplies.

The Bolshevist wireless apparently is not functioning properly, as headquarters repeatedly has requested information concerning the location of these troops, the rear of which is endangered by the Polish advances.

The vanguard of the Red Army had reached points about 100 kilometres south of Danzig, in what is known as "the corridor" and so near the Camp Grappe region around Graudenz that the French officers advised the American typhus expedition to move to Danzig. This the Americans did.

American Consulate Moves to Danzig.

The American Consulate, which moved from Warsaw to Graudenz when Warsaw was threatened, also has proceeded to Danzig on the advice of the French.

Warsaw on Friday witnessed a sight which gave the population more confidence than any incident since the Polish counter-offensive began. It was a procession of 3,000 prisoners who had been assembled at various parts of the front and marched to the rear across the Vistula River and into the city, headed by a Polish guard, led by a mounted sergeant.

Then came six Bolshevist cannon drawn by skinny horses in rope harness. The horses were the size of American Indian ponies. The Russians and their equipment all were taken early today in a haul northwest of Warsaw. Sitting on an ammunition cart was a Soviet nurse in uniform and wearing a headpiece which once had been white, but today had the color of khaki.

The procession from the bridge wound its way into Warsaw's principal streets, where traffic was blocked for half an hour. Great crowds of spectators lined the thoroughfares and seemingly thoroughly enjoyed the sight.

The prisoners were indifferent. Some were mirthful. Others gazed curiously upon the crowds and the sights of their new surroundings. The nurse sat erect and stolid, staring straight at the back of the head of the driver of the cart.

In addition to the many Polish soldiers who were acting as guards, peasants were called out to assist the troops in

PARIS MAY LEAD POLICY OF ALLIES

GERMANY WILL FEEL EFFECT

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—Feeling in Paris is that the Polish victory over the Bolsheviki will have far-reaching importance in determining the future policy of the Entente in dealing with the European situation. The Paris newspapers have been pointing out that no real break between England and France was possible and that recent events were simply the trying out of the respective leadership of Lloyd George and Millerand. These papers have contended that the entente between England and France was strong enough to stand this test.

There can be no doubt that events in Poland, coupled with America's emphatic enunciation of the doctrine of no composition with Bolshevism, have greatly strengthened the French idea of a policy "with teeth" in dealing with the whole European situation. France firmly believed strong, red-blooded measures would curb Russian Bolshevism and compel Germany to carry out the Treaty of Versailles. In this policy the French Government has been supported by sentiment of the French people.

Lloyd George Handicapped.

In that respect Millerand has enjoyed marked advantage as compared with Lloyd George, who has been obliged to proceed at all stages with due regard to divided opinion in England. These divisions arise not only from difference in temperament but also from difference in interest, the paramount question in France being always that of indemnity and security and in England the sea power of the empire and trade, particularly with Germany and Russia.

France has been saying in effect to her allies: "Let us make the greatest possible use of the respective elements of strength in the Entente countries. We touch Germany along hundreds of miles of frontier. We understand the German character and psychology. With our resources of military organization and public opinion, our knowledge of the Germans and our imperative need of enforcing the treaty we can straighten out the German situation if we can only command the moral and material support of England and understanding and sympathy from America." The French have believed all the time that the German situation and the Russian situation were one and the same and had to be handled together and with a firm hand.

Success in Poland gives France new authority for her leadership in these supreme Continental questions. If this success is fully confirmed it seems likely Lloyd George will be willing to hand the reins to Millerand. It is believed recent events will make it much easier for him to stand aside and give French policy a chance to demonstrate its efficiency, because these events will undoubtedly have great influence on English public opinion, which heretofore has been tending toward milder methods.

Poland's Success Due to Weygand.

TOWER ASKS 20,000 TROOPS FOR DANZIG

RESENTS HIS INTERFERENCE

Four British Warships Now in Harbor and American Cruiser and Destroyer Are Expected.

PARIS, Aug. 22 (Associated Press).—Sir Reginald T. Tower, High Commissioner for the League of Nations at Danzig, has requested the allied nations to supply him with 20,000 troops before he will feel justified in permitting the unloading of munitions intended for Poland, now being held up at Danzig, according to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

It is the belief of the French Government that an additional 5,000 troops will be the maximum required by Sir Reginald, as there already are 2,000 there and the extremists among the population are not numerous.

The Foreign Office today announced the arrival of the gunboat Accra at Danzig, where she will arrange for the unloading of munitions being taken there by the French cruiser Gueydon.

The French Government considers that Sir Reginald is acting entirely contrary to the spirit and letter of the Treaty of Versailles, which, it is declared, specifically gives to Poland free use of the port of Danzig. The Government takes the attitude that the action of the Danzig Council in voting in favor of neutrality is without effect, as the Council has no such powers.

Say Tower Is Partial to Germans.

PARIS, Aug. 22.—The constituent Assembly of the Free City of Danzig has just passed a motion, by a vote of 62 to 21, calling on the allied High Commissioner, Sir Reginald Tower, to proclaim the neutrality of Danzig, which would mean the stoppage of Polish munitions. The situation is causing no little anxiety here, as the French suspect Tower of overgreat partiality toward the Germans and declare that the impudent behavior of the Germans in East Prussia is due in no small degree to his attitude.

The reason he gave a week ago for forbidding a vessel with munitions for Poles to land its cargo, that he could not assure protection of disembarkation against the Germans, can hardly be valid now, as there are four British war vessels in the harbor, which have just been joined by the French cruiser Gueydon with a destroyer, and the American cruiser Pittsburgh with a destroyer is, says the Journal des Débats tonight, expected to arrive at any moment.

The French point out that as the allied representative Tower has no right to let personal or English sentiment interfere with his duty, which is to maintain to Poland free transit through Danzig, as enjoined by the Treaty of Versailles. As several cargo ships with munitions are on the way there, the question is acute and needs speedy solution.

caring for the Bolsheviki. Some of these peasants carried scythes and others huge clubs made from the limbs of oak trees cut along the road. There were nearly as many peasant guards as soldiers. Only a few of the peasants, however, had rifles, owing to the shortage of arms, even for the troops at the front.

Reserves Reach Reds at Lomza.

PARIS, Aug. 22.—Interest in the Polish battle has shifted from the centre to the left where the Bolsheviki are making a desperate effort to save their right wing so adventurously pushed forward toward Thorn.

Red troops have concentrated in the region of Lomza, where they have been reinforced by two reserve divisions rushed up from Grodno. At this point General Sikorski is attacking from the south but making slow progress in the marshy country against stiff resistance. Lomza is the key to the battle, for if Sikorski can drive forward there the whole Bolshevist right will be forced to surrender or retire into German territory where small bands of Reds already have been interned by German troops under the vigilant eye of the allied commissioners.

On the extreme left of the battlefield the new Posnanian army is attacking frontally and making steady progress. Between them and Sikorski is the army under the French General Billotte attacking northward toward Soldau. Thus the success of Pilsudski's manoeuvre in cutting off the Red right wing from the rest of their forces has produced a separate battle in the north with the odds heavily in Polish favor.

There is no news tonight from Pilsudski's forces, which is explained by the terrific physical effort that has been imposed on them during the last week. It is probable that after a rest of a day or two they will resume their march with the objective of outflanking the Bolshevist forces at Lomza, where their intervention may be decisive.

Meanwhile Budenny's horsemen are attempting a diversion toward Lemberg, but the Poles claim they have no anxiety concerning this area where French airmen are doing magnificent service not only as scouts but by attacking the Reds with machine guns.

It is thought that the number of Reds captured, estimated at upward of 30,000, may well be fully one-third of the whole army on the Polish front, as the Bolshevist numbers have certainly been overestimated. French correspondents in Poland speak of Red divisions as totaling only 3,000 men, or even less, and regiments as being under the strength of a battalion, which shows how easily exaggerated estimates can be formed.

Talk of Invading Russia Again.

WARSAW, Aug. 18.—In the main streets of Warsaw streams of refugees now have been replaced by streams of Bolshevist prisoners, one column of about 1,000 passing through about midday. They are mostly fine, well-set-up fellows in good physical condition, although their equipment usually beggars description, especially their footwear.

The effect of this remarkably sudden transformation from the almost despair of last Saturday to inability to keep count of victories is like rather strong wine and people are talking excitedly as to the vast possibilities, one paper this morning indeed talking once more about Moscow and the route thither. There is indeed no apparent reason now why Poland should not be able to clear her frontiers and advance much further if she wishes.

I have been unable to glean any information as to Poland's intentions in this respect, but many persons here have been steadied by the events of the last weeks and would look with extreme disfavor on any attempt to allow the present intoxicating victories to postpone settlement of peace at Minsk because the prospect of invading Russia again is opened up.

TELLS HOW WRANGEL ROSE IN GREAT WAR

PARIS, Aug. 22.—How General Wrangel first distinguished himself is told in tonight's Liberté. In the first weeks of the war horsemen of the Russian Imperial Guard, in which Wrangel was a non-commissioned officer, charged a German battery which was protected by concealed machine guns. It was a replica of the fatal trap into which fell the Household Cavalry of England on that sunny August day which plunged two-thirds of Britain's aristocracy into mourning.

The Russians were thrown into confusion by a stream of bullets, and the order to retreat was sounded, but Wrangel, rallying a handful of troopers in the medley of dying men and plunging horses, charged right at the German guns. He actually reached the battery and sabred the gunners. His comrades recovered from their disorder and the German machine guns were also captured. Wrangel was promoted captain on the spot.

He was born at Petrograd in 1879, a son of Baron Nicolai Igoritch Wrangel, who, after having lost his fortune, had obtained a position as administrator of a Petrograd bank. He put his son through the Petrograd College of Engineers, on graduation from which he was engaged in mining operations in Siberia until the war.

By 1915 he was commander of a Cossack regiment. About that time he married the daughter of a rich Ukrainian landlord named Ivenko. When the revolution broke out he was commanding a Cossack division, with which he served brilliantly, first under Kaledin, then Alexiev, and then Denikin, where his advance toward Saratov was, according to allied officers, the one bright spot in that wretchedly conducted campaign. Already he had won the good will of the peasants in the territory he occupied, and his liberal measures were so little liked by some of his colleagues that he was for a time without a command in Constantinople, whence he returned in the darkest hour of Denikin's army to reorganize them with conspicuous success.

Not the least interesting thing is that he is not a Russian, but Balt of Swedish origin. Descendants of the Teutonic Knights of the Sword and the Cavaliers of Charles XII. of Sweden, the Balts have always been the dominant race in Russia. They have more "iron in their blood" than the temperamental, talented but lazy Slav, and if Red rule is to be overthrown by battle, Wrangel, by his character and past, is the man to do it.

Deny Trotzky Visited East Prussia.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—A wireless dispatch received from Berlin says the German authorities officially deny a recent story printed in The London Times that Leon Trotzky, the Bolshevist Minister of War, has been in East Prussia.

SWISS HOSTS TO CLERGY.

The Rev. Dr. Merrill Among Spokesmen for International Friendship.

BERNE, Aug. 22.—A conference of the World's Alliance for International Friendship is to be held from Aug. 25 to 28 at the health resort of Beatenberg.

The preliminaries will open Tuesday with an official reception, when Federal Counsellor Chuard, in the name of the Swiss Government, will bid welcome to the representatives of churches of twenty-two countries.

CITIES DECAYING UNDER RED RULE

LABOR CONSCRIPTED THERE

Moscow Has Lost 1,000,000 Population, and Remaining 500,000 Live in Atmosphere of Dread.

TENIJOKI, Finland, Russian Frontier, Aug. 20 (Associated Press).—A first hand view of Petrograd and Moscow, those two centres of Soviet rule which are hermetically sealed against outside observers, was obtained by the Associated Press correspondent just prior to his deportation to this point.

Moscow is a city teeming with activity, its streets, squares and bazaars crowded with people, and with little outward evidence of distress except the daily struggle of people seeking their allotted quota of food.

But Petrograd, once one of the busiest and gayest of capitals in the world, is a city of deserted streets, with only scattered groups of people in those centres which were formerly the scenes of greatest activity.

Traversing the entire length of the Nevski Prospect, formerly the grand boulevard running from the Neva River, one passes fewer than a hundred people. Along the banks of the Neva from the Winter Palace, where Nicholas was last seen alive, down to the Alexandrovsky Bridge, cordwood is piled high along the beautiful marble and stone balustrades and throughout the streets. It is being unloaded from barges by enforced labor. After the conscript labor finishes its day's work, groups of men and women gather through the night to carry away stray bits of wood remaining for their Winter supply of fuel. Women are among the workers on the barges, standing waist-deep in the water-logged craft and handling big cross-cut saws.

The food prices at Petrograd are generally about 15 per cent. higher than at Moscow, where, at the end of July, beets sold for 4,000 rubles a pound. (The American dollar is worth about two or three thousand depreciated rubles.) Pork then was selling for 5,000 rubles, sugar 4,000 rubles, salt 1,000 rubles, black bread 1,000 rubles, small white bread rolls 200 rubles each, potatoes 700 rubles, and eggs 300 rubles each.

An atmosphere of military rule permeates Moscow more than any of the other cities. The population is under a constant nervous strain and few are able to avoid arrest by the supreme counter-revolutionary committee. Persons disappear into prisons and no charges are preferred against them. If they are finally set free, they encounter the greatest difficulties in living. The popular saying in the city now is that Moscow's population is divided into three classes: Those who have been imprisoned, those in prison and those who will be.

At present Moscow is in a gala new red dress, entertaining delegates to the Third Internationale. Banners and posters appear profusely, containing propaganda of all sorts and in many languages, which is as little understood or valued by the people apparently as the new "proletariat" money printed in seven languages. A 5,000 ruble note of this issue buys only a pound of salt pork.

Moscow's pre-war population of a million and a half is now estimated at a half million.

Seize Steamer, Escape from Russia.

PEKING, Aug. 20.—Eight men, reported to be Russian officers of the Czarist régime, recently seized the Russian steamer Patroclus in Vladivostok harbor and forced the crew to steam to sea, according to a Vladivostok dispatch received here today. Members of the crew were landed on Ascold Island, off Vladivostok harbor. According to the Vladivostok dispatch the Russian officers had been hiding in the Japanese headquarters at Vladivostok.

PARIS MAY LEAD POLICY OF ALLIES

map in circumstances admittedly unfavorable. Weygand went to Warsaw at a moment of complete demoralization. With admirable tact he is giving the Polish leadership credit for all that has been accomplished, but it is a fact well known in Paris as in London that when Foch's Chief of Staff arrived in Warsaw conditions were desperate. I have it from a high Polish official that the City of Grodno was taken by twelve Bolshevist soldiers, and that the Polish forces who retired were in such confusion that 200 of them were drowned in trying to cross the Nieman. This was not an isolated instance, but indicated the extent to which Polish morale had suffered.

Throughout Foch's régime in the war Weygand was credited with a large share of the results achieved and his management in Poland makes him a great military figure. Nothing since the armistice has caused such deep satisfaction in Paris as the vindication of French competency in handling the tremendously big and dangerous situation in Poland. There is visible increase in confidence that the screws will be put on Germany to compel her to settle her war obligations and definitely submit to the conditions of her own creating.

In comment here a large share of credit is given to the Wilson-Colby note for making the military rout of Bolshevism possible. While it is too early to draw large optimistic conclusions the Eastern sky is much clearer. An American diplomat put the matter thus: "Our extreme fears of Bolshevism were caused chiefly by its show of military strength. Now that the Bolshevist army is being defeated by the hastily reorganized Poles, may we not conclude that previous estimates of its military strength were exaggerated and therefore that the whole Bolshevist structure is weaker than we believed?"

Sortie Breaks Adana Seige; Americans Out of Danger

PARIS, Aug. 22.—The French garrison at Adana, Asia Minor, which has been besieged for two months, made a sally on Friday and, according to the Foreign Office, has now virtually been relieved.

Eighteen American relief workers were with the garrison. The Foreign Office says that the garrison badly defeated the besiegers and that the situation no longer is critical.

ITALIAN SHIP SUNK BY BLACK SEA MINE

ROME, Aug. 22.—News has only just reached the public here of the loss of the Italian scout ship Racchia, which struck a mine in the Black Sea toward the end of July, sinking soon afterward. The Racchia was employed as a convoy to three ships repatriating nearly 14,000 Russian prisoners from Asinara in Sardinia.

When about twenty miles from Odessa, a terrific explosion occurred. Nine men were killed and many wounded. The Racchia floated for about forty minutes, permitting all the survivors and wounded to be transferred to the ships which were being convoyed, the commander being the last to leave the sinking ship.

The Bolsheviki were anxious to do honor to the Italians who died protecting the Russians, and organized a solemn funeral, at which was present the garrison of Odessa and a great crowd of citizens. Numerous Bolsheviki seized the opportunity to make lengthy speeches praising the revolution and Bolshevism.

The correspondent who described the scene asked the opinion of the Italian sailors present regarding Soviet Russia. They replied that in Italy Communist Russia was described to them as a "Proletariat Eden," but, instead, in Odessa they found both the soldiers and peasants eating "disgusting, uneatable black bread," that when the returned prisoners were disembarked at Odessa the Italian sailors were obliged to look on while the Bolsheviki tore off the clothes and shoes provided for the prisoners by the Italian Government. The sailors concluded by saying: "Worst of all, we discovered that the men commanding the Bolsheviki were jailbirds of the worst description."

NAGEL'S DEPORTATION REGARDED AS CERTAIN

State Department Ranks Him as an Undesirable—Latvia Expected to Recall Him.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—While State Department officials refrain from issuing any statement relative to the reasons for refusing admission to this country Alfred Nagel, who came to New York bearing credentials from the de facto Government of Latvia, it is learned that Nagel is regarded as an undesirable, and that he will probably be sent back to Latvia on one of the first vessels leaving New York for Riga.

Nagel was credited with having credentials as "Secretary of Legation," but there is no Latvian Legation in Washington and he could hardly have come in such a capacity, although it was understood that he was sent to this country by his country to serve it in some unofficial way. Before his departure for the United States, the Latvian Government was informally notified by the American High Commissioner at Riga that Nagel would not be allowed to enter the United States, as he was unfavorably known to the United States Government.

The Government has a file on Nagel and his activities. While the facts in this file are not being made public, it is felt that if admitted into this country he would engage in propagandist activities of a radical character.

Before Nagel left Latvia instructions were sent to the American Commissioner at Riga not to visé Nagel's passport. These instructions reached the Commissioner after Nagel had sailed. The United States has since asked Latvia to recall Nagel, and the Commissioner at Riga has been instructed to ask the Latvian Government, informally, to recall him. Information received in Washington is that Latvia will recall Nagel, and if the unofficial representative whom Latvia has been maintaining in New York City has not already received a telegram from his Government directing him to arrange for the immediate return of Nagel, such a telegram will soon be in the hands of that representative, as a result of which Nagel will be sent back.

EARTHQUAKES IN CHILE.

No Fatalities Reported When Violent Shocks Are Felt in South.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Aug. 21.—A series of violent earthquakes visited the southern region of Chile Friday, causing considerable alarm, but, so far as has been ascertained, little property damage.

The shocks were most intense in the provinces of Malleco and Cautin and lasted for about a minute. Twenty shocks are reported to have been felt on the sparsely populated island of Mocha, off the province of Malleco, between 11 A. M. and 4 P. M., Friday. The lighthouses on the island were severely damaged.

Fukien Anfu Troops Are Invading the Loyalist Province of Kwantung.

AMOY, China, Aug. 21.—Hostilities continue between the provinces of Fukien, supporting the militaristic Anfu group which recently lost power in China, and Kwantung, which is loyal to the new Peking Government.

Fukienese forces are reported to have advanced from Choan and captured Ungung. No details of the action, however, have been received. Another wing of their army is said to be advancing from Tai-puh-sien down the Han River with Chao-chuw-fu and Swatow as its objectives.

Wireless 'Phone Expected to Span Ocean Soon; Dancing In Italy to Music Played In London

NAPLES, Aug. 21.—When the next President of the United States is elected he may be greeted by the strains of "The Star Spangled Banner," transmitted by wireless telephony from the cabin of the yacht of William Marconi, the Italian inventor, in the Mediterranian Sea. This is believed to be possible by experts who have investigated the experiments conducted here by the inventor on his vessel, the Electra.

Marconi's guests recently danced on board the Electra to the music of an orchestra playing in London, so distinct was the transmission by wireless telephone. The inventor daily receives the latest news from London by this medium, giving in exchange Neapolitan songs by applying a phonograph to the telephone.

He is now perfecting a "direction finder," with which to locate ships at sea. By the use of this instrument, it is said, Marconi discovered and reported from London to the Italian Minister of the Navy that an Austrian submarine was threatening the Italian coast between Trieste and Pola.

The inventor today said he expected to proceed to the Adriatic Sea late this month to continue his experiments.

COMMUNISTS SEIZE COETHEN, GERMANY

BANKED ON WARSAW'S FALL

BY LEONARD SPRAY.

BERLIN, Aug. 22.—To describe Germany in these fevered days it is necessary to seek a metaphorical expression. Dwellers in a peatland county are familiar with strange fires, the origin of which may be unknown, which work insidious destruction. Flames leap up and are quenched, but often the conflagration creeps slowly along below the surface, only to reappear at some distant and unexpected point.

That is the most appropriate simile for Germany of the moment. In the east, west and centre there are conflagrations breaking out. They are mostly minor in themselves, and the majority have been damped down; but no sooner is what is apparently the last flame extinguished than another flares up elsewhere.

Take what is happening in industrial Westphalia in half a dozen places simultaneously. There are sudden assemblages of what the instigators of them call the proletariat. How far they are co-ordinated no one can judge, but they do coincide with the fact that in Berlin and Middle Germany—even in Munich—the railway workers so far as possible are hindering all transport of arms, munitions or supplies which might be destined for the support of the Government's military police.

Here and there, as at Düsseldorf, futile attempts are made by Communists to seize centres of municipal authority. Elsewhere they succeed for the moment, as in Velbert, in Rhenish Prussia, which was a Soviet republic—an experiment which ended in reconquest by the military police from Essen and the imprisonment of the temporary rulers.

So much for that. But now, only a few hours afterward, comes the news that the far distant factory town of Cothen, in Anhalt, between Halle and Leipsic, has set up a republic of its own. The Communists have declared it under Soviet rule, seized the administration and issued the following proclamation:

"Brothers and comrades in arms: the day of reckoning is here. The proletariat of the whole of Germany has awakened in order to break the chains its oppressors forged. The reactionaries are preparing a new blow so as to destroy us completely. We have anticipated them. Therefore, to deeds! Hurrah for the Soviet republic! Long live the world revolution!"

This call and the seizure of local authority are the work of 100 laborers who before proclaiming their republic arrested the Mayor and also the leader of the Majority Socialists, who of course are not recognized as belonging to the proletariat. Their evil counsel was listened to by a large proportion of the workers, including the railway men, so that for the moment the Soviet Republic of Cöthen is cut off from the rest of the world.

Incidentally, but very significantly, it is noticed that among the hundred innovators were several immigrants, and that all were armed with brand-new rifles. The sequel is of course inevitable. It is foreshadowed in the announcement made tonight that troops from Dessau and military police from Halle have been sent to Cöthen to overthrow the Communist conspiracy.

Dealing with the events in the Valley, the Ruhr Lokal Anzeiger declares that there is not the slightest doubt that German Communists had planned outbreaks in anticipation of the fall of Warsaw. They were reckoning, says the paper, on that event and on setting up a Soviet Government in Poland in order to break loose in Germany and enforce a coalition with the Russian Bolsheviki.

ROB AMERICAN CONSUL.

Russian Bandits Hold Up Official and Wife While on Walk.

TOKIO, Aug. 22.—Bandits held up and robbed the American Consul at Vladivostok, says a dispatch received today from that city by the Kokusi Agency. The Consul and his wife, accompanied by a British officer, were walking through the outskirts of Vladivostok when they were accosted by the six men who took their valuables and escaped.

On the same day Russian bandits, riding in two automobiles, entered the city. They fired upon the militia, who attempted, without success, to capture them. In the confusion the militia directed their fire upon the Japanese Post Office. This brought Japanese troops, who captured the militia. They were released, however, when the situation was explained.

WOULD REDUCE SPA COAL.

Germany to Give Silesian Trouble as the Reason.

BERLIN, Aug. 21 (Associated Press).—The German Coal Administration will meet representatives of the Entente powers next week to discuss the possible effect of the Upper Silesian disturbances on coal production and the consequent possible inability of Germany to make deliveries as prescribed in the Spa agreement.

Unofficially, it was stated that Germany would ask the privilege of offsetting the present shortage in deliveries by increased shipments when normal conditions are restored in the coal fields.

Special dispatches from Beuthen state that a large number of miners failed to report for work this morning. The regions northeast and southeast of the city of Kattowitz are still in possession of the Polish invaders, who, it was reported, are being proceeded against by interallied troops. General Gratier, the new interallied commander-in-chief, has arrived in the vicinity of Kattowitz.

AUSTRIA IN TRADE TREATY.

Agrees with Rumania on Currency Exchange for Commodities.

VIENNA, Aug. 21.—The Austrian Government has concluded a commercial treaty with Rumania for a period of one year, the principal feature of which is a provision for mutual acceptance of the retrospective moneys of the two countries in payment for commodities.

Under the treaty Austria will receive foodstuffs and petroleum products in exchange for various classes of manufactured goods. She also undertakes to repair 500 Rumanian locomotives.

NEW PLAN TO FREE EGYPT

rule to Egypt as a preliminary step toward ultimate independence.

There are two armies in Egypt. There is an Egyptian army which is officered by English officers. There is also a regular British garrison in Egypt which was greatly increased during the war. There has been no evacuation of this garrison and it is not believed in well-informed circles that the British Government contemplates withdrawing this army at the present time, especially since the Mesopotamian garrison could not be evacuated on account of unrest and threatened trouble in Mesopotamia. The maintenance of the British garrisan in Egypt is regarded as a necessary corollary to the Mesopotamian situation.

Protests against the continued occupation of Egypt by England were presented to President Wilson when he was attending the Peace Conference at Paris. These were presented by Egyptian delegates, but the President's attitude was not satisfactory to the nationalists.

An Egyptian delegation, headed by Mahmoud Pasha, was in Washington last Winter and in November filed a protest with the State Department against "the unlawful and unwarranted acts of Great Britain in assuming sovereignty over Egypt." This protest informed Secretary Lansing that at the beginning of the war a protectorate was proclaimed over Egypt by Great Britain, but that it was announced that this was merely a measure to preserve the independence of Egypt. The same protest went on to quote a telegram which King George sent to the Sultan of Egypt which was published in the London Times on Dec. 21, 1914, and was widely circulated over Egypt, giving assurances that the integrity of Egypt would be safeguarded by England, and that Great Britain was endeavoring to overcome all the influences which "are seeking to destroy the independence of Egypt."

In this protest it was pointed out that the British Embassy at Washington, on Sept. 2, 1919, issued a statement which declared that "the British Government has carefully avoided destroying Egyptian sovereignty." Mahmoud Pasha asked the American Government, in this protest, to make it clear that the protectorate of Great Britain over Egypt is understood by the United States to be merely "a means of preserving the independence of Egypt until the same can be guaranteed by a League of Nations, or an agreement among the powers."

Lansing's Explanation.

On Dec. 16, 1919, Robert Lansing, then Secretary of State, wrote a letter to Senator Owen placing a definite interpretation upon the State Department's qualified recognition of the British wartime protectorate over Egypt. In this letter, Secretary Lansing made it clear that he assumed that Great Britain intended to carry out its pledge as made by King George to the late Sultan of Egypt on Dec. 20, 1914. Secretary Lansing's letter, which attracted little popular attention at the time, but which may now assume greater importance, read as follows:

"Dec. 16, 1916.

"To Hon. L. Owen, United States Senate.

"Sir: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of Nov. 26 last, in which you inquire as to the effect of this Government's recognition of the so-called protectorate proclaimed by Great Britain over Egypt on Dec. 18, 1914.

"In reply I beg to state that the department does not understand that Egypt was, prior to the British proclamation of Dec. 18, 1914, in possession of full independent sovereign rights.

"The effect of this Government's qualified recognition of April, 1919, was to acknowledge with the reservation set forth at that time only such control of Egyptian affairs as had been set forth in the notice of the British Government transmitted to the department on Dec. 18, 1914, a copy of which is enclosed.

"It is assumed that it is the purpose of Great Britain to carry out the assurances given by King George the Fifth of England to the late Sultan of Egypt, as published in The London Times of Dec. 21, 1914.

"I have the honor to be, Sir,
"Your obedient servant,
"ROBERT LANSING."

Saad Zagloul, leader of the Egyptian Nationalists, went to England last June on invitation of the British Government to confer regarding the future government of Egypt, and soon after his arrival declared he saw no reason why a fair compromise should not be reached between Egypt and Great Britain. By fair compromise he said he meant one in which British interests in Egypt did not collide with the Egyptian national claim for complete independence. He said Egypt was ready and able to safeguard the canal and willing to go half way to satisfy England and ready to give reasonable guarantees to be embodied in treaties between Egypt and England. At that time he declared it would be impossible for Egypt to admit England's right to maintain an army in Egypt or control Egypt's foreign policy.

Great Britain declared a protectorate over Egypt on Dec. 18, 1914, soon after Turkey became involved in the war, on the side of Germany.

The next day, by a proclamation, the Khedive, Abbas Hilmi, was deposed and the title Sultan of Egypt was conferred upon Hussein Kamil, eldest Prince of the Muhammad Ali family. The Sultan died in 1917 and was succeeded by his brother, Ahmed Fuad Pasha, as Fuad I.

From 1879 to 1883, France and Great Britain, each with a Controller General, divided a broad authority over Egyptian affairs.

In January, 1883, the joint control was abolished, and the Khedive, on British recommendation, appointed a financial adviser, without whose concurrence no financial measures could be put in force.

Since declaring Egypt a protectorate Great Britain is represented by a High Commissioner for Egypt.

PURSUE BANDITS TO FREE AMERICANS

DEADLOCK IN OIL SITUATION

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 22.—The American Consul at Guadalajara reports that Federal troops are close in pursuit of Pedro Zamora, who kidnaped a party of American mining engineers.

The Consul states that the troops are doing all that can be expected and will probably locate the bandits in the next few days. Zamora has headed toward the coast of Jalisco.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 22.—The Government's military preparations to crush the rebellious movement in the State of Jalisco, headed by Pedro Zamora, and to release the American citizens and the British subject kidnapped several days ago in Jalisco, are expected to be sufficient.

Three expeditionary columns, composed of mixed cavalry and infantry regiments and commanded by officers well acquainted with the difficult country, were ordered into Jalisco on Aug. 17.

Unconfirmed reports last week from Autland said Zamora had carried off a British subject, whose name was not given, in addition to a score of young women from a village, most of whom killed themselves rather than accompany the bandit.

The American Embassy has no details of the kidnappings at Cuale, but messages received at the British Legation confirm the report of last night that a British subject named Johnson and a number of Americans were carried off. The British details are meagre. It is understood that both the British and American diplomatic representatives have requested the Mexican Government to free the foreigners.

According to the Heraldo, President de la Huerta has announced that no conditions for the recognition of the Mexican Government have been imposed by the United States or France.

"The Mexican Government," President de la Huerta is quoted as having said, "is giving all guarantees to foreign countries and not seeking to break promises with foreign nations, and it does not believe foreign nations have any reason to impose conditions belittling our dignity."

Mexico and Spain have settled their consular difficulties, it was announced at the Foreign Office today. Passports of Mexicans going to Spain will be viséd by the Spanish Legation until a new Consul General arrives.

Ten million pesos of the 11,000,000 carried off by train during the flight of the late President Carranza from Mexico City have been recovered, according to a staement made by the Treasury Department today.

Mexico City Embassy Investigates.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—The State Department late tonight received a telegram from the American Embassy at Mexico City stating that it was rumored there that four American mining men, an American woman, and one other person, said to be a British subject, had been kidnapped in the State of Jalisco by the bandit Zamora, who has started a revolt against the Federal Government.

The dispatch stated that the rumor had not been confirmed, gave no further particulars and informed the State Department that the Embassy is investigating the matter to ascertain the facts.

OIL COMPANIES FIRM AGAINST TAX DEMANDS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—An impasse seems to have been reached in the efforts of the American oil companies operating in Mexico to reach an agreement with the Mexican Government.

Recently there appeared to be a prospect of agreement between the new Government and the oil companies being reached, but the latest available information here indicates that each side is standing firmly for what it claims to be its rights in the controversy and that a deadlock has desulted.

The question as to the amount of tax which the oil companies should pay on exports is one on which there is a difference of opinion and which is of immediate interest. The oil companies contend that they have paid into the Mexican Treasury the total amount of tax due on export shipments, but that, in violation of an agreement which was entered into between General Salvador Alvarado as Minister of Finance, in June last, and the companies themselves, the Mexican Government now is attempting to collect excessive taxes, which are double and in some cases treble what they ought to be.

Furthermore, not only are excessive taxes levied for the months of May and June last, but an attempt has been made to make them retroactive for the previous two months, the rates being fixed every two months according to the average prices obtained for various oils at New York, less transportation charges, during the preceding two months.

The oil companies continue to stand on the agreement which they made with Alvarado several months ago, whereby the companies agreed to pay the taxes for May and June on the basis of the January-February schedule, subject to adjustment after the companies had been given opportunity to show the prices they were getting for their oil in New York by exhibiting either originals or photostats of their contracts of sale.

The oil export taxes, it was pointed out, have been steadily increasing since the Carranza decree first went into effect in April, 1917. A few days before Carranza fled from Mexico City he issued a decree for the March and April shipments, more than doubling the amount for the previous two months. The new Government issued a circular offering the January-February rates; and these were paid. But later an effort was made by the present Government to collect the rates Carranza had fixed and attempting to make them retroactive; and it is against such action that the American oil companies, they assert, are protesting. They state that the Mexican Government is receiving 5,000,000 pesos a month on oil export taxes.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 22.—Statements made by Doheny, the oil man, in the United States, are misleading, say Government officials here, who assert that shipments of oil for the remainder of the year will break records, especially to England. A number of British tankers will be placed in this service.

The increased British demand is said to be due to the conversion of British Merchant Marine, to be oil-burning vessels. It is understood that the British-Mexican oil concerns, connected with the Huasteca Mexican oil companies and the Doheny companies will add ten tankers.

Construction has already begun on a large British tanker fleet in order to supply oil to the Cunard liners.

Contracts of the Doheny companies with the British marine call for delivery this year of fifteen million barrels, or about sixty per cent. of the Huasteca and Doheny companies' production. The bulk of oil for the British Merchant Marine will be drawn from wells of the Mexican Eagle and Huasteca companies. Their combined shipments for the year will total thirty-five million barrels, or one-fourth of all shipments from the Mexican fields.

American oil tankers at present have about a 70 per cent. monopoly of the carrying trade.

MEXICAN OFFICIAL SUES.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 22.—General Francisco R. Serrano, Mexican Under-Secretary of War and Marine, has filed a complaint in the Federal Court against Lieut. Colonel Alvarez Sainz, charging slander.

General Serrano alleges that Colonel Sainz made the slanderous statement that he had been ordered by General Serrano to dig up treasure which had been buried at La Malinche, Puebla State, and that General Serrano later ordered the execution of a ranchman who had pointed out the hiding place of the treasure.

2,000 ALIENS HEAR CONCERT.

Songs Sung in Many Languages on Ellis Island and Band Plays.

Nearly 2,000 persons, including the 1,200 passengers from the Holland-American liner Rotterdam and 400 aliens ordered to be excluded, heard the concert yesterday afternoon at Ellis Island on the lawns in front of the main building.

In addition to popular airs by the band, songs were sung in various languages. A young Italian tenor received great applause for singing several Neapolitan arias for hundreds of his countrymen who were spending the week-end on the island.

500,000 'OBSTRUCT' ITALY'S SHOPS TODAY

Substitute for General Strike Avoids the Need of Leaving Employment.

THREATS OF VIOLENCE MADE

MILAN, Aug. 22.—Five hundred thousand workmen have initiated an obstructionist campaign in all metal foundries, machine shops and naval dockyards throughout Italy. The movement is the outcome of six weeks of fruitless negotiations for further economic betterment carried on between the Metal Workers' Federation and the Owners' Association.

Obstructionism has been adopted in preference to a formal strike because it is a legal method of protest, whereby the men avoid a drain on their union funds and, except for having to forgo supplementary piece work rates and overtime remuneration, compel the masters to keep all departments going, to maintain furnaces at high pressure and pay full weekly wages for a minimum of work.

The federation has issued a new code of ten "commandments" for the men's guidance. Every man must be at his post, but unless the setting in motion of machinery be preceded by a signal most distinctly audible in all dependent departments, they must not start work.

They must refuse to operate any machine unless all its parts are in perfect order and fitted with every prescribed means of protection against danger.

They must insist upon absolute stoppage of machinery before beginning any oiling or greasing or any sort of repair, and the longest possible time is to be indulged in such occupations.

Legal advantage is to be taken of the minutest particulars in regulations, so that, for example, thousands of men may sit idle if cobwebs be discovered on the ceilings, dust on the walls or grease on the pavement, or should any portion of the flooring be found broken or uneven.

Supposing any hands are dismissed in consequence of such "scrupulousity," no strike will follow, but they will be marched into the works regularly amid their comrades and the Workmen's Internal Committees will bring the necessary action to bear to nullify the authority of the industrialist or foremen, in case the firm proclaims a lock-out.

The employes are to enter at all costs, even if they have to force gates and smash through doors to arrive at their posts. The motto of the movement is "violence for violence."

Obstructionism will not come into full play till Monday, but beyond the arrest of forty machinists concerned in a murderous attack on the general manager at the Tosi works, in the Taranto dockyard, the initial phase of the agitation has been unattended thus far by serious incidents.

HARDING DEMANDS PROOF FROM COX

Declares Charge of $15,000,000 Campaign Fund Is 'Wholly Without Foundation."

PUTS NEED AT $3,000,000

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, Aug. 22.—Governor Cox's charges of a $15,000,000 Republican campaign fund were denied today by Senator Harding as "Ridiculous and wholly without foundation."

"Let him show it," the Senator said, when asked to comment on Governor Cox's statement that he had proof of a huge Republican fund.

Senator Harding referred to yesterday's speech at Bangor, Me., by Chairman Will H. Hays, who contradicted Governor Cox's statement and promised publicity for republican campaign finances.

"You can say for me," the Senator went on, "that I second the motion of Mr. Hays on the calling on the opposition candidate, or anyone else, to produce evidence of the truth of any such charges."

"Will the Republican Party's policy of accepting no individual contributions over $1,000 continue?" Senator Harding was asked.

"So far as I know," he replied.

The Senator replied to another question that he believed no national political campaign could be financed at present for less than $3,000,000. He recalled the McKinley campaign of 1896, in which a similar amount was raised.

"Remember, that was twenty-four years ago," he said. "That campaign cost $2,000,000, Mark Hanna told me, and $1,000,000 was returned to contributors. In the next Presidential campaign, in 1900, Hanna had to go down on his knees and scratch for money. That year the Republicans spent $1,000,000."

Tells of His Own Expenses.

Senator Harding turned to his own campaigns in Ohio, saying:

"When I was elected to the United States Senate, the total Republican expenditures in the State that year were $42,000, and in that unfortunate campaign I made for Governor the total contributions for the Republican State ticket were $38,000. Of this $2,000 remained in the treasury."

"It has been reported, Senator, that the Republican National Committee has a fund of two or three million dollars, raised during the last three years," was suggested.

"I understand that that money has been spent for organization purposes," Senator Harding replied. "Mr. Hays has carried on a vast amount of work in extending the Republican organization. I know that no fund existed with which to begin the campaign, for just before the convention it was necessary to borrow $250,000."

The Senator was asked whether he would make any comment on Governor Cox's attacks on his foreign policies. He replied that he would not anticipate the speech he is preparing on foreign affairs for the Indiana delegation next Saturday. "I shall go into the matter fully then," he added.

"Does the Polish situation furnish an opportunity for application of the League of Nations issue?" was asked.

"You have a pretty good slant on it," the Senator replied, with a smile, and turned the conversation to suffrage.

Won't Make Special Plea to Women.

While campaign plans may have to be revised in increasing the amount of party literature, in view of several million more women's votes, the Senator said he would not address himself to the women voters.

"Ratification of suffrage will have no effect upon the political complexion of the country, in my belief," he declared. "I shall address whatever I have to say to the citizenship of the country, and I shall make no distinction of sex in the presentation of campaign issues that apply to the citizenship as a whole, any more than I shall make an appeal to any particular class of voters."

Senator Harding and Colonel George Harvey, his guest for the week-end, had just finished reading the morning papers on the front porch this forenoon when a group of baseball players and veterans from the Soldiers' Home at Sandusky, Ohio, arrived. The team came to Marion to play one of the local nines. Senator Harding and Colonel Harvey shook hands with the veterans and the ball players, most of whom are employes at the Soldiers' Home.

200,000 MAY HEAR COX.

Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright notified the Committee on Arrangements for the reception of Governor James M. Cox yesterday that he expects fully 200,000 persons at the police field day at Gravesend next Saturday to greet the Democratic nominee for President. Governor Cox will speak at a luncheon at the Hotel Commodore and at the police games.

A special stand will be built at Gravesend, from which Governor Cox will deliver his address. A magnavox, or sound-amplifying instrument, will be installed, which is expected to enable every person in the crowd to hear Governor Cox.

Governor Alfred E. Smith will introduce Governor Cox. The others on the speakers' stand will be Mayor John F. Hylan, Police Commissioner Enright, William H. Edwards, Collector of Internal Revenue, and John M. Riehle, President of the National Democratic Club.

Women will take a prominent part in the reception for Governor Cox. The Women's Committee is headed by Mrs. David H. Knott, wife of the Sheriff of New York County. The Women's Committee will meet Governor Cox on his arrival at the Grand Central Terminal at 10:07 Saturday morning, and will attend both the reception at the National Democratic Club and the luncheon at the Hotel Commodore immediately following.

Police Commissioner Enright will furnish an escort of mounted and bicycle policemen for Governor Cox during his progress from the hotel to the National Democratic Club and back, and from the hotel to Gravesend. The Committee on Arrangements for the reception and luncheon will meet this afternoon at 1 o'clock at the Hotel Commodore to arrange final details.

TURN ON MARYLAND MOTTO.

Suffragists Want "Deeds Are Masculine, Words Feminine," Changed.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 22.—Maryland suffragists, having come into their heritage of political equality, have now turned against the motto on the State coat of arms, a heraldic bit of work done long ago for the Calvert and Crossland families. It reads "Fatti Maschii, Parole Feminine," which is translated as "Deeds Are Masculine, Words Feminine."

"This is all wrong," say the suffragist leaders, including Mrs. Charles E. Elliott, Mrs. Calvin Gabrielle, Mrs. Charles Ogle, Mrs. Emma Weber and others. "It does not fit. It was written by men for men, and is un-American."

They suggest a Statewide contest for a substitute and action on a change by the Legislature.

All the suffragists will hear of the motto's defects on Monday, when the matter will be put before their Executive committee. They may want to substitute "Sic Semper Tyrannis," Virginia's motto, one declared.

CHARGES HAYS AIDS 'WETS.'

Anderson Says Interference Threatens Republican Success in State.

Interference in the New York situation by the Republican national organization in behalf of "wet" candidates for State office is charged by William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, in a letter to Will H. Hays, Republican National Chairman made public yesterday. Mr. Anderson said that Mr. Hays, or some other representative of the Republican National Committee, had interfered to prevent Elon H. Hooker from becoming a candidate against Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., in the Republican primaries and to prevent Secretary of State Francis M. Hugo from becoming a candidate against Nathan L. Miller.

Mr. Anderson said that the prohibition forces of the State remembered that the Republican national organization did not lift a finger to prevent Charles S. Whitman from being knifed by "wet" Republicans when he ran for re-election as Governor and warned Mr. Hays that his alleged support of a "wet" State ticket would endanger the success of the Republican national ticket in this State.

"Whatever alibi you may personally be able to establish," Mr. Anderson said, "the national organization of the Republican party has interfered in a manner that is glaringly out of harmony with your definition of the function of the national organization that it is to 'elect and not to select' candidates."

he said. "I have never seen so many young men at meetings in campaigns before."

Governor Cox said he attributed this largely to a new idealism and a new interest in government which had been aroused among the young men of the nation as a result of the war.

"They are interested," he said, "in the Government, and especially in bringing the war to an end. Their moral vision has widened and their moral outlook raised. They have been quickened to an appreciation of what citizenship means."

Governor Cox said also that he was struck by the "approach to religious fervor" which the campaign had aroused in many of those who attended the meetings.

"I am not taking a partisan position in this fight," the Governor went on. "I don't intend to. I don't think this is a partisan question. This fight is being made for a righteous movement, worldwide in its possibilities for good. And we don't find any diference of opinion even in the rank and file of the Republican Party. I think this was illustrated pretty well when I asked at one meeting if there was any one present who was opposed to the League of Nations and promised to answer any question propounded. None raised his voice."

Governor Cox said he had found much resentment among the rank and file of the Republicans because the leaders who hav taken control did not pay attention to the results of the primary elections, and, instead of listening to the voice of the people, nominated a candidate who had not received a majority of votes in any State in the primary contest.

Says Voters Feel Misrepresented.

"The voters feel that these leaders are standing for what the people were opposed to, and were not guided by the primaries," said Governor Cox. "Many of them have told me so.

"There were two incidents at Canton which affected me deeply. One was the story of a girl who, returning from college, had gone to her father and told him, 'I can't believe in your position on the League, although I know how strong your opposition to it is.' The old father was delighted that his daughter, now a voter, was taking an interest in the affairs of the Nation.

"The other was of a magnificent boy who came to me and said that he had left two brothers behind him in France; that neither he nor his father had ever voted the Democratic ticket, but that they were both going to do so this time."

Wants Aid to Farmers on Grain.

Governor Cox sent a telegram tonight to Governor W. P. G. Harding of the Federal Reserve Board, asking him to extend aid for grain elevators as a help in harvesting the crops, as he had been informed that it was difficult to obtain credits. In discussing the situation Governor Cox said he did not attach any political significance to the conditions, but that he had been informed by many farmers in his travels about Ohio and other States that they were the cause of some distress. The telegram sent to Governor Harding read:

"My attention has been directed in several parts of the country to a condition which I think the Federal Reserve Board should and can correct. It is with reference to the movement of the crops. Farmers allege that the grain elevators are unable to secure sufficient credits to take in the season's yield. The farmers are without sufficient granary facilities to carry it over. In many instances this compels unnaturally fictitious prices. I am giving you this information as a private citizen, believing that the public welfare will be conserved thereby."

Makes No Comment on Harding's Denial.

DAYTON, Ohio, Aug. 22 (Associated Press).—Governor Cox was informed of the denial made tonight by Senator Harding of the $15,000,000 campaign fund charges. The Governor said he had no comment to make on the denial at this time. His statement calling on Chairman Hays for information was made prior to his knowledge of Senator Harding's denial.

In his address in Canton last night Governor Cox stated that the American Woolen Company was interested in the election of a Republican Administration, and its officers, he said, had stated that Republican success would increase the value of their capital stock from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000. In this connection the Governor referred to the closing of the corporation's mills.

ROOSEVELT FINDS WEST FOR LEAGUE

Asserts People Also Realize That Cox Has Democratic Progressiveness at Heart.

SPEAKS IN PORTLAND, ORE.

By CORNELIUS VANDERBILT, JR.
Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 22.—I have just had an interview with Franklin D. Roosevelt in which he explained many times his wish to be quoted correctly "back East."

"I should like to say perfectly clearly," said Mr. Roosevelt, "that this Western country is taking a tremendous interest in the campaign. It is astonishing to see how many people are realizing more and more every day that Cox has Democratic progressiveness at heart. I have never known a political campaign to start out with so much intelligent interest so early in the season. If this is true 'back East' it means the election of Governor Cox.

"The League of Nations is decidedly the paramount issue. Everybody wants to hear about it. These Westerners do not wish to take any more chances about war.

"I am trying to explain it to them in plain terms. I am trying to show them that the dispute in the Senate was merely one of words. The people of the great West are thoroughly certain as to their wish for a league and I am trying to impress upon them that the Constitution is supreme, league or no league, and that with reservations American constitutional rights could never be infringed by any league whatsoever.

"I am surprised at the great interest people are taking in this campaign. Yesterday morning at 7:15 o'clock when I spoke from the platform of my train in Yakima, I saw some weary-looking people in a ramshackle old car in the rear. After the speech an old lady came up to me.

"'I'm a Republican by birth,' she said, 'but we have come fifty-eight miles by car this morning just to hear you speak. We believe we are going to turn our votes over to Mr. Cox if he means what you've told us ranchers out here.'

"If that's the feeling in Yakima what must it be elsewhere?

"One outstanding feature of this campaign I find is the absolute breaking down of all party lines. I mean by this getting out of voting as your granddaddy did. It's a hard task, but I have had dozens of people in the last few weeks ask me what I would say if they told me their entire families for many generations had been Republicans, but that they were turning right over to the best man because he was a man.

Finds Interest in Cox's Record.

"Another thing that has struck me on this trip is that people are all interested in the record made by Governor Cox. They feel that he is a Democratic-Progressive. They know what he himself stands for and what the Democratic platform really is."

I asked Mr. Roosevelt if he thought Cox would carry these Western States in the coming election.

"From Minnesota west," he replied, "there is a great deal of resentment because Harding and Coolidge are not coming out here. People feel that they are being slighted by the party they have usually upheld. It is an altogether foolish move and Westerners are gradually becoming disgusted over it. Minnesota, South Dakota and North Dakota were carried by Hughes by small majorities in the last election, and it is quite possible they may turn over to us. If we continue to gain in more States as we have in the last few weeks, I feel quite certain that it will be a Democratic landslide in a few months."

Mr. Roosevelt has left for Southern Oregon, where he will make some speeches. He said he hoped to return home about the first of September and would then make an extensive tour throughout New York State and Maine and later in the Southeast.

Predicts Victory in Oregon.

Mr. Roosevelt arrived here at 7:40 o'clock last night, and an hour later was escorted to the Portland Auditorium, where he addressed about 4,000 people.

"Tonight," he said, "I want to express my pleasure in getting to the State of Oregon so early in the campaign, and at the same time to say that I am indeed sorry that I could not have carried out my original program, which called for meetings in two other cities of this State.

"I have learned better than ever before the truth of the old axiom that 'it is impossible to be in two places at the same time,' and of the other old axiom that 'possession is nine points of the law.' For my Washington friends seized me and would not let me go.

"I want to start off by making a prophecy. I recognize that the State of Oregon is claimed as absolutely safe by the Republican leaders, but, on the other hand, a large number of independent observers, who have studied the situation, have stated it as their opinion that Oregon must be placed in the doubtful column. If these independent observers are right, as I believe them to be, my prophecy is definite that Oregon will be found casting the majority of its votes on Nov. 2 for the Democratic ticket.

"I base this prophecy on two great big fundamental facts in our modern public life and political contests. These two facts are scarcely open to dispute. Either one of them is sufficient to bring my prophecy true. With the assistance of both of them there can be no room for doubt.

"The first of these truths is that today, more than ever before in our national history, the voters of the United States are using their heads. It is very evident in every State of the Union that narrow partisanship is becoming less and less prevalent.

"It is equally evident that what might be called inherited partisanship is also passing away. A generation ago a very large proportion of the voters of the nation, in both the Democratic and Republican Parties, were partisans because their fathers or their grandfathers had belonged to a particular party. People inherited their political faith with as great or even more regularity than they inherited the old homestead or their father's watch. Many elements contributed in the old days to this unfortunate tendency. But the greatest factor probably was the existence of rancor and bad feeling between political opponents. A hundred years ago people in the United States used to fight duels over politics. Feeling ran high prior to elections, and violence was not an exception. The fighting of the civil war did little to eradicate bad feeling, but as these later years have passed by, this old antagonism has largely disappeared, and with its disappearance we are abandoning, gradually but surely, an antiquated and un-American method of voting a ticket because 'grandpa' did.

Lets Two Classes of Republicans Go.

"I am perfectly willing to let two classes in the community vote for Senator Harding this year without any effort to call them away. Those who have studied the relative merits of the two platforms, who have studied the relative merits of the two candidates, and who, after that, are honestly of the opinion that Senator Harding would make the better President for the next four years, should vote for him. So, also, those who are guided by the opinions of their Republican grandfathers, and would vote for him anyway. It would be useless to argue with that type of mind. I do not ask the vote of any man, Democrat or Republican, unless it be a vote of conviction.

"It is because I am so certain of the appeal which Democratic ideals are making this year to those who are willing to use their individual judgment that I give this as one of the great reasons for my prophecy of Democratic success in this State this year.

"The other great reason is that the American people are, on the whole, a pretty wise people, and that they will not be fooled or misled by lies or misunderstanding, and the campaign of the Republican leaders, as disclosed thus far, is so full of misrepresentations that the voters have plenty of time to discriminate, to call the bluff, to discover the truth, and to punish those who are the guilty parties.

Says He Was Misrepresented.

"I suppose it is because the Democratic campaign has put the Republicans on the defensive that they are driven to the use of despicable methods.

"Let me give you an example: During the last week I have been demolishing a silly argument about England being able to outvote us six to one in the League of Nations. I have shown first of all that it is the Council of the League which is the true governing body, and that in that Council the whole British Empire has but one vote, just the same as the United States. And I have shown that while in the Assembly, a very large body, which has primarily only recommendatory powers, five of Great Britain's dominions, like Canada, South Africa and Australia, each have a vote, the United States of America will undoubtedly have the support of twice as many of our neighboring and friendly republics in the West Indies and South America.

"I cited, for instance, the fact that the Republic of Santo Domingo is at the present time being administered by the United States Navy, and that as the interests of the two countries are closely bound up together, the votes of both countries would undoubtedly be found in the same column. The same thing is true of the Republic of Haiti, though in that particular case they have a President and Cabinet of their own. It is true also that the interests of other republics, such as Cuba, Panama, Nicaragua and Brazil, are so akin to ours that we shall be of mutual support to each other in the Assembly of the League of Nations.

"What I am driving at is this: The above simple and clear statement got under the skin of the partisan Republican leaders to such an extent, and under the skin particularly of the partisan Republican press, that they sent some one to the State Department the other day and misrepresented me, saying that I had said that the United States has control over the Governments south of us. A cleverly worded story appears from Washington making it appear that the State Department has denied my claim about those republics in the League of Nations.

"I am glad that the State Department has denied the absolutely false statement given to them as coming from me. I wholly agree with the State Department. I reiterate exactly what I said before, that the United States will have voting side by side with it in the League of Nations not six States, but at least twice that number, and this because of the simple fact that these little republics have the same kind of interests that we have, and that it is even more certain that we will all be voting the same way than that Canada, Australia and South Africa will be found voting with England.

Wants Game Played on the Level.

"That is a very good illustration of the kind of misrepresentation to which they have been driven. By that I mean the present people in control of the Republican campaign. That kind of campaigning is not acceptable to the voters of this nation, to the voters of any political party, and they will show their resentment when they are put to it. I believe in playing this game on the level, in giving a square deal even to one's opponent. That is the other reason why I am very certain that the people of Oregon are going to put the State in the Democratic column in November."

"We are going to carry Oregon," said Dr. J. W. Morrow, Chairman of the City of Portland Democratic Committee, after Mr. Roosevelt's speech. "With such a frank, up-to-the-minute young man as Mr. Roosevelt as a forerunner of the real Democrats we shall teach the people that by our platform and League of Nations Cox's election will mean peace, prosperity and progress. People want a go-ahead Administration, and Roosevelt is now winning over his late cousin's Progressives as well as many former Republicans.

"We shall carry the State of Washington hands down, and I am about sure of Oregon as well."

ENROLL 823 REPUBLICANS.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Aug. 22.—A lively session is expected at the Republican caucus to elect delegates to the State Congress Convention to be held in the Town Hall Thursday. The Republican Club, composed largely of New York business men, who seek to change the present form of the town government, will have a ticket in the field in opposition to the old guard. Its candidates will include a number of New York business men, Julian W. Curtiss, Frederick K. Rupprecht, Henry Dayton, Mortimer B. Foster and Irving M. Shaw.

An answer is expected early this week from the State Attorney General as to whether the passage of the suffrage amendment by Tennessee will enable Connecticut women to take part in the coming caucus. If the women vote the Republican Club claims it will be able to swing many additional votes. The Republican enrollment of new names, just completed, is the largest in the town's history. While heretofore fifty have been enrolled, this year there were 775 men and 48 women, the largest since the first enrollment in 1900. The total Republican enrollment in the township is now about 2,000, while the Democratic Party, it is claimed, can boast only 50.

FEAR NEGRO "INVASION."

Ohio Democrats Disturbed by Arrival of Many from the South.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 22.—Democrats of Ohio are expressing concern over what they say is an invasion of negros from the South. They have been disturbed by the apparent influx of negroes toward the North, especially Ohio, in recent weeks.

How much this will be a factor in the election cannot well be determined until the registration is completed late in October. The time allowed for checking up reports of registration is short and it is declared that it will be difficult to tell whether all negroes registered are proper voters or not.

Negroes have been coming North in great numbers in recent years, raising serious social questions here. A few months ago, it is asserted, the Republican Committee in a bulletin cited this as a reason for large hopes of carrying Ohio.

The Democratic Committee recalled in a statement today what Senator Harding's Marion Star said when the constitutional amendment for direct election of Senators was ratified. This is the quotation as given:

"Ostensibly we have changed to give the people a chance and to bar men of great means and influence, but instead of hampering them we have barred the way to all men of moderate means. Under the primary method of nominating, only a man of great means or with a political machine at his back can hope to be made a nominee. The poor aspirant can go on aspiring and dreaming and the Federal Senate will become such a rich men's club as it has never proven before."

"In spite of the Senator's misgivings as to the new experiment," the committee says, "he was himself the first beneficiary of it in Ohio. It might be pertinent, therefore, to inquire under which of his own classifications his own successful candidacy properly falls—'a man of great means' or 'with a political machine at his back.'"

LEGION WILL WATCH SOCIALISTS IN BRONX

Veterans to Patrol Tonight as Two Ousted Assemblymen Ask Re-election.

READY TO CURB DISLOYALTY

Members of the American Legion will patrol the Third and Fourth Assembly districts in the Bronx tonight to curb any possible disloyal remarks on the part of Socialist speakers in the opening of their campaign to elect Samuel Orr and Samuel A. DeWitt, ousted from the Assembly last Spring, at the special Assembly district election on Sept. 15. The Socialists have announced ten street meetings in the two districts for tonight. Special arrangements have been made by the Bronx police to prevent disorder.

Major Wilbur T. Wright, of 263 East Kingsbridge Road, Vice Chairman of the American Legion of the Bronx, announced at least three hundred members, representing the forty Legion posts in the Bronx, would "patrol" the two Assembly districts. "Any departure by the speakers from political argument into remarks of disloyalty or any acts of disloyalty on the part of those attending the meetings will be summarily dealt with," said Major Wright.

"Last year the members of Balcom Post, operating with a small force of men, were able to put a curb on disloyal speakers in this borough. We have 5,000 Legion men here, and if the State Assembly outlaws these Socialists, it only necessarily follows that they shall not impose their rantings on the good people of the Bronx, especially if such rantings savor of disloyalty."

Major Wright said he intended to get in touch with William F. Deegan, Bronx County Chairman of the American Legion, who is spending his vacation at North Asbury, N. J., and said he had no doubt of getting his approval. Major Wright said that if the Socialists succeeded in "getting away with anything" tonight, a meeting of the full membership of the Bronx County Legion would be called at the Morris High School tomorrow night to take whatever action might be considered necessary.

Fusion of the Democrats and Republicans against Orr and DeWitt was virtually assured yesterday by the decision of the Republican leaders to withdraw State Senator Peter A. Abeles as a candidate for renomination. Arthur H. Murphy, Bronx Democratic leader, refused to accept Senator Abeles because of the latter's vote for ratification of the prohibition amendment, but said he would accept any other Republican.

Richard W. Lawrence, Bronx County Republican Chairman, is expected to return to the city today and to suggest another Republican candidate for Senator to Mr. Murphy. The Republicans are willing to indorse the Democratic candidates for the Assembly in the Third, Fourth and Fifth districts, if the Democrats will indorse their candidate for State Senator.

SOCIALISTS UNITE FOR FIGHT.

Form Central Board to Direct Ousted Assemblymen's Campaign.

A Central Campaign Committee to work for the re-election of the five Socialists ousted from the Assembly and for the election of Nat Rubin, Socialist candidate in the Nineteenth Assembly District, Brooklyn, where a special election has also been called to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Assemblyman John Damico, was decided upon yesterday by a conference of Socialist leaders at 7 East Fifteenth Street. Julius Gerber, Executive Secretary of the Socialist Party, said that the Socialists of the entire city would be asked to help in the six special Assembly district elections, and that an intensive campaign of speaking, canvassing and appeals to the voters by letters and literature would be undertaken in each district.

An offer of assistance was received yesterday from the Socialists of Yonkers. A meeting of the Socialists of the first twelve Assembly districts in Manhattan will be held Thursday night in Casino Hall, 65 East Fourth Street, to arrange a program of co-operation. Mr. Gerber said that considerable non-Socialist assistance was expected, and that he would be ready within a few days to announce offers of aid from persons of prominence outside the Socialist Party.

BARNES, AS AUTHOR, MAKES DEBUT TODAY

New Yorkers interested in politics were looking forward with interest yesterday to the début as an author of William Barnes, ex-Republican State Chairman and Republican leader of Albany County, who said recently that his book, "Republicanism of Nineteen Twenty," would be out today. In view of the large advance sale, as revealed by subscriptions from prominent Republicans, and the widespread publicity during the last few days, persons in literary circles ventured the prediction that Mr. Barnes's new book would prove one of the best sellers of the month.

Mr. Barnes could not be found yesterday, either at his New York home, 29 East Forty-eighth Street, or at Albany. Fortunately it was found possible to get from a prospectus Mr. Barnes's detailed explanation of the purpose of the book. This prospectus, which was signed by "William Barnes, President, the Journal Company," was dated April 7, 1919, indicating that he had been at work on his book for a longer period than had generally been supposed.

The prospectus reads:

"To All Republicans:

"The object to be attained by the publication of this book, 'The Republicanism of Nineteen Twenty,' is to publish:

"First—Articles by distinguished Republicans giving their version of the services which eminent deceased Republicans have rendered their party.

"Second—Articles by well-known Republicans giving their opinions as to the meaning and purpose of the party.

"Third—Such political data as men in public life find it necessary frequently to refer, in attractive and simple form.

"Fourth—Sketches and photogravures of the men and women now active in the actual life of the party, that their faces may become familiar to one another and unity of relationship thereby secured."

In another prospectus, also signed by Mr. Barnes, the expense of publishing the book is emphasized. This prospectus says:

"Without the aid of those interested in real Republican doctrine this book would be financially impossible."

The feature of the forthcoming book which is awaited with the greatest interest is probably the series of articles by prominent Republicans.

A prospectus is authority for the statement that the following well-known members of the party have agreed to write articles on "The Purpose of Republicanism" for the book:

Ex-President William H. Taft, Charles E. Hughes, Elihu Root, Senator Warren G. Harding, Republican nominee for President; Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee; Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Chauncey M. Depew, United States Senator Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania, United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., of New York, United States Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman of Illinois and Congressman Julius Kahn of California.

Advance pages of the book show a portrait and sketch of Chauncey M. Depew, of whom the following is said:

"Chauncey M. Depew is perhaps better known to the world at large, including the cultivated people of both hemispheres, than perhaps any other American citizen."

Other advance pages show in addition to the Constitution of the United States and Washington's Farewell Address, the Monroe Doctrine and Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, a summary of the electorial vote from 1789 to 1852 and a summary of the popular and electorial vote from 1856 to 1916.

Will H. Hays, Republican National Chairman, had not returned from Maine yesterday, so could not be asked to add his personal disavowal to the denial issued at Republican National Headquarters that the National Committee had any connection with the Barnes book. Associates of Mr. Hays expressed doubt that he had written anything specially for the volume.

redouble its energies to gain the seat now held by him.

Senator Frank B. Brandegee of Connecticut, a bitter-ender in the treaty fight and an avowed opponent of women suffrage, is expected to be opposed by Homer S. Cummings, former Chairman of the Democratic National Committee. That Mr. Brandegee will not have the easy sailing that was his portion in previous campaigns for the Senate is generally admitted and the Democrats are taking a hopeful view of the fight against him.

Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, another bitter-ender, is being strongly opposed for renomination by Hunter Spalding, who is said to be making headway against Moses on the League issue within the Republican ranks.

Senator Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania is another Republican whose term will expire next year, but his re-election is believed to be assured. Senator Albert B. Cummins of Iowa is also looked upon as a sure winner in his contest for re-election. The Republicans are not worrying about the chances of Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas.

Republicans are also reasonably confident of re-electing Senator Wesley L. Jones of Washington, although it is admitted that the Democrats will put up a stiff fight to defeat him. The term of Senator William P. Dillingham of Vermont will be filled in the election to be held in that rock-ribbed Republican State in November.

Uncertainty in Other States.

Elsewhere there is uncertainty as to the outcome of elections in States which have Republican Senators whose successors will be elected next Autumn.

One of the sharpest contests will be in Indiana, where Senator James E. Watson, Republican, will be opposed by former Senator Thomas Taggart, Democrat, whom he defeated for re-election in 1916. A confident feeling has prevailed among Deocratic campaign managers that Taggart would defeat Watson, but it is asserted that Taggart's reported strength may receive a setback if women are able to vote for Senator in Indiana this year.

Reed Smoot of Utah, who, like Senator Watson, is classed as a member of the Old Guard, is having trouble. Senator Smoot is one of the Apostles of the Chuch of Latter Day Saints. Up to a few years ago the support of the Mormon Church was given to Republican candidates for national offices, but in 1916 the church decided to keep hands off and a Democrat, William H. King, also a Mormon, was elected to the Senate. This year Senator Smoot is being strongly opposed in his own party.

There is a hot contest in Illinois over the selection of the Republican candidate to succeed Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman, who declined to be a candidate for renomination. The primary battle is complicated by the schism in the Republican ranks that was the outgrowth of the effort of Governor Frank O. Lowden to obtain the nomination for President. Lowden broke with William Hale Thompson, Mayor of Chicago and the Republican boss of Cook County, and the latter has espoused the cause of Representative Frank L. Smith, who, oddly enough, was the Lowden campaign manager at Washington in the contest for the Presidential nomination.

Representative William B. McKinley of Champaign is backed in the primary battle for Senator by the anti-Thompson element. Another candidate in the primaries is former Representative Chipperfield.

Senator Irvine L. Lenroot, of Wisconsin, has broken with his colleague, Robert M. La Follette, and the latter has put up a candidate against him in the primaries. Paul S. Reinsch, former Minister to China, seems to be certain of the Democratic nomination there, and Democrats are claiming that he will obtain many Republican votes.

The contest in Ohio to fill the seat of Senator Harding is sharp. Nobody is willing to hazard a guess as to the outcome of the battle, as it will be more or less dependent upon whether the State lines up for Cox or Harding. Ex-Governor Frank P. Willis has been chosen in the Senatorial primaries as the Republican candidate. His Democratic opponent is W. A. Julian.

Republicans Count on Missouri.

Republicans believe they have an excellent chance of re-electing Senator Selden P. Spencer of Missouri, where the Democrats are divided through Senator Reed's opposition to President Wilson and his policies.

In Kentucky, another State normally Democratic, the Republicans have hopes of defeating Senator J. C. W. Beckham, Democrat. The Republican candidate is Colonel Ernest, who is regarded as strong.

While Oregon is normally a Republican State, it has twice elected George E. Chamberlain, Democrat, to the Senate. This year Senator Chamberlain is a candidate to succeed himself, but is expected to have a contest, although his popularity with Republicans is believed a powerful factor in his favor.

Republican hopes are strong in Nevada, where there is a spirited contest over the selection of a Democratic candidate to succeed Senator Charles B. Henderson, Democrat. One of Senator Henderson's opponents is Raymond T. Baker, Director of the United States Mint.

The Republicans intend to make a spirited campaign in Maryland, where Senator John Walter Smith, Democrat, is a candidate for re-election. His Republican opponent is O. E. Weller.

It is generally believed here that the seat of Senator Edwin S. Johnson of South Dakota, Democrat, will be filled by the Republican nominee, Governor Norbeck. In Idaho the Republicans believe they have a good chance of defeating Senator John F. Nugent, Democrat, and they say that they are making headway in Arizona against Senator Marcus A. Smith, also a Democrat.

Senator Charles S. Thomas of Colorado, Democrat, has declined to stand for re-election, and here again the Republicans see an opportunity of gaining a seat in the Senate.

Senator James Phelan of California, Democrat, will be opposed earnestly for re-election. There is a lively contest on for the Republican nomination for Senator, with Samuel Shortridge and ex-Representative William Kent as main contenders.

In North Dakota Senator Gronna, Republican, was defeated for renomination by Dr. Ladd, who was also the candidate of the Non-Partisan League, and it is generally believed that Ladd will be elected.

ALL-METAL PLANE BACK FROM PACIFIC

HER FLYING TIME 59 HOURS

Special to The New York Times.

CENTRAL PARK, L. I., Aug. 22.—The Larsen all-metal airplane arrived here tonight at the flying field, completing its round trip transcontinental flight to and from Los Angeles. The airplane was piloted by Bert Acosta, with "Eddie" Rickenbacker, John M. Larsen, the inventor, and E. R. Allyne of Cleveland as passengers.

The airplane, with two others, left here on July 29 for Los Angeles to blaze an aerial trail for a mail route to the Pacific Coast. It was the intention of Pilot Acosta when he left Los Angeles to attempt a record return flight, but this was abandoned later.

The last leg of the trip was made from Bellfonte, Pa., where the "J. L. 6," as the airplane is named, had been delayed since last Thursday by haze and rain. The airplane left Los Angeles on Aug. 4, and just "joyrided" eastward, according to Captain Rickenbacker.

"The fog hung as heavy in the valleys between the Pennsylvania mountains as the gas did over the fields of France when the Germans made an attack," said Rickenbacker. "Bellfonte surely is a hard place for the mail planes to enter and leave, but the people there are fine. They entertained us wonderfully at their country club."

Got Into Mexico.

"We got into Mexico, going from Tucson to El Paso," said Rickenbacker. "We crossed at Columbus, where Villa made his raid. We were well up then about 10,000 feet, and could not tell just what was happening or who was doing it, but I'd swear bullets whizzed past us. We figured some of the Mexican border guards were firing at the 'gringoes.'"

Other places where stops were made were Amarilla, Tex.; Roswell, N. M.; Omaha, Neb.; Kansas City and Cleveland.

"We were in the air some sixty hours altogether," said Mr. Larsen. "Part of that, of course, was 'joy rides' for friends. Our flying time for the round trip was something over fifty-nine hours."

The plane that came in today was the only one to complete the round trip. One was left on the coast. The third "cracked" at Omaha on the way out when it hit a house "taking off," demolishing the plane. One of the five in the plane was reported hurt. He was Captain Rickenbacker. Asked today about his injuries, he replied:

Mr. Allyne here declared that Rickenbacker also suffered severely from bombardment at the hands of the California girls.

After landing here the pilot took the Overland plane for three "hops" in the air, carrying friends who had assembled to welcome the aerial voyagers.

Engine's Work Satisfactory.

Within two hours after landing Mr. Allyne and Captain Rickenbacker were on their way respectively to Cleveland and Chicago by train.

"Almost a step backward," laughed the Clevelander. "Instead of traveling 100 miles an hour we are only going to travel fifty and probably be crowded at that."

Asked if he contemplated entering an all-metal plane in the Trans-continental race for the Pultizer Trophy in November, Mr. Larsen said he wanted to wait until the amended conditions of the race were announced.

"I am very anxious to put one of the planes in the race," he added, "but personally I do not think any air race which does not penalize less than a minimum of 250 mile 'hops' does not contribute much to aviation."

The all-metal plane, inverted by Mr. Larsen, has had a number of previous successful trials, the most noteworthy of which was a non-stop flight from Omaha to Lancaster, Pa., on July 26 last, which established a new record. As indicated by the name, the wings are of metal, and economy in construction and operation is claimed for this type of machine.

The all-metal construction is said to make it possible to leave the airplane outdoors, with only canvas covering the cockpit for protection of the engine, without damage from the weather. This feature makes it unnecessary to construct hangars at each stopping point, and is considered a decided advantage as well as a point of economy in its use on mail routes.

Coal Output Reaches Peak; Total Is 324,877,000 Tons

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—The production of bituminous coal reached its 1920 peak during the week ended Aug. 14, when the miners turned out 11,728,000 net tons.

The Geological Survey, in making this announcement today, made public figures showing that the production of bituminous coal since Jan. 1 has been 324,877,000 tons, 48,250,000 tons greater than the 1919 production for the corresponding period.

The increased production for the week of Aug. 14 was ascribed in part to the accumulation of empty coal cars during the strike in the Illinois and Indiana fields.

THE IRON MAN

And how, at twelve, he was so strong that he could stop a wild bull.

Be that as it may, iron is really necessary to perfect health and strength;

ASKS UNRESTRICTED RENT ON NEW HOMES

Real Estate Board Says Law Should be Repealed to Aid Housing Crisis.

AIM TO ATTRACT CAPITAL

ECONOMIC, NOT SOCIAL ILL

Board Believes Old Law of Supply and Demand Can't be Changed by Legislation.

The Real Estate Board of New York, which has prepared a series of proposed housing bills to submit to the conference called by State Senator Charles C. Lockwood at the City Hall on Wednesday, issued a statement yesterday describing its stand in favor of unrestricted rent on houses of new construction and exemption of mortgages from the State income tax law.

The board urges the exemption of all mortgages on real estate, without specifying that the exemption apply to mortgages on housing property. The statement, which is issued by Richard O. Chittick, Executive Secretary of the board, says:

"The Real Estate Board confesses to having certain old-fashioned notions. It believes firmly in the law of supply and demand. It believes that natural laws cannot be changed by artificial laws.

"That is why it has held to the point that money will not allow itself to be rented at a low price—as, for instance, to build houses and tenements—when it can rent itself for a higher price for tax-free securities; also that business folk will desert enterprise—as, for instance, the building of houses and tenements—when so great restrictions are placed about that enterprise as to make its pursuit annoying, hazardous and of uncertain income return. No legislation can change this. Legislation affecting buildings not of a residential character failed of passage at the last session of the Legislature. That is why industrial and business construction is making headway, while housing, controlled by the rent laws, is not.

"In relation to money for building, the Real Estate Board will ask what it did two years ago when the State Income Tax Law was being framed, and all through the 1920 legislative session, that the interest on mortgages secured wholly by real estate be exempted from the provisions of the income tax law without limit as to principal; and, as it did last March, that Congress be memorialized to the same end. This would attract mortgage money, encourage building and increase housing, and it would probably influence Congress to grant a like exemption.

Would Amend Rent Laws.

"In relation to the rent laws it will ask substantially what it asked last March (unless it asks that some of the rent law be repealed), namely, that these laws be amended so as not to apply to:

"a. A building and premises therein constructed or substantially reconstructed subsequent to April 1, 1920 (this to be modified as to the date of new legislation.)

"b. A building required in good faith for immediate and substantial reconstruction or complete rebuilding for dwelling purposes.

"c. A building which, in good faith, has been or shall be constructed by or sold to a corporation formed under a co-operative ownership plan for the immediate and personal occupancy by its stockholders for dwelling purposes.

"d. A building under contract of sale or ground lease, subject to existing leases and tenancies upon the date when the act shall take effect.

"e. A building which is required for immediate actual and bona fide occupancy by the landlord or his wife, children or dependents.

"f. Where, at least four months prior to the termination of a lease for one year or more, the landlord shall have served upon the tenant a written notice setting forth that the lease will not be renewed except at an increased rent, specified in the notice, and the tenant shall have failed within thirty days' after the serving of such notice, to make and serve upon the landlord, a written answer agreeing or declining to renew the lease at the increased rent required.

"After the laws were passed the reasonableness of the Real Estate Board's proposals was recognized by their adoption, in the main, by the Board of Municipal Justices, as rules for guidance in administering the laws. Unfortunately these rules, not having the force of law, are not binding on the Justices.

"These amendments would give an advantage to owners of new buildings. Rents in these new buildings must in the nature of things be high. But the amendments, because of this very fact, will get houses built and in proportion as houses are built rents will fall.

"The deplorable check to housing has brought out other suggestions for securing the prime necessity for new housing construction—namely, capital. Some of these the Real Estate Board has not yet acted on officially.

"Utilization of the State Land Bank as a medium for lending the State funds, and loaning the money of the sinking fund of New York City on bond and mortgage are among these. They may be feasible and legal.

"Priority shipments on coal and building material for housing construction may be urged.

Opposes State Production.

"The board will oppose any attempt to secure a Constitutional amendment looking to the production of housing by the State, both because this is economically unsound and because it would—and consciously on the part of the Legislature—be merely to draw a red herring across the trail. For it would be three years at least before any practical results would be had from this dangerous experiment.

"If the Legislature can devise any means to punish those who may be guilty of flagrant rent raising in residence property, without penalizing the innocent with the guilty, and if it can find a way to encourage capital, stabilize labor conditions and building material prices, it will have solved the housing problem and will deserve the thanks of the people of New York.

"Meantime there is no cure-all, no one panacea for the housing shortage. The situation calls for a number of remedies.

"One of the most important of these is for the Legislature to realize that it is fundamentally not a social but an economic problem."

Attempts to solve Great Britain's housing problem have already brought forward upward of 10,000 schemes, involving capital expenditures of more than $600,000,000, according to the report of a representative of the Foreign Trade Bureau of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York. The report says:

"The program of the Ministry of Health—complete rehousing in three years—is about one year behind, and is costing more than double the original estimates.

"What is keeping back housing at the present time is the fact that there are not enough skilled men to do even a quarter of the work wanted. The trade unions will not allow the number to be increased from the outside. The Government is using a sort of indirect compulsion by prohibiting 'luxury and unessential building,' so that if a man will not build cottages he is not allowed to build anything else.

"There are housing bond campaigns all over the country. In London subscriptions to the 6 per cent. bonds are coming in at the rate of about £100,000 a day. While the local Governments are issuing 6 per cent. bonds, the British Government charges 7 per cent. Borrowing in the ordinary way for housing schemes not financed by bonds is usually 7 per cent."

ARCHITECT AWARDS TODAY.

Winners in $5,000 Tenement Block Competition to be Announced.

Awards of $5,000 will be made today to the winners in the architectural competition for the remodelling of a typical New York tenement block to make it "a decent place to live in."

The donations for the awards were made by Vincent Astor, Alfred E. Marling and the New York Foundation. The competition was held under the auspices of the Reconstruction Commission of the State of New York and the Joint Legislative Committee on Housing, and was open to all New York architects. Forty-two entered designs. Last Thursday final decisions were made on the basis of good housing and economic practicability of the designs, and the awards will be made at 12 o'clock today at the Architectural League, 215 West Fifty-seventh Street.

SLAY SEVEN POLICE IN IRISH AFFRAY

Unionists Burn Houses.

Rioting is in progress in Lisburn as a result of the assassination of Swanzy.

An attempt was made to wreck the shop of a Sinn Fein leader within forty yards of the scene of the crime, and only intervention by Ulster Volunteers prevented it.

The crowd then attacked the residence of a Nationalist Republican, who fired from a window. His assailants returned the fire and wounded him.

The crowds were out to burn the house of every Nationalist in Lisburn. Boards were wrested from windows that previously had been smashed and fire raiders entered buildings calmly to complete their destruction. The local fire brigade declined to interfere, and the Belfast brigade showed reluctance to respond to calls, as seven hundred men from Lisburn travel daily to Belfast to work in the shipyards. A renewal of trouble here is feared.

Last night large crowds assembled outside the Cork jail and prayed for the hunger strikers there. Special prayers and masses for the men were offered in all the Catholic Churches of Cork today.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—The Central News says the Bantry courthouse was burned down Saturday evening.

DUBLIN, Aug. 22.—Dr. McCormack, of the Irish Prisoners' Board, and Dr. Kinsella, of the Maryborough Convict Prison, who were sent to Cork by the Government in connection with the hunger strikers in prison there, have received a letter signed by the Cork Brigade of the "Irish Republican Army," holding them responsible should the hunger strikers die and inviting them to resign if they disclaim responsibility for the treatment of the prisoners.

Dublin Castle announces that the doctors have recommended the release of the imprisoned men.

ACCUSE IRISH POLICE OF RUINING DAIRIES

DUBLIN, Aug. 22 (Associated Press)—The great co-operative dairying movement, started by the Irish Agricultural Organization Society, the system of which has been copied throughout the world, including the United States, is threatened with absolute ruin owing to the destruction of creameries by the police and military in reprisal for the burning of police barracks, according to George W. Russell, the writer, who, after Sir Horace Plunkett, was chiefly responsible for the success of the organization.

According to Mr. Russell, the organization has direct evidence that nineteen creameries, together with their extensive machinery and stocks of cheeses which were kept in storage while maturing, have been destroyed by either the police or the military. Others also have been burned, but the society has only circumstantial evidence as to how the fires started and is not claiming compensation for them from the British Government.

Mr. Russell, who is an enthusiast on the subject of the agricultural development of Ireland, after deploring what he termed the virtual ruin of the movement, said today:

"The British Government either is incompetent—in other words, it is unable to control its servants in Ireland—or it is an organized effort to destroy all Irish industry. Since April, when it promised to put a stop to the destruction of creameries, that destruction has increased sixfold and has resulted in driving many farmers into the Sinn Fein fold.

"The latter, while they attack the police when they are engaged in Secret Service work and the military when similarly engaged, respect the property of civilians and their courts punish those guilty of destroying property. But the British Government either is unable to or will not protect our creameries."

At the present time there are 120,000 farmers members of the co-operative creamery societies. These comprise men of all religions and politics. Politics is barred at the meetings. While it is asserted that these men might in time have had a considerable influence on the future of Ireland, it is said farmers are refusing to invest money in the societies and that the movement is facing ruin.

MANNIX EXHORTS IRISH.

Urges Them to be Calm Under the "Insult Offered Them and Me."

DUBLIN, Aug. 22.—Through The Freeman's Journal Archbishop Mannix of Australia has addressed the following message to the Irish people:

"I appeal to the Irish people to be calm and firm under the insult offered them and me. Ireland can afford to be patient for, though she is suffering much, her cause is almost won. The recent 'English naval victory' has but added fuel to the flame which it was meant to extinguish."

ROME, Aug. 22.—The Irish College here has been notified that Archbishop Mannix of Australia will be its guest during the Prelate's visit to Rome next October. It is expected that Monsignor John Hagen, rector of the college, who is now in Ireland, will come to Rome with the Archbishop and formally welcome him to the college. The Irish Dominicans, Augustinians and Franciscans have important institutions here, and together with the priests and parishioners of the Irish Church of St. Patrick, are preparing a great demonstration of sympathy and welcome for Archbishop Mannix.

It is authoritatively said here that the British Government does not desire to prevent Archbishop Mannix visiting Rome, but on the contrary has used its influence with the Vatican to hasten his arrival here, hoping that his visit to the Pope may result in moderating his aggressive anti-British sentiments.

BOSTON, Aug. 22.—The United Irish Societies of Boston at a mass meeting on the Common today protested against the seizure of Archbishop Mannix at sea by Great Britain as an act of "piracy and an assassination of liberty."

Resolutions were adopted calling upon the United States to show disapproval of "the wanton and diabolical acts of the British Government by recognizing the established Irish Republic and repudiating the League of Nations in so far as it would make America an associate with England in her crimes against the people of Ireland."

The speakers included former Mayor James M. Curley, acting Mayor Moriarity, School Committeeman O'Connor and Judge Walsh of New Jersey.

FIRMLY REFUSE TO FREE CORK'S LORD MAYOR

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—Lord Mayor MacSweney of Cork, according to latest reports, is bent on hunger-striking to the last extremity and the British authorities are stated to be equally determined to leave upon him the entire responsibility of his action.

It is pointed out that this new hunger strike campaign in which MacSweney is the central figure differs in two respects from that of which the Mountjoy Prison was the scene earlier in the year. In the Mountjoy cases it was specially urged that the hunger strikers had not been convicted, but were only detained without trial on suspicion and that they were striking partly in order to obtain the status of political prisoners. In MacSweney's case, it is argued, there is no doubt that regular political status has been accorded to him in prison, and that he has been duly convicted of offenses in which he was caught red handed.

These offenses were that he had in his possession documents pledging the Cork Corporation's allegiance to the Dail Eireann, and also a key to the police code. The latter offense is described as much more serious in its broad aspect, for in these days a Sinn Feiner has no obvious use for the key to police codes, save to organize or abet murders of police and the presumption raised against the culprit is a very serious one.

The British Home Secretary's position is that while every responsible person has a moral obligation to prevent suicide if he can, just as he has a duty to prevent murder, there are limits in both cases. The further point is made that it is impossible to admit the principle that every Sinn Feiner, no matter of what he is convicted, can obtain his liberty by resorting to a hunger strike.

The new murders of policemen, as reported from Ireland today, do not tend to ameliorate English opinion in regard to the Sinn Fein campaign methods any more than does the report that Irishmen who are endeavoring to organize a "peace conference" to find a settlement on so-called dominion lines are being threatened with assassination.

DUBLIN, Aug. 22.—Sir Stanley Harrington, leader of the Cork deputation to the Premier, and Captain Harrison, Secretary of the "Irish Peace Conference," have sent protests to the Government against the treatment of Lord Mayor MacSweney and other hunger strikers.

Archbishop Wallace, in forwarding a $100 subscription for the relief of Catholics excluded from employment in Belfast, says:

"The infamies in Belfast are only possible because they are openly tolerated by the English ministry now ruling only by the strong hand of force in this country."

Naval Officers Expect a Record-Breaking Number of Visitors During Stay Here.

Persons in the Sunday afternoon throng on Riverside Drive did not need a nautical eye to distinguish on the Hudson the trim battleships and destroyers of the Atlantic Fleet, home from manoeuvres, from two hulks that once were fighting ships of the Imperial German Navy. The torn and battered fast cruiser Frankfort and the battleship Ostfriesland were quickly singled out, in spite of the white figures in the American uniform who moved fore and aft upon their decks. Three German destroyers were tied up at piers, and few saw them.

Crowds which sought a glimpse of the German prizes yesterday turned their attention to the ships and men of the United States. Five thousand sailors came ashore for forty-eight hours' shore leave, and a like number will have liberty today.

Between 2 and 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon hundreds of harbor craft—motor boats whose owners thought of turning a penny instead of a Sunday's outing—plied between the shore and the ships. The battleships Utah, Pennsylvania and Arizona are lying off the foot of Ninety-sixth Street. The Delaware is off West 129th Street and the Florida off West Seventy-ninth Street, moored not far from the Frankfurt. The fleet steamed into the harbor early on Saturday.

While here the men will have little work to do. Leaves will be given freely and an interesting program, including the fleet boxing tournament for the championship of the Atlantic fleet, has been arranged. The bouts will be held on the Arizona, but the date has not been announced.

Visitors will be welcomed in the afternoon on all the ships during the fleets' stay here. Men assigned to escort civilians about the big fighters said they looked for a record breaking number of visitors this week. Several destroyers came in with the big fighters. Others, with the submarines and air detachments, will visit this port in October.

This month will also see much activity at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, as several of the vessels will be overhauled in drydock.

GERMAN SHIP TOUR IS OFF.

Captain Hellweg Lays Condition to Vandalism of Former Crews.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—Owing to the deliberate damage wrought by the crews to the engines and other vital parts of the five ex-German warships recently brought to this country, necessitating extensive repairs to make them possible of operation, none will be sent on an exhibition tour of coastal cities, as the Navy Department had hoped to do.

In making this announcement today the Navy Department included a statement by Captain J. F. Hellweg, commanding officer of the convoy, asserting that even the dreadnought Ostfriesland, the only one of the five ships capable of making the transatlantic trip under her own power, was in such condition on arrival at New York that it would be hazardous to send her to sea again.

Captain Hellweg attributed the condition of the ships to "deliberate vandalism" on the part of their former German crews. "The gutted condition in which we found these vessels on taking them over cannot be exaggerated," he said. "What had not been stolen was wrecked. The vandalism indicated a very careful preparation and the usual thoroughness of the Huns in execution.

"Not only did the German crews commit obvious depredations," Captain Hellweg concluded, "but their preparations for future trouble by removing sections of pipes and valves were responsible for numerous breakdowns in the Ostriesland's machinery on the trip across."

By bringing back on the deck of the Ostriesland two twelve-inch and two fourteen-inch guns which had formed a reserve for the land batteries of the American Navy during the war, Captain Hellweg estimated that more than twice the amount appropriated to bring the ex-German ships across, $60,000, was saved in their transportation.

DYING, KILLS FUGITIVE.

Wounded North Carolina Police Chief Shoots from Automobile.

WINSTON SALEM, N. C., Aug. 22.—Police Chief Matthews of Walnut Cove, N. C., and Walter Martin of Madison are dead and a negro whose name has not been ascertained is seriously wounded as the result of a battle in a road near Walnut Cove today between a sheriff's posse and three prisoners escaping from Madison.

The shooting was the result of a quarrel at a dance hall at which, observers assert, the negro insisted on dancing with white girls. A disturbance was created and several Madison men, including Martin, and the negro, were arrested. On the way to the Mayor's office they escaped in an automobile.

Chief Matthews formed one of a posse called to pursue them. They were overtaken near Walnut Cove. A summons to surrender met with a fusillade, and Matthews was shot through the stomach. Crumpled up in his seat, he shot and killed the negro, who was trailed for a couple of miles by blood, but was lost in a swamp. Bloodhounds have been orderede to the scene.

LINER HAS SMALLPOX CASE.

400 Cabin Passengers Vaccinated—2,002 in Steerage Go to Island.

When the Italian liner Dante Alighieri arrived yesterday in Quarantine from Naples and Geona the health authorities learned that a case of smallpox had appeared among the 2,002 steerage passengers. As a consequence all the first and second class passengers, numbering 400, had to be vaccinated, although they had undergone the operation before the ship left Italy on Aug. 8. The steerage passengers were sent to Hoffman Island, where they will be detained several days for observation.

Late in the afternoon the vaccinated cabin passengers were taken on the tender General Putnam with their hand baggage and landed at Pier 25, North River, foot of Beech Street, where the Dante Alighieri will go today after she has been fumigated and her crew vaccinated.

The passengers said there was a good deal of unrest in Italy and strikes followed each other in rapid succession in the big cities. They said the Dante Alighieri was detained three days in Genoa because the firemen didn't like the face of the leader who had been selected by the Seamen's Union to accompany them on the voyage.

One of the first cabin passengers was Major Charles M. Meehan of Geneva, N. Y., who for three years has been the Director of Administration for the American Red Cross in Italy. The Major said he believed the Italian people were much misunderstood in the United States and he intended to lecture on the subject and also on Dante, who told the true story of the Italian race.

Sylvio C. Lioni, for six years United States Vice Consul in Florence, returned with his wife, having retired from the Consular service to take a position with the Italian Discount and Trust Company in this city. He said the strikes in Italy, though violent for a time, burned out after much talk. Mr. Lioni added that the reports about banditry in Italy was false and that it was as safe to go about there as it is in New York City.

Michael Auer, a young Russian violinist and a grandson of Leopold Auer, the violin teacher of Mischa Elman and other prominent musicians, arrived on the Dante Alighieri to join his grandfather, who sent him the passage money and offered to send him to college. The boy said his father was killed in the Russo-Japanese war, his mother died last Spring and his two brothers were in Finland fighting the Bolsheviki.

FIND WOMAN'S BODY OFF STATEN ISLAND

SUICIDE SAYS EXAMINER

Victim Apparently Forty Years Old and Was Expensively Dressed.

The deep waters fringing the city of 5,000,000 yesterday gave up another mysterious tragedy when the turning tides tossed the body of a woman, a suicide, onto the rocks under the guns of Fort Wadsworth, Staten Island.

Plainly a woman of refinement and evidently from a circle where her means had been ample, the harbor's latest castaway was lying last night in the the island's Morgue, unidentified, and with the police seeking to tear away the veil of mystery with only a name and a number in one of her dancing slippers—both the marks of the maker—to aid them in their quest.

The body was discovered shortly after 10 o'clock in the morning wedged in a cleft of the rocks forming a natural buttress to the southern end of the army post. William Conklin of Stapleton, Staten Island, was running close to shore in his motor boat, making for a St. George pier, where a party of friends were awaiting him. As he rounded a jutting point of the rocks he saw something white lying on the shore. At first he mistook it for just a bundle of the flotsam that sifts in from outlying steamships. But looking closer he saw a hand sagging over the rock's edge.

Conklin swung his craft around and went in. He was unable to run his boat all the way in to the shore, but throwing ashore a kedge anchor he hopped over the side and waded to the rock. Lying face down he found the body of a woman. Unable to carry his burden out to his boat, Conklin made a line fast to the body and towed into Stapleton, where he notified the police.

The body was at once taken to the New Springfield Morgue, where the police made an examination. At that time they were unable to judge how long the woman had been in the water or whether she had died by murder or self-destruction. Apparently about 40 years old, the woman had clear-cut features, weighed about 135 pounds and was about five feet five inches in height. Her hair was black and abundant; her eyes, blue. She was clad in a white silk waist, her silk skirt was black and her garments were of expensive texture.

The woman wore no rings, but in their examination to see whether the marks of rings were still discoverable on her fingers the police found that her hands indicated that they never had been put to hard tasks. The nails, despite the effects of submersion, displayed the results of careful and consistent manicuring.

Pursuing their search for something that would aid them in finding who she was, the police finally found a clue in the leather lining of one of her light slippers. Written in almost illegible ink across the leather the police found "Alfred Kohn, 505 Fifth Avenue—Aug. 15." This, the police established, was the name of the maker of the slippers and, seemingly, the date of their purchase, the markings, they believe, were put in by the wearer herself. Aside from this slender hope, the police admitted they were utterly without aid in seeking out the woman's name and home.

In an effort to establish facts that might help in the search, an autopsy was performed at the New Springville morgue at 7 o'clock by Dr. George P. Mord, Deputy Medical Examiner. At the close of the operation Dr. Mord declared his belief that "it was a clear case of suicide." As nearly as he could judge, the doctor continued, the woman had been in the water about eight hours. He declared that he had failed to find a single mark indicating violeince, and that the condition of the lungs had shown the woman died from drowning.

MYLES STANDISH GETS CHILD

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Aug. 22.—In a fight to obtain possession of his child, who was taken from him over two years ago by the courts of Michigan when they granted his wife a divorce on the ground of non-support, Myles W. Standish, a direct descendent of Miles Standish of the Mayflower, has obtained a decree from Supreme Court Justice Morschauser awarding Standish the custody of the child. The Court also held that a person from whim a divorce is obtained does not forever lose custody of the child or children of the union set aside by law.

By the order of the court the child will be delivered by Mrs. Hazel Truitt, an aunt, at the office of Lee Parsons Davis, the attorney for Mr. Standish and the District Attorney of Westchester County, on Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Standish obtained a divorce from Myles W. Standish in 1917. She later married John J. Carr of Norfolk, Va. She died in 1918 and left the custody of the child to her sister, Mrs. Hazel Truitt, who now resides at White Plains.

FIRST RURAL CLINIC TO OPEN AT GOSHEN

Consultation Innovation to be Under Direction of the State Health Department.

TO AID COUNTRY DOCTOR

Staff of Medical Advisers to Include Twenty Specialists—Many State Bodies Co-operating in the Work.

The first rural consultation clinic to be established in the United States will open tomorrow at Goshen, under direction of the New York State Health Department. If the three-day session by noted physicians proves a success visiting clinics will be established in other localities which are without X-ray machines and complete laboratory equipment.

The clinic is primarily for the purpose of providing assistance to rural physicians which will lead to the correct diagnosis of obscure and baffling diseases. It is expected, however, that at least 500 patients from all parts of Orange County will be sent by their physicians to take advantage of this opportunity. The staff of medical advisers will include twenty specialists in various branches of medicine and surgery, assisted by a corps of nurses. The clinic which will be held at the Goshen Health Department is subdivided into the following groups: Diseases of children, diseases of adult life, diseases of women, mental and nervous disorders, orthopedic surgery, venereal diseases and oral surgery.

Although the State Health Department is to conduct the clinic, the State Department of Education, State Charities Aid Association, American Red Cross, State Hospital Commission and Commission for Feeble Minded are co-operating. In referring to the plan, which this State is the first to carry out, Dr. Matthias Nicoll, Deputy Commissioner, said yesterday:

"Large sections of the State lack not only dispensary and clinic service, but in many cases they are without physicians. Of fifty-seven counties of the State, exclusive of New York City, twenty-one have no clinic or dispensary service of any sort, and nine others have only one clinic and that for a single specialty. The merging in some places of community health activities into group clinics at health centers with their attendant laboratory, public health nurse and social service, and, in other places, the enlargement of the single clinic to include diagnosis of a wider range of physical disability will tend to bridge the gap now existing between the forces engaged in the treatment of disease and those engaged in its prevention."

Among the physicians who will take part in the clinic are: Dr. T. Ordway, dean and professor of medicine, Albany Medical College; Dr. H. L. K. Shaw, President-elect, American Child Hygiene Association, and professor of diseases of children, Albany Medical College; Dr. J. F. Nagle, attending physician, Bellevue Hospital; Dr. E. J. Wynkoop, professor of diseases of children, Syracuse Medical College; Dr. G. W. Partridge, Bellevue and Post Graduate Hospitals, New York City; Dr. C. D. Post, professor of medicine, Syracuse Medical College; Dr. Charles M. Dunne, oral surgeon, Norwich, N. Y.; Dr. F. W. Barrows, State Medical Insuector of Schools; Dr. L. W. Hubbard, Dr. M. F. Lent and Dr. W. E. Youland, State Health Department; Dr. A. S. Moore, Dr. W. E. Kelly and Dr W. A. Schmitz, Middletown State Hospital; Dr. W. O. Sandy and Dr. E W. Fuller, State Commission for Feeble Minded, and Dr. C. B. Witter, General Electric Company.

PEDDLERS POSE AS SOLDIERS

During the last week men wearing khaki uniforms without any army insignia have been soliciting passengers in subway trains to buy small paper-covered books for twenty-five cents, or fifty cents if the person was well dressed, under the pretense that the profits were to be used for the benefit of wounded soldiers. Their address, especially to women, was more like a command than a request, and it was easy to discern that they were not soldiers.

The police have issued warnings frequently that such men have no right to solicit money from the public and do not represent American wounded soldiers in any way.

Two of these pseudo soldiers got on board the Red Star liner Lapland just before she left Pier 61, North River, on Saturday with a big crowd of Americans bound for Southampton and Antwerp on board, and began to importune the passengers. They were soon observed by officers and ordered off the ship.

SECRET OF SING SING PAPER IS REVEALED

AND CHAPIN, TOO, OFFENDED

Publication Then Was Stopped—Governor Is Expected to Decide Dispute Over the Bulletin.

His friends say that Charlie Wilson, the most popular bigamist in Sing Sing, meant no harm when he dashed off a piece for the Sing Sing Bulletin, entitled "The Man With the Seven Wives." None of the other residents of the place refused to eat in the same room with Charlie because he began his article thus: "A good wife is a jewel. I have been a jewel collector."

And, so far as is known, all Sing Sing has enjoyed reading the series, "My Forty Years as a Newspaper Man," by Charles E. Chapin, editor of the Bulletin.

But it was learned yesterday that the two articles mentioned are two of the reasons why Charles F. Rattigan, Superintendent of Prisons, had his recent chat with Warden Lewis E. Hawes that resulted in no appearance of the Bulletin this month, and in a fight that now is being waged, not only to restore the Bulletin to its former activities as a prison newspaper, but also to settle whether or not it is to be edited in Albany or in Sing Sing.

Expect Governor to Decide.

Indications were yesterday that a decision by officials of the State Prison Department and of Sing Sing will be reached at a meeting today or tomorrow. Furthermore, best information was that Governor Smith himself will decide who is right—and, conversely, who is wrong. The State Prison Commission had announced yesterday that it had asked Mr. Rattigan to allow the Bulletin to continue.

Members of the commission, it was learned, told Mr. Rattigan they knew that he had not ordered the Bulletin to suspend. They did tell him, however, that discontinuance of publication followed his direction to the Warden either to drop Editor Chapin, submit proofs of all articles intended to be printed, or to suspend publication.

Information also was that the committee members reminded Mr. Rattigan that they had seen letters written by him to the Warden in which fault was found with articles in the Bulletin, and suggested as one alternative that publication could be suppressed by the Warden.

Opinions of many of those interested in Sing Sing—from the outside—that the suspension of the Bulletin was only the outward sign of a more serious controversy, which is whether or not Sing Sing is to be run, so far as its immediately local affairs are concerned, from Albany, or from the Warden's office, were expressed in a letter to the Governor, made public yetserday by Captain T. A. Brady, U. S. A., retired.

Brady a Crusader for Reform.

Captain Brady is known as a crusader for prison reform. His testimony largely was instrumental in causing the removal as Warden of Sing Sing of T. J. McCormick. His letter said, in part:

"For years every Warden of Sing Sing, including even some incompetent political hacks, has been permitted to publish the Sing Sing newspaper unhampered from Albany. It is therefore amazing that interlopers are trying to take this time-honored privilege away from one of the most progressive and efficient Wardens Sing Sing has ever had, and, Heaven knows, it has had enough.

"Having formerly spent several years in the newspaper publishing business I know whereof I speak when I say that under Major Lawes the Sing Sing newspaper has been made a hummer instead of the worthless affair it was before Lawes put it in skilled hands and built it up. Now comes a demolition squad anxious to tear it down. It is perfectly apparent that, as Warden Kirchwey is quoted as saying, 'a Sing Sing newspaper is a purely local enterprise, and must be run from Sing Sing to achieve its object.' I therefore ask your Excellency to see to it that Warden Lawes is given a free hand to get out the August issue of the newspaper at once.

"I believe that the public will insist that Major Lawes have a free hand in all matters of routine at Sing Sing. Of course, he is under orders of the Prison Department heads in Albany, which is not his fault, but his misfortune. But so long as he makes no aggregious blunders he should be permitted to work out his own salvation at Sing Sing and go on with the good work he has undertaken.

"He has had the co-operation of the inmates and the support of the public, to be sure, but the man doesn't live who can run Sing Sing with this continual 'boring from within.' There is room for reform in the Prison Department, and, maybe, well up toward the top. I know you have done much good for our prisons, my dear Governor, and you are sincere in your efforts to make better persons of the inmates therein. You deserve praise for your good work. Keep it up by ordering the Sing Sing Bulletin restored without hindrance or handicap."

FeFars an "Intolerable Situation."

Captain Brady further asserted that an "intolerable situation" would result if success crowned "a brazen effort * * * to have the Sing Sing newspaper edited, made up and censored from Albany."

John S. Kennedy, President, and Leon Weinstock, Vice President, of the State Prison Commission, were leaders in insisting to Superintendent Rattigan that he allow Warden Lawes to run the Sing Sing Bulletin in his own way.

Warden Lawes also received yesterday assurance from the Federation of Women's Clubs of New York City that the organization wished to help restore the Bulletin to its old style. The Warden, who has refused to discuss the situation at all, repeated yesterday that he had nothing to say.

Meanwhile subscribers to the Bulletin, which should have made its appearance for August on the 15th, are wondering if they ever will have a chance to finish Editor Chapin's serial, or to stay awake another night reading more inside information on matrimony from Sing Sing's leading authority on the subject. Most of them believe they will.

DRY CONGRESS TO MEET.

Nearly Twenty Nations to be Represented in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22. — Nearly twenty nations will be represented by speakers at the meetings of the fifteenth international congress against alcoholism, which convenes in Washington, Sept. 21.

The congress, which was to have been held in the United States in 1915, but was postponed annually since then because of the World War, will open with a pageant on the steps of the Capitol depicting the steps in the fight in the United States against alcoholism.

Prominent among the speakers listed on the tentative program are Dr. Dazynska of Poland, recognized as one of the leading woman physicians of Europe; Senator Bjorkman, President of the Swedish Senate; Miss Crommelin, the Dutch labor leader; William Jennings Bryan, Secretary of the Navy Daniels, Attorney General Palmer, Prof. J. Gonser, German educator; and Governors Allen of Kansas, Dorsey of Georgia and Milliken of Maine.

WOMAN JUMPS UNDER TRAIN

Note Pinned on Suicide Said Man Broke Her Heart.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Aug. 22.—Worry over a love affair caused Miss Fanny Balatin, a native of Austria, 32 years old, to commit suicide last night by leaping in front of a west bound electric train soon after six o'clock. Death was instantaneous.

A letter pinned to her breast read, "Some man has broken my heart." A photograph of Salvatore Claro, of Portchester, was also found in her clothing.

Commuters and others had noticed Miss Balatin sitting on a mail cart on the platform. The engineer said she jumped when the train was about twenty feet from the station. She had been for some time a second kitchen girl employed at the estate of Commodore C. Benedict. Her only relative is a brother-in-law, Mr. Cummin, of New York City.

Husted Summer Home Robbed.

PEEKSKILL, Aug. 22.—Trooper James Montgomery of the State Constabulary investigated today a burglary reported on the Summer place of Representative James Husted in Oregon, a few miles from Peekskill. The robber visited the residence a few days ago and tested a window to determine if the catch was working. The marks were seen on the window pane. It was supposed the burglar had been frightened off. He returned, however, and entered through the same window. He lugged away clothing and other valuables, the police say, worth over $700.

LAMBS WHISKY INQUIRY STILL ON, SHEVLIN SAYS

Federal Supervising Prohibition Agent James Shevlin said last night that his investigation to discover whether or not John J. McGraw bought whisky "from or in" The Lambs early on the morning of Sunday, Aug. 8, still was under way.

"McGraw said that he got whisky in The Lambs," Mr. Shevlin said. "If we find that The Lambs sold the liquor the evidence will be turned over to the United States Attorney for action. If there is no evidence to show that the club knew of the reported sale of liquor, that will end the matter. Several important witnesses have yet to be seen."

Mr. Shevlin added that up to last night nothing had been discovered in contradiction of assertions of officials of The Lambs that if any whisky or other liquor was sold in the club house, it was a sale by a private individual and had nothing to do with The Lambs as an organization.

The case against L. Ernest Smith, clerk of The Lambs, who was arrested and held for trial following an alleged attempt to remove fifteen cases of alcoholic beverages from the club, further has complicated the situation. Smith's lawyers have stated that they won't let their client be made a "goat."

Meanwhile John C. Slavin, fun maker in Broadway musical comedies, who was taken to St. Luke's Hospital from in front of McGraw's apartment that same Sunday morning, suffering from a fractured skull, continued to improve, according to reports of doctors yesterday. District Attorney Swann has not revealed the name of the man who assaulted Slavin, although he has said it is known to him.

McGraw is on the road with the Giants baseball club, of which he is manager and part owner, so indications are that he is strongly convalescent of the concussion of the brain, black eye and other bruises that he received in the row in The Lambs that precipitated the trouble. William H. Boyd, Broadway leading man, who, it is admitted, fought with McGraw after, according to The Lambs, McGraw had assailed him, continues to stand pat on the official statement of The Lambs, which put the blame on McGraw.

PONZI TO ANSWER LARCENY CHARGES

Today's Hearing Merely Formal, Pending Resumption of Bankruptcy Case Tomorrow.

BOSTON, Aug. 22.—Charles Ponzi, whose dealings in millions are now under investigation by Federal and State authorities, must answer in the Municipal Court tomorrow to charges of larceny brought against him by the State. According to authoritative announcement tonight, it is probable that he will not appear in person, but will enter an appearance through his attorneys, and that a continuance of the case will be granted.

When he was arrested on the State warrant on Aug. 13, Ponzi's hearing was set for tomorrow, but because action by the Federal authorities takes precedence over that by the State, anything more than perfunctory action must await the disposition of the Federal charges, it was explained by State officers.

He is being held on a Federal warrant, charging use of the mails to defraud, for the September term of the United States District Court.

Ponzi will again appear before a referee in bankruptcy and the receivers appointed by the Federal authorities in the bankruptcy division of the Federal court on Tuesday, when his examination, begun on Saturday, will be resumed.

In order that he may refresh his mind as to the financial transactions in which he was involved, Edwin L. Pride, the accountant who has conducted the audit for the Federal authorities, will visit him at the East Cambridge jail tomorrow and give him an opportunity to go over the books.

Ponzi spent an uneventful day in jail today. He was visited by his wife and his mother, who brought him a special Sunday dinner, so that he did not indulge in prison fare. In the afternoon he exercised in the jail and chatted with other prisoners.

Boys Escape; Reformatory Closed.

PEEKSKILL, Aug. 22.—Because so many prisoners escaped, the New York Training School for Boys, a farm reformatory at Yorktown, has been closed, it was announced today. No more prisoners will be sent there. It had been used for four years as an "overflow auxiliary" to the reformatory on Randall's Island. Prisoners were sent from the island by Supt. E. C. Barber to work the farm at Yorktown, where there are no walls or fences.

PRIEST REJOICES; FINDS LOST CHURCH

WIRE CLUES RUN IT DOWN

Country-Wide Inquiries Invariably Elicited the Response: "It Has Just Left Here."

The Rev. Father Ward G. Meehan, rector of the newly organized parish of St. Joan of Arc, at Jackson Heights, Long Island, yesterday announced to his expectant congregation gathered in the Casino, which is situated in a beautiful grove that tops a gentle eminence on the outskirts of the Heights, that the mysterious wanderings of their peripatetic church edifice were about over. He had succeeded in locating a good deal of it, he said, in the railroad yards at Elmhurst, less than a mile from the spot where concrete foundations await its erection.

It has been quietly reposing in the yards since Aug. 9.

In the meantime, Father Meehan had been wiring more or less frantically to all points between this city and Chicago for news of his missing church. The search had been going on for nearly a month, and the mystery had deepened week by week. The builders of the church assured the rector that it had been shipped on time, and cheering telegrams were received periodically from such points as Cleveland and Buffalo to the effect that the church had passed through these cities in safety and was on its way.

The days passed and the foundations of church and rectory in Fillmore Avenue began to look bleak and lonely for lack of the structures intended to surmount them. In the matter of the lost rectory, Father Meehan discovered a new source of anxiety. He had established a temporary rectory at 112 Twenty-Third Street, but he found he would have to vacate it on Sept. 1. He then realized that the general housing situation was likely to involve him in the meshes of the net that is ever drawing closer and upsetting so many calculations in domestic economy.

With a patience schooled in France as a chaplain with the fiftieth Regiment, and the persistence of desperation, Father Meehan last week set about a more minute inquiry. He shortened his lines of communication, so to speak, and sent telegrams to the smaller intermediate points. He was rewarded with the assuring news from all points that "church passed this point all right;" until by Saturday he had succeeded in trailing it almost into his own front yard—that is, part of it; there are two more carloads of church and rectory still to be heard from, but the success of persistent pursuit has raised the young rector's optimism to par.

The parish of St. Joan of Arc was organized coincidently with the beatification of the Maid of Orleans. Father Meehan announced at the first service held in the Casino that the Queensboro Corporation had donated ground for the temporary church and rectory; that he had ordered them from one of those Middle West firms that turn out ready-made any sort of building from a hen coop to a church; that the structures would cost $20,000, and that, Deo volente, the congregation would occupy the new edifice on Aug. 15.

On succeeding Sundays the pastor reported progress and the start of the fabricated buildings toward their destination. Two weeks ago he reported that he had been notified that the church had reached and passed Buffalo. A week ago yesterday he told his congregation, concealing his growing anxiety beneath his habitual cloak of cheerful optimism, that he was still assured that the church was this side of Buffalo, but that its exact whereabouts was unknown.

"The Lord knew it was going to rain today," he said, "and He did not want us to have to enter our new home in the rain."

Father Meehan expects that the church will be all assembled and ready for services long before the carnival and lawn party which his parishoners will give from Sept. 21 to 26 to help pay for it.

He expects to build a permanent structure on the site of the temporary church within five years at a cost to exceed $250,000.

SCHOLARSHIPS FOR 2,000.

Dr. Finley Announces List of Those Eligible in This State.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 22.—Dr. John H. Finley, State Commissioner of Education, tonight announced the names of about 2,000 students in the State who are eligible for university scholarships. Under a new law each county is entitled to five times as many scholarships as there are Assembly districts in the county. The scholarship entitles the holder to $100 a year for four years while pursuing an approved college course in the State. The appointments to scholarships in each county will be made from the lists now ready in the order of standing.

Schenectady County has only nine eligible candidates, Chenango only four, and Schuyler only two. These vacancies will be filled by appointment of candidates from other counties where there are more candidates than scholarships.

FOCH WILL VISIT THE UNITED STATES

TARDIEU TELLS OF AID TO US

Says France Furnished 80 Per Cent. of Our Airplanes and 60 Per Cent. of Our Guns.

METZ, Aug. 22.—Marshal Foch will visit the United States when the European situation permits him to take a vacation of the required length. The Marshal made this statement to Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty of the American Knights of Columbus at the banquet last night, at which covers were laid for 1,000, after Mr. Flaherty had extended a formal invitation to the Marshal on behalf of the Knights.

Marshal Foch was the principal speaker at the banquet, which was attended by the Burgomasters of thirty Lorraine cities and towns and Minister of Justice Lhopiteau.

Captain André Tardieu, one of the speakers, caused some surprise when he said:

"You may not know that France provided you with 80 per cent. of your airplanes, 60 per cent. of your guns and howitzers, and 50 per cent. of your war material. When you return to America and hear the opinion expressed that France paid 4,500,000,000 francs in Fraince paid 4,500,000,000 francs in 1914 and 20,000,000,000 this year."

VERDUN, Aug. 22.—The American Knights of Columbus attended mass in Verdun this morning. Afterward Bishop Ginesti presented to Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty a solid gold monstrance which was struck by a piece of shell in the course of the bombardment of Verdun.

Marshal Pétain entertained the Knights at luncheon. In an address he said he welcomed the Knights as successors of the American army, for which he had profound respect.

Later in the day in the presence of the Knights Marshal Pétain laid the cornerstone of an ossuary, where the bones of thousands of unidentified bodies of men killed by the German gunfire will be gathered together on the Douaumont field.

During the day the Americans visited the American cemetery at Romagne and went sightseeing on the battlefields around Verdun. They also visited the famous underground city of Verdun. The Knights will leave here tomorrow for Strasbourg.

MRS. WILSON'S GOWN SHOWN

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—A Washington dispatch to The Chicago Tribune says:

"An evening gown worn by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson has just been added to the collection of gowns worn by wives of the Presidents, as preserved in the United States National Museum. The dress, mounted on a model, is of black velvet, trimmed with jet and lined with electric blue silk. It was worn at a Pan American ball in Washington soon after Mrs. Wilson's marriage to the President.

"Mrs. Wilson, it has been learned, arranged the gown on the figure herself, draping it to her own satisfaction. The figure has been placed in a glass case and completes a collection of gowns worn on historic occasions by wives of the Presidents from the time of Martha Washington."

Selling goods to kings!

YOU don't know much about real conditions in Europe. The newspapers don't tell you; maybe they can't. The diplomats don't tell you; maybe they don't want to. Here's a man who knows and can tell; and he does.

Samuel M. Vauclain, president Baldwin Locomotive Works, went to Europe to sell locomotives; and to find out what the business situation really is. He did both.

In SYSTEM for September, he says:

> "The greatest need in Europe is transportation. People are willing to work if they have something to work with. There is food, if it could be transported.
> "Gifts of goods and excessive loans will retard. The attitude, 'Here are hammer and chisel; get to work,' will help. We have sold locomotives only where they could help to pay for themselves."

He bartered with royalty and ministers of state, locomotives for oil and wheat. He visited France, Switzerland, Austria, Poland, Roumania, Serbia, Italy. You want to know what the president of the Baldwin Locomotive found out first hand and told his friends. Your business may not reach to Europe, but Europe may reach your business.

Get a copy of September SYSTEM. Read Mr. Vauclain's letters—"Business in Europe Today." Notice the other articles you will want to read in this issue. SYSTEM is the magazine for business men who are interested in business. 25 cents at the news-stand; or $3 for a year's subscription.

What the theatre has taught me about selling

When you go to the theatre you're a "customer"; John Golden, producer of "Lightnin'" and other successful plays, describes how he studies his customers. He has found interesting points about how people buy; points that count in business.

A. B. Farquhar writes about the relations between employer and employee in 1858; he tells the lessons he learned when mechanics gave their best for 90 cents a day. Speaking of the "8-hour day" he says, "It's better to calculate work by results instead of hours." Read "My 64 years in business" in SYSTEM for September.

More profits by lower prices

The Yellow Cab Co. of Chicago has proved that it could be done. "People use our service now," says John Hertz, "because it is comfortable and reliable; not because it is cheap. The price is a side issue." Finding out what people really want to pay for has an immediate value for every business today.

Selling production to our workers

The Jobbers Overall Company lost money for a while; but they learned from that experience that "quantity production must be continuous"; and that the best way to get it was to "sell" the idea to their workers. Read how they get as much production in five days as formerly in six. It's a subject you can't get too much of today.

You can do business better with SYSTEM than without it. That's why it's read by a quarter million business men.

GREAT APPLE CROP KEPT FROM PUBLIC

HAVE 40,000 CARS TO SELL

While consumers in this city continue to pay fancy prices for apples, up-State fruit growers have complained to market officials here that the price offered them by the dealers is not sufficient to cover the expenses of picking. Up-State growers assert that the apple industry in this State, by far the greatest apple-growing State in the Union, is being seriously threatened on account of the low prices offered by the dealers, who, in turn, exact fancy prices from their customers.

Commissioner of Public Markets Edwin J. O'Malley a few days ago received a telegram from growers at Morton, N. Y., in which an appeal was made that something be done to assure a better price to the producers and at the same time save the apple crop for the consumers. The telegram was signed by Frank M. Bradley, President, and Seth J. T. Bush, Secretary, of the New York Federation of Agriculture. It read:

"Farmers of New York State have 40,000 carloads of apples to sell, the finest ever grown. Approximately 1,000 cars ready to ship now. The price offered the grower, only one cent a pound or $1.50 a barrel, will not pay picking expense. Do your people in New York want any of this fruit? Unless something can be done to increase the demand and thereby secure for the grower a market for his fruit and price that will cover cost of production, there will probably be a couple of million bushels of fruit wasted in this State.

Says Remedy Must Be Found.

"A remedy must be found for a condition which gives the producer one cent and charges the consumer 25 cents. We also have pears, plums and peaches.

"Can your Department of Markets stimulate the demand for fruit by giving the people of New York City the facts?"

Peter H. Alnor, President of the New York Retail Grocers' Association, expressed surprise last night when he learned that the up-State growers had so many apples ready for shipment, as indicated in the telegram to Mr. O'Malley. He said that most of the apples which have been received here this season from up-State have been of inferior quality, though some selected grades are now coming in. He said that the hand-picked apples sell at wholesale for $1.50 a $2 for a bushel hamper of fifty pounds. These apples, he said, retail at 10 cents a pound or three pounds for 25 cents. He said that he did not know of any section of the city where these apples are offered at more than 10 cents a pound.

Mr. Alnor said that he saw peddlers at Columbus Avenue and 100th Street Saturday selling eight and ten pounds of apples for 25 cents. These were the average apples that come from up-State, he said, and are probably those that fall from the tree and deteriorate very rapidly. This grade of apples, he said, can not be handled in the stores, but can be sold by peddlers who get rid of them in one day.

The New York State apples now on the market, Mr. Alnor said, are not used very much for eating purposes. The eating apples, he said, come from the West and are handled on a margin of about 1 cent an apple. The margin is less on this class of fruit, he said, because there is virtually no waste, as all this Western fruit is standardized. In this State the apples on top are almost invariably superior in quality to those on the lower layers.

New York State, it is estimated, will produce upward of one-fifth of all the apples grown in the United States this year. Arrivals of apples in this city from all sections, including points outside of the State, up to last Tuesday, were 3,262 cars, as compared with 2,664 cars for the same period last year. Notwithstanding the big supply on the market, and the still greater quantity awaiting shipment, the prices to the consumer continued very high. An instance of the high prices to the consumer is shown by the statement of Dr. Robert Grimshaw that prior to his "sandwich men" demonstration last week apples that cost the dealer 1 2-3 cents a pound were retailing at 15 cents a pound. Later they were reduced to 10 cents a pound, which, he remarked, was still entirely too much. In other sections they are selling at even higher prices.

The total apple crop for the United States for commercial purposes for 1920 was estimated by the United States Department of Agriculture to be 4,000,000 barrels more than last year. Below is given the estimated yield of the ten States which are expected to have the largest 1920 yield. The table also gives the 1919 yield, as well as the five-year average of each State. The States are arranged in order of probable yield for this year:

New York	5,600,000	13,000,000	8,767,000
Pennsylvania	2,637,000	5,900,000	4,743,000
Washington	7,730,000	5,070,000	4,968,000

Review of Market Situation.

In his review of the market situation for the last week Herschel H. Jones, Director of the New York office of the State Division of Foods and Markets, has the following relative to apples, which should be especially interesting in view of the situation developing up-State and the high retail prices for this fruit:

"The receipts of apples in bushel hampers from up-river sections were quite plentiful, and offerings from other nearby and Southern producing sections very liberal. The bulk of the fruit arriving was ordinary stock, being chiefly small sized and of poor color. Fancy, large-sized, hand-picked apples of either color in very small proportion of the general supply. The demand was slightly better at end of the week, especially for best stock of both colors and particularly William's Red and Twenty-Ounce. Market fairly steady for best stock, but slightly weaker for ordinary, with the bulk of the sales of various varieties being in the range from $1.25 to $1.75 per bushel hamper.

"Up-state and other offerings, in bushel hampers, hand-picked fruit, per hamper, Northwestern Greenings, mostly $1.90 to $2. Rambo, best, $1.50 to $1.75; ordinary, $1.25. Wealthy, best, $2 to $2.25; ordinary, $1.50 to $1.75. Gravenstein, best, $1.50 to $1.75; poor, $1 to $1.25. Maiden Blush, $1.25 to $1.50. Orange Pippin, mostly $1.75. Dutchess, best, $1.50 to $1.75; a few small sales Extra Fancy, $2; ordinary, $1.25. Starr, $1.50 to $1.75; ordinary, $1.25. Twenty-Ounce, best, $2 to $2.25; ordinary, $1.75. English Codling, best, $1.75 to $2.25; poor, $1.50. Sour and sweet Boughs, $1.25 to $1.50. Strawberry, $1.25 to $1.50. Transparent (yellow), $1 to $1.50. Astrachans (red), best, $1.25 to $1.50; ordinary, $1. Yellow Harvest, $1 to $1.25. Beitegheimer, best, $2.25 to $2.50; ordinary, $1.75. William's Red, best, $2.25 to $2.50; a few small sales as high as $2.75; ordinary, $1.75 to $2.25. Haglow, $1.25 to $1.50. Summer Pippin, $1.50 to $1.75; ordinary, $1.25. Alexander, best, $2 to $2.50; ordinary, $1.50 to $1.75.

"Ordinary stock, small size, consisting of windfalls, wormy and bruised fruit, various varieties, in bushel hampers, best, per hamper, 75c to $1; poor, as low as 50c.

"Arrivals in double headed barrels, light but steadiy becoming more plentiful. Good demand and movement for fancy, large size hand picked fruit of both colors, various varieties, grades and sizes, per double headed barrel, minimum volume three bushels, best, $5.50 to $6.50. A few small sales slightly higher. Ordinary stock, $4 to $5; poor, $3 to $3.50.

"Ordinary stock and of small size consisting of windfalls, wormy and bruised fruit, various varieties, in cloth top slat or stave barrel, best, per barrel, $2.50 to $3; ordinary, $1.50 to $2.

"Pacific Coast offerings in bushel boxes, all stock wrapped, various grades and sizes, per box, Transparent, mostly of poor quality and condition, $1 to $1.25. Some as high as $1.62½. Gravenstein, per box, $3 to $4.

FINDS WIFE WAS GAS VICTIM.

Percy Deverall, a photographer of Wheeling, W. Va., yesterday, at the Kings County Morgue in Brooklyn, identified as that of his wife the body of the woman found dead from gas on Friday in a room at the Hotel Mohawk, Washington Avenue, Brooklyn, with Harold E. Ferry of Midwood Street, Brooklyn, a former army aviator. The theory of the police was that it was a double suicide, the outcome of a love affair. Mr. Deverall, however, refused to believe this and said he was mystified He and his wife, he said, were not estranged and he was sure that she loved him. He was aware that his wife knew Ferry, but thought it only a platonic friendship.

Mr. Deverall said that last week he received a letter from his wife in which she said she was anxious to get back to Wheeling and he had wired her money for her home trip.

Mr. Deverall had his wife's body removed to an undertaking shop.

SCOFF AT GOAT GLAND CURE.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—Following the exposition of the views of several prominent Chicago physicians regarding Dr. J. R. Brinkley's defense of the grafting of goat glands, numerous others have come forward with statements regarding the practicability of the "goat gland elixir of youth."

Among the physicians who disputed Dr. Brinkley's claims today was Dr. Arthur Dean Bevan, former President of the American Medical Association, who characterized the transplantation of goat glands as "rot," and warned the public against accepting new medical discoveries until they have received the approval of the profession itself.

"It is a scientific fact," he explained, "that any foreign gland introduced into the human body must disappear within a short time. This is as elementary and uncontrovertible as that two and two are four."

According to Dr. Orlando F. Scott, gland grafting cannot possible do any good. Rather it will do harm, he says, because of the mental depression that is certain to follow when the patient realizes he has been fooled.

"It is high time that some one disproved these claims," remarked Dr. A. Augustus O'Neill, former President of the Chicago Medical Society and medical director of the State Red Cross during the war. "This is only another manifestation of the craze which swept the world when Dr. Brown Sequard announced the discovery of his elixir of life thirty years ago," he continued. "He took the secretions of the same glands which are being transplanted into humans now and injected the secretions hypodermically.

Swiss Hesitate Over Red Envoy.

BERNE, Aug. 21.—The Russian Soviet Government has expressed a desire to send an engineer named Ratmann as its commercial representative to Switzerland. Ratmann was a member of the first Soviet mission, which was expelled from Switzerland in 1918 and the Swiss Government is hesitating at his acceptance. Guarantees for the strictest abstinence from every form of political activity will be demanded in the event he is admitted.

DRY AGENTS KILLED ECKETT, POLICE SAY

The police theory of the murder of Robert Eckett, or Hayes, the "bootlegger," on Staten Island on Saturday morning, according to one of the detectives working on the case, is that the ringleaders in the conspiracy to kill him were two Federal prohibition agents. District Attorney Joseph F. Molloy of Staten Island predicted sensational developments along this line.

These Federal agents, it was alleged, have been reselling confiscated whisky instead of turning it over to the Government, and desired the death of Eckett, who was out on bail on two charges, in order to forestall a confession.

Eckett, who was wanted in Jersey City for liquor smuggling and automobile stealing, had been arrested in this city several days ago as a fugitive from justice. He was locked up in the Tombs and released on bail, which was furnished by an Italian saloonkeeper.

"We have information," the detective said, "that the Italian saloon man was induced by Federal agents to put up the bail for Eckett. It looks as if they were afraid he would confess and involve them."

How Alleged Scheme Was Worked.

The scheme attributed to the accused Federal agents was that of watching the big dealers in liquor and laying traps to seize their stocks in transit. This plan is alleged to have caused them to ally themselves with one set of "bootleggers" in order to prey on another set. When they had advance information as to the intended movement of a quantity of liquor by motor truck at night, the Federal agents, according to report, would act with confederates in laying an ambuscade. When they held up a whisky truck they were prepared, according to this account, to show their badges and vindicate the majesty of the Eighteenth Amendment, if it came to a pinch; but, if the liquor fell into their hands easily, they made a private confiscation of it and resold it through their friends.

When he was told of this theory of the police and of the two agents who were named by the New York detective, Federal Supervising Prohibition Agent Shevlin said:

"The men you name did operate for some time on Staten Island. There has never been any charge or complaint against them. I know nothing of the murder except what I have read in the newspapers."

"Are the two men still Federal agents?"

$40,000 Whisky Hold-up Recalled.

The biggest whisky hold-up occurred near Newark on Aug. 3, when a caravan of motor trucks, en route at night with stores of whisky, was held up in quick succession and their contents swiftly transshiped to other trucks. The plunder of this night was said to have amounted to more than $40,000. The murdered man, Eckett, it has been pretty well established, was one of the group of bandits in this highway transaction.

The police investigation of the Eckett murder had produced a mass of proof, it was stated, that Eckett had had frequent meetings with Federal agents.

"There will be some very startling revelations in this case before our investigation is ended," said District Attorney Molloy last night. "We expect to connect at least one well-known Federal employe with the murder. Eckett's companions were afraid that he was about to squeal."

The "murder" car, it was learned yesterday, was driven to the funeral of another man on Staten Island on Friday afternoon immediately before it was used in the murder of Eckett. The car belonged to Charles Kane, who is now under arrest as a material witness.

"We have evidence that Kane's car attended a funeral from St. Peter's Church in New Brighton to Calvary Cemetery and that, after the funeral, the car met Eckett and another man, who is known to me, at Madison and Catharine Streets, Manhattan, and took them to Staten Island."

Widow Gives List of Suspects.

Much of the information concerning Eckett's connections in recent days came to the authorities from his widow, who arrived at the Stapleton Station in Staten Island, sobbing over Eckett's death and threatening revenge.

"I know who murdered him, and I won't rest until I see them suffer for it," she said.

She told her suspicions to the District Attorney and detectives, and gave them a list of the names of the men with whom her husband had co-operated in "bootlegging" transactions. She is understood to have accused two prohibition agents.

Her story also resulted in interesting the police in a truck driver named Solomon, living in New York. Several detectives were sent out yesterday to question him, but at a late hour last night it was reported that they had been unable to find him.

The Federal District Attorney's office will be asked today, it was said last night at the Stapleton police station, to begin an investigation of the charges that the two Federal agents were engaged in criminal whiskey transactions with the "bootleggers" they were engaged to run down and bring to justice.

South Beach Hotel Man Held.

The second arrest was made yesterday when William Moloney, 33 years old, proprietor of the Manhattan Hotel at South Beach, was locked up without bail as a material witness. Charles Kane, who had been previously arrested, said that he had spent the night with a party at Moloney's Hotel and that while he was there his car had disappeared. It was this car in which the body of the murdered man was later found several miles away. Mrs. Irene Moloney, wife of the hotel proprietor, and Frank Donohue, a bartender, were later detained as material witnesses, but released on bail of $100 each.

"We have information that Moloney was seen in this car at 8 o'clock on Friday night near Forty-second Street, Manhattan," said Police Captain Sullivan. "We have also reason to think that he had a conversation with Solomon, for whom we are searching. We think they can throw some light on the plot to commit the murder, where it was hatched and who were in it."

The body of the murdered man was positively identified at the Staten Island Morgue yesterday as that of Eckett by his brother-in-law, Frederick Kulme of 276 Fourteenth Street, Brooklyn. He said that the family had seen little of Eckett in the last seven or eight years and knew nothing of his having a wife. Dr. George Mord, Deputy Medical Examiner, refused yesterday to let the widow have the body removed by an undertaker of Orange, N. J.

"I told the undertaker, however," said Dr. Mord, "that if she will produce documentary evidence that she was his wife she may have the body tomorrow."

THE SCREEN

Three of the new photoplays this week are associated with the names of their directors rather than with the names of stars: D. W. Griffith's "The Love Flower," at the Strand; Maurice Tourneur's "The White Circle," at the Rialto, and George Fitzmaurice's "The Right to Love," at the Criterion. Those interested have a good opportunity of comparing the work of these three men, for, while none of the pictures is the best its producer has made, none is the worst, and each is in a number of ways typical of the man behind it.

For some time Mr. Griffith has specialized in his characters. Known at first as the maker of spectacles, he has more recently sought to deal with individuals, to show their moods and traits of character. Though "The Love Flower" is a melodrama in which this effort is not so predominant as in some of his other productions, its presence can be observed, nevertheless.

And this is the difficulty. Whenever a director sets out deliberately to use motion pictures for a certain purpose it requires much subtlety and restraint on his part if his purpose is not to obtrude from his story and defeat its own ends by becoming detached from the realities and congruities of life which must be present, if at all, in the story and its people. This is a danger to which Mr. Griffith is especially exposed, for, though he has gone beyond other directors in many departments of motion picture work, he has not shown marked evidence of subtlety and restraint.

In "The Love Flower" is a man who is hunted all over the world as a murderer. The part is played by George MacQuarrie, and though some of his scenes are well, even excellently, acted, others are very much overdone. The murderer is accompanied by his daughter, who is represented as being devoted to her father and, at the same time, a free-spiritd young person with a keen zest for life. Carol Dempster has the rôle, and she, too, is convincing in some scenes, but in others is merely sugary and kittenish.

Richard Barthelmess, the "hero" of the story, likewise has his scenes of genuineness and obvious acting. The most consistently human person in the story is the leader of the man-hunt, played by Anders Randolf.

It must be added that Mr. Griffith has not lost his ability as a maker of moving pictures. The photoplay, presumably, was made in the Bahamas, which pass as South Sea Islands, and there are seascapes, under-water shots, and views of native life and rugged land. Some of the scenes are tinted, to the enhancement of their dramatic value.

If "The Love Flower" had been produced by any of a hundred inconspicuous directors, the chances are that it would be universally judged a "pretty good melodrama," but coming from Mr. Griffith, from whom the public has been encouraged to expect something exceptional, its shortcomings are not easily overlooked.

Mr. Tourneur has a special liking, it seems, for the mechanics of picture making. He uses the tricks of the camera and the mechanism of the photoplay to produce startling results, momentary thrills and sudden spurts of interest. In "The White Circle," at the Rialto, which is based on Robert Louis Stevenson's "The Pavilion on the Links," he has many opportunities, and he misses few of them. He has the help of a good cast, especially Spottiswoode Aiken, Harry S. Northrup, Jack Gilbert and Jack McDonald.

The story, as many know, deals with vengeance of the Carbonari on an old banker who loses by speculation, the money raised for the freedom of Italy, and its plot, as well as its setting in England and Scotland of 1860, make it suitable material for an exciting photoplay. Its characters are not stock types of fiction. The "villain," for example, is not just created villainous. He is a natural adventurer, and when he has to choose between being true to his profession of villainy and his love of freedom and adventure the latter wins. Mr. Stevenson is melodramatic enough and Mr. Tourneur has never been moderate in this respect; therefore, when Mr. Tourneur translates a work of Stevenson into moving pictures the public may expect swift melodrama, as in "The White Circle."

George Fitzmaurice is especially a scenic director. He composes pictures for themselves, whether for their beauty, their fancifulness, their splendor or their dramatic effectiveness. Many of his scenes are works of photographic art, but have little more relation to each other than the paintings hung on a gallery wall. So it is with "The Right to Love," at the Criterion.

Photographically it is one of the best works that has come to Broadway, but its story develops little power to hold the interest. This is due not only to Mr. Fitzmaurice's apparent indifference to his plot, but also to the inadequacy of the cast, among whom Holmes E. Herbert as an Englishman; Alma Tell as his companion in villainy, and Macey Harlam as an unscrupulous Russian adventurer are about the only living characters. Mae Murray, with all of her charms, cannot be appealing as the abused wife and loving mother, and David Powell, as her hero, is too sedate and bored to be properly heroic.

"While New York Sleeps," a melodrama, opened yesterday at the Lyric Theatre. "The Untamed," with Tom Mix, and Booth Tarkington's "Edgar Takes the Cake" came to the Capitol. "Humoresque" moved from the Criterion to the Rivoli. "Love Madness," with Louise Glaum will be presented at the Broadway today, and "Earthbound" continues at the Astor.

A small riot occurred last night at Eighth Avenue and Fortieth Street when Michael Leaddy, a six-foot-four longshoreman, of 349 West Forty-eighth Street, put up a half hour battle with two patrolmen and was finally subdued by a detective and five patrolmen from the reserve force of the West Thirty-seventh Street Police Station. He was locked up on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Leaddy, according to the police, was inviting passersby to fight him when Patrolman William Wood, of the West Thirty-seventh Street Station, told him to move on. Leaddy, so the police say, struck the patrolman on the jaw and grappled with him. Patrolman Percival Cassidy of the same precinct went to Patrolman Wood's aid but failed to subdue the longshoreman.

A call to the West Thirty-seventh Street Station House brought five more patrolmen and Detective Frank Mondo, who after a lengthy tussle subdued the longshoreman. Leaddy, bruised and bloody, but with his spirit unbroken, shouted defiance from his cell.

URGES UNION WITH BRITAIN.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Aug. 22.—The Rev. Fred W. Stacey, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist Church here, who has just returned from England, the land of his birth, in a sermon here today declared that with the present temperament of England, in fifteen or twenty years, if America refused to take a hand with Britain and France and play her part as a nation in spreading the gospel of Christ in the world, he would not be surprised to see a union between England and Germany.

"One hope of the whole world is a union between Britain and America," he said. "What happened to Poland and Armenia does matter to us."

'OUTLAW' STRIKERS BLAMED

Five yardmen employed by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad are in Lincoln Hospital, two probably with fractured skulls, and more than a scores of other New Haven workers are being treated at home as the result of a series of attacks made upon yardmen of the Mott Haven and Oak Point freight yards within the last forty-eight hours. The assailants, according to information received by the police of the Alexander Avenue Station, in the Bronx, were former employes of the New Haven who quit their jobs during the so-called "outlaw" railroad strike.

Following several attacks yesterday, Captain John Sweeney of the Alexander Avenue Station assigned a score of police reserves to the district surrounding each of the yards, and in addition sent several detectives in citizens' clothes into each of the yards to co-operate with the railroad police under Captain William Colby.

Assailants Use Blackjacks.

The attacks, according to the police, all occurred outside of the yards, which are well patrolled by the railroad police. The victims say that usually there were about five men in the party of assailants and that invariably they were armed only with blackjacks. A singular feature of the attacks is that, although the assailants evidently knew that the victims were employes of the New York, New Haven & Hartford yards, none of the assailants has been identified.

The great majority of the cases, the police say, were not reported to the Alexander Avenue Station, for the reason that the men, after they had been attacked went back to the yards, where they received first aid treatment, which the railroads provided, and then went to their homes.

During the "outlaw" strike there was a series of walkouts in the Mott Haven and Oak Point yards. The strikers deserted their jobs in small groups and often would come straggling back by twos or threes, and many times they would quit a second and even a third time.

Strikers' Places Filled.

At no time was there any outbreak of violence in the yards themselves, although there were sporadic cases reported from time to time. The strikers' places were all eventually filled and for several months railroad operations in the yards has been normal, and there has been no sign of trouble on the part of the strikers, most of whom got other jobs.

The police believe that the strikers have been meeting secretly for several weeks and that the organized attacks are the outcome of these meetings. The victims are for the most part men who struck and then went back to their jobs again, a circumstance which inclines the police to the theory that the leaders in the campaign of violence are men who were ringleaders in the strike and whom the railroad refused to take back.

No similar disturbances have been reported from the other railroad yards in and about the city. During the "outlaw" strike the New Jersey waterfront was the storm centre, but cases of violence were few, even there.

MUTINY OVER BULLFIGHTS.

CASTELLON, Spain, Aug. 21.—Villagers of Canete-la-Real have mutinied against the municipal government because the mayor provided an insufficient number of bulls for a bullfight held in connection with a local festival.

The mutineers unlocked a corral, freeing the bulls which had been provided. The animals dashed through the streets of the village, injuring several persons and doing considerable property damage before they fled to the mountains.

MUSIC NOTES.

Mme. Galli-Curci, making her only appearance in the East this Summer, will sing at Ocean Grove, N. J., tonight in airs from "Sonnambula," "Puritani" and "Traviata."

Frieda Hempel is to reproduce Jenny Lind's first concert in America on Oct. 6, the 100th anniversary of the birth of the Swedish nightingale, who sang here for P. T. Barnum.

GALLI BRINGS NEW BALLETS.

Mlle. Rosina Galli, prima ballerina of the Metropolitan Opera Company, returned yesterday from her vacation trip to Italy on the Italian liner Dante Allighieri. She brought with her the score of a new ballet by Pickmangialli called "Carillon Magico," or the "Magic Music Box," which will be presented at the Metropolitan Opera House during the Winter.

She brought also a score by A. Bolto to be introduced in Verdi's "Don Carlo," that is to be sung here for the first time this season. She gathered on her vacation some pictures of the Palazzo Pitti in Florence, where the scene of the opera is laid, and she hopes that these pictures will be used by the scenic artists who paint the ballet scenery.

She added that when she passed the Statue of Liberty on the tender she saluted and vowed to become an American citizen. She said she was tired of the continual political disputes in Italy and of the strikes. Instead of going to Italy to see her brothers and sisters, they will have to come to New York to see her, she said. Her mother returned with her, to make her home here.

To Revive "Erminie" This Season.

A revival of "Erminie" with Francis Wilson and De Wolf Hopper as co-stars will be presented in New York about Nov. 1. George C. Tyler yesterday announced that he had arranged to present the play for a season in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and Chicago, and for a coast-to-coast tour during the second season. "Erminie" was probably the most famous of the old Casino Theatre productions, and was first presented there in the '80s. Mr. Wilson revived the piece in 1903, after which he left the comic opera stage for the legitimate. In the "Erminie" revival he will have his old role of Cadeaux, and Mr. Hopper will play Ravennes, originally acted by W. S. Daboll and later by Henry E. Dixey.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

George Nash has returned from London, where he appeared in "East Is West." He will go on tour with the Fay Bainter company this season, opening next week in Newark.

Owen Davis's farce, "Marry the Poor Girl," has been placed in rehearsal by Oliver Morosco. It will be produced here about Oct. 1.

"Nothing Doing," by Barry Conners, will be produced in Atlantic City next Monday night by Mrs. Henry B. Harris. Florence Nash heads the cast.

Rehearsals of Guy Bolton's comedy, "Wild Cherry," will begin today. Ruth Shepley has the leading role.

Minnie Dupree, now in "The Charm School," will have the principal role in a play to be produced in January by Lea Herrick and Robert Milton.

"Pitter-Patter," the musical version of "Caught in the Rain," will open tonight in Long Branch.

DIFFICULT PEACE-MAKING.

LENIN seizes the moment of the critical peace parleys at Minsk to declare at Moscow that there can be no peace with Soviet Russia. For he asserts that it will continue to "foment revolution in all nations." It is exactly on this ground that the American Government gives notice that it will never enter into diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia. To make peace with it may be possible, but it is a peace which will have to be guarded sword in hand so long as LENIN and his kind are in control at Moscow. For they openly make a mock of the moral obligations which other nations consider binding. To the Bolsheviki a treaty exists simply to be torn up and trampled upon. Until their power collapses and something like sanity is restored in Russia, it is a work of infinite difficulty and peril to make peace with them.

LENIN has been called an "inverted Czar." But this is too mild. No Czar ever inflicted such misery upon so many millions of people as has the fanatic and remorseless LENIN. The official reports of his own agents show how destruction and death have followed in the wake of his theories. There is no real government in Russia; solely a ruthless dictatorship. No laws are passed; only arbitrary decrees are issued. The courts do not sit; merely the ferocious revolutionary tribunals continue to confiscate and execute. Talk of the worst of the Czars! He chastised with whips; LENIN flogs with scorpions.

REPUBLICAN TRIBULATIONS.

DANIEL O'CONNELL said that JOSEPH HUME would be a good speaker if he could finish a sentence before beginning the next but one after it. Mr. HARDING seems to be a disciple of JOE HUME's system. No sooner has he decided where he is "at" in regard to the League of Nations than he is moved to a new position, thence to move again before there is time for a snapshot. He views the League with alarm. Republican remonstrances pour in. Then he and the other sages take a milder conspectus. The going concern, the League of Nations—or Abominations, as Mr. BORAH would put it—won't do, but how about "a" League? Mayn't there be an "understanding," that mystical favorite of Mr. HARDING's? Can't an "association" of nations be formed?

So they wabble and grope. Mr. HARDING is to make a speech on the League Saturday. Always eager to strengthen the feeble knees, Colonel GEORGE HARVEY, that atavistic Vermont Republican, summoned himself to Marion and his candidate last week. Shameful is this League; shameful its attraction for such a multitude of Republicans, Independents, Progressives. A feint, a substitute, is imperative. Mr. HARDING sees Mr. ELIHU ROOT working on the machinery of the League of Nations, the abhorred Mr. WILSON's abhorrent League of Nations, yet "making "wonderful progress in concert with "foreign Powers." Can't the Republicans rally around the international court of justice, make that the foundation stone of a trustworthy "American' association or sodality of nations, and so keep the United States "free"? Can't they borrow and adapt and add, patch up a Republican plan, move to substitute it for the "Wilson" League?

There is something naïve, helpless, absurd in all these floppings and wrigglings, and even the Republican disingenuousness wears a simple, a perplexed and bedeviled face. Plainly, the Republicans are scared. The princes of the Senate and the people are at odds. A staff correspondent of our intransigent Republican neighbor, The Sun, sends from Columbus observations that must wring true Republican bosoms. Governor Cox has made speeches to about 100,000 persons in Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia. The opinion of Democratic leaders on the effect of those speeches is:

> First, that general arguments for the League of Nations, presented upon the basis of peace as opposed to war, have brought more response than had been anticipated.
> Second, that a great many young men, presumably first-time Presidential voters, have attended the meetings, attracted, perhaps, by the fact that the Democratic nominee had been heralded as "Fighting JIMMY" Cox.

The correspondent admits that "the "people do not seem to be down on "the League of Nations to nearly so "great an extent as had been ex-"pected by some of the Democratic "politicians." Church workers are largely in favor of the League. It appeals strongly to the woman voters. The Democrats estimate that about 4,000,000 young men will cast their first Presidential vote next Fall. The eagerness of young men to attend Cox meetings and this mighty number of first voters have induced the Democrats to prepare "a special appeal, "which will centre about the state-"ment that the League of Nations "will be the fulfillment of a pledge "to the men who saw service in the "war that there should be no more "war, that Governor Cox is a fight-"ing man of the world whom they "must support, and that the Demo-"cratic Party is progressive."

Thus the League of Nations, the cardinal condition of international peace and progress, is preached and heard gladly; and the Republicans, aware of their monumental blunder, are floundering pitiably and trying to set up some counterfeit and pretender against the actual League which nobody wants but the people.

AN AMERICAN PEOPLE.

In The National Review some time ago OLIVER MADOX HUEFFER wrote: "You must disabuse yourself of the "idea that there is an American peo-"ple at all, as we understand a people "in Europe." To get anything approximating America one would have to take samples from all European nations, "add a certain flavoring of Africans, Asiatics and the like," mix thoroughly, and "scatter the result thinly over the Continent." In The Atlantic Monthly Mr. W. S. ROSSITER takes him gently to task.

Analysis of our population is by no means easy. In one sense we are all immigrants, even including the Indians. But so are the nations of Europe. Yet after a certain residence here, and a surprisingly brief one, newcomers have a way of falling in line, provided only they are of a racial stock that finds our temper and institutions congenial. In calculating the total of "Anglo-Saxons" among us Mr. ROSSITER includes the descendants of the Irish, German and other immigrants from the North and West of Europe who came here sixty years ago or more. He also includes the English and Canadians who have arrived in more recent decades. The total is "nearly fifty-five millions" in a white population which he estimates to be, in 1920, 94,000,000. More than 58 per cent. are "Anglo-Saxon" in their traditions and sympathies, and very largely so in blood. The American native stock outnumbers "the "entire combined population of Eng-"land, Scotland, Wales and Canada," and is thus "the greatest Anglo-Saxon element in the world."

Closely similar conclusions have been reached by E. A. Ross, Professor of Sociology in the University of Wisconsin, who reckons that fully a quarter of our present population is descended from the 20,000 Puritans who sought liberty in the American wilderness. Mr. CHARLES W. GOULD calculates that of the Americans of today over 40,000,000 "can trace their "descent on both sides to Colonial "days." Such figures go far toward explaining a phenomenon which many have found baffling. Though a nation born of revolution and reborn in the greatest rebellion of modern times, we are still more stable in our institutions, more steadily conservative, than the nations of Europe.

The second item in Mr. HUEFFER's charge Mr. ROSSITER does not answer as satisfactorily—or, in fact, at all. "Instead of being properly mixed," the various peoples in America "are "divided into ethnographic strata, "which only touch at the edges." It is true that the "new" immigration from the South and East of Europe has not amalgamated and shows little tendency to amalgamate under our free institutions. The fifty-five millions of our "Anglo-Saxons" live mainly in rural districts and small towns. In a crisis they are the backbone of the nation. As Mr. ROSSITER well says, when General HAIG told his men that their backs were to the wall "a thrill went through listening "America. The Anglo-Saxon stock "understood." But in our cities and in other industrial centres the case is far otherwise. Mr. ROSSITER gives the figures, though he strangely neglects to interpret them. "There were "twenty-nine cities in 1910 with a "population exceeding 100,000. In "every thousand of the aggregate "population of these cities the white "residents of native parentage num-"bered but 266"—734 being foreigners. In New York City the foreign element numbers 786 in every thousand. In certain basic industries, as the steel trade and the coal mines, similar proportions prevail.

Most of these people are not now radicals; but they have little knowledge of our spirit and institutions, and are the most inflammable material for radical agitators. For ten years before the war they came in at the rate of almost a million a year. Now again the tide is rising, the year ended with last June having witnessed the influx of 800,000 of them. The present danger is that our industrial centres will become overwhelmingly populated by ignorant aliens from the South and East of Europe, with the soundly American element relegated to thinly populated and widely scattered countrysides.

CAMPAIGN FUNDS.

The elementary truths about the collection of money to conduct the political campaigns are known of all men. Each party tries to get all it can. Each accuses the other of raising too large a sum from sources too "tainted." This has been the customary partisan byplay for a long time. In recent years the compulsory publication of receipts and expenditures has removed a good deal of the dark mystery in which campaign funds used to lurk, but the charges and recriminations between committees and candidates go on much as before.

It is easy to make assertions of the lavish or corrupt use of money in elections, but hard to prove them. Toward the end of his campaign in 1904 Judge PARKER affirmed that the Republicans were getting suspiciously large contributions from big corporations. When this was challenged by Mr. ROOSEVELT, in his somewhat overemphatic way, and the evidence demanded, Judge PARKER was not able to produce it. But when the investigation of the insurance companies came on after the election was over, the general belief was that the evidence was indeed forthcoming, though a trifle late.

It is plainly for the purpose of meeting the accusation of Governor Cox that the Republicans have set out to raise a fund of $15,000,000 this year—or $30,000,000, if you like that figure better—that the Truthful James of our latter-day politics, Chairman HAYS, rises in Maine to explain. He discloses his budget. Careful figuring has convinced the Republican Committee that it can worry along with $3,000,000. That sum is to be gathered in through small contributions. Only in case the virtuous poor do not come forward in sufficient numbers will an appeal be made for subscriptions above $1,000—and then the public will be duly notified of the fact. Meanwhile, the Treasurer of the Democratic Committee, as if aware in advance of Mr. HAYS's modest figure, and determined to underbid it, announces that his party will be well content if it can raise as much as $700,000 or $800,000.

It cannot be charged that either party fund, as thus indicated, is excessive. The question will still be asked whether the sums named are all-inclusive. Do they cover what State Committees will raise and spend? Is the cost of Congressional elections reckoned in? The one thing certain is that, if we are to have so economical a campaign as each party protests that it is planning, many a witching orator will be deprived of his expected "expense account," many an ambitious political advertiser of his fat commission.

FEDERAL LAW AND STATE RATES

Many State commissions are acting with respect to the regulation of railway rates as if the conditions were the same now as when the Interstate Commerce Commission decided that it had no power to correct the relations between interstate and intrastate rates. The fact is that it now has both the power and the duty to use it. The rates in dispute are established under the act of Congress which prescribes the course to be taken whenever there is a conflict between State and Federal rates. Upon finding that the State rates are prejudicial to national or foreign commerce the Interstate Commission "shall prescribe the rate, "fare or charge, or the maximum or "minimum, or maximum and mini-"mum, thereafter to be charged, and "the classification, regulation or prac-"tice thereafter to be observed, in "such manner as, in its judgment, "will remove such advantage, prefer-"ence, prejudice or discrimination. "Such rates, fares, charges, classifi-"cations, regulations and practices "shall be observed while in effect by "the carriers parties to such proceed-"ing affected thereby, the law of any "State, or the decision or order of "any State authority, to the contrary "notwithstanding."

That section explains why the railways are to appeal to the Interstate Commission instead of to the courts. Hitherto the railways have been embarrassed when confronted by conflicting Federal and State laws or orders. Hereafter the conflict will be between the two classes of regulators, with no doubt of the result. Congress has acted in the manner which the highest court has said is conclusive, and the Commerce Commission has made a decision after inquiry. It is to be remarked that the State commissions will be overruled, not in the interest of the railways, but in that of the nation. The Union of States would be disorganized if each of them were allowed to poach on the trade of its neighbor States, and to bid for exports or imports by discrimination which would compel the railways to compete in cut-throat rate wars. It will be humiliating for the New York State Commission to be superseded, but it will be right.

Consider the folly of the procedure which assumes to correct the commission's rates. For June, the latest month reported, the principal railroads' operating revenue increased $66,592,565, but the operating deficit increased $66,766,072. And the New York Commission proposes to make an independent valuation to discover whether the new rates are excessive. What will the New York valuation cost? When will it be ready? What rates are to be paid meanwhile? The United States valuation has cost forty millions, and has been proceeding seven years. It is not yet complete enough to be used by the Interstate Commission, so the commission took an approximation of the companies' book valuation. Why should not the States follow that example if there are any intrastate rates which need a State valuation?

TROUBLES OF A BUDDING AUTHOR.

"When lords take to literature," wrote BROUGHAM to ABRAHAM HAYWARD, "they should be a little on their guard." So should politicians. But it appears that the Hon. WILLIAM BARNES turned author in too blithe and guileless a mood. How could he tell what tricks an advertising agent and solicitor would play with his great work on "Republicanism"? And even if he did learn that one prominent Republican after another was subscribing from $1,000 to $1,500 for a copy of his profound study, how was Mr. BARNES to suspect, in his innocence, that this was not a just tribute to his literary talent?

Attempts to make a scandal out of this must grieve as well as surprise the budding writer of Albany. But what will most pain him is the indecent haste with which his friends of the Republican Committee disclaim all connection with his venture into literature. And Senator HARDING explains that he merely gave a general commendation to Mr. BARNES, while the genial Chairman HAYS declares that his letter "felicitating" the author didn't mean anything in particular. But surely a lord, or a boss, who takes to literature and rakes in a reputed $200,000 for his first book deserves the heartiest kind of felicitation—along with wondering and envious questions how on earth he did it.

MORE "LITTLE" WARS.

The Serbians are fighting in Albania and the British are in more trouble in Mesopotamia. No sooner does a peace conference assemble in one part of the world than a fresh war starts elsewhere. Mesopotamia and Albania are not so important as Poland, but the world at large has a considerable interest in a durable settlement of their troubles.

Reports of the Arab rising against the British in Mesopotamia have been coming in now and then for weeks past—some time ago there was the announcement of a fight in which the British suffered 300 casualties—but now comes the news that 10,000 more troops are on their way from India to reinforce the 70,000 already in Mesopotamia, and there is fear in London that still more troops will be needed. It looks as if the British may need as large an army to hold Mesopotamia against the natives as was required to take it from the Turks. Arab troops raised in the country are apparently fighting on the British side, which indicates that native feeling is at least divided, but only trouble of a serious nature would require so large an army to repress it.

The British have already called a "constituent assembly" to frame the constitution of the new Arab Government which under British influence is to rule the country, but in the meantime British administrators have been conducting the business of government, and apparently without the talent that the British have usually shown in dealing with Oriental peoples. Colonel LAWRENCE, the English archaeologist who established the alliance between Britain and the Arabs of the Hedjaz and acted as the personal representative and shock-absorber for Prince FEISAL at the Peace Conference, has lately protested against the British and French disposition to crowd the Arabs out of the picture. No doubt both French and British were surprised and pained when it appeared that the Hedjaz dynasty wanted a great deal more than European diplomats had been disposed to assign to it, and that the Arabs in general seemed to regard that dynasty as the head of the national movement. But it appears that a more conciliatory attitude toward the sons of King HUSSEIN—who on their part seem to have been more moderate than a good many of their followers—might have accomplished a working agreement in which the British and French got the economic privileges and political guardianship which they wanted, while leaving the prerogatives of sovereignty and the job of government to the Arab princes.

Meanwhile Serbian troops holding Mount Tarabosh, overlooking Scutari, are engaged in a fight with the Albanians, and the Serbian Government fears Albanian raids in the Macedonian territory, where the two races are commingled. The Italians decided that suppressing rebellion in Albania would cost more than it was worth, so they got out. The Serbs were no doubt rejoiced at this, and now it appears that some Serbs, at any rate, hope that they can get some profit out of the Italian withdrawal. That Italian agents are stirring up Albanian dislike for Serbia is only natural, and the new Jugoslav kingdom has trouble enough on its hands without taking on a new fight on the southern frontier. None of Albania's neighbors are likely to do any good to themselves or to Albania by interference, but if the Albanians are left alone they will probably be no more able to govern themselves than they have been in the past.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

The Unions and the Legion.

A delicate situation will confront the State Convention of the American Legion, to be held on Sept. 9 at Atlantic City. During the "outlaw" railway strike, it will be remembered, certain bodies of Legion men turned out and operated the trains, contributing powerfully toward the prevention of a complete industrial paralysis. Now it appears that the State headquarters has refused to give the Bernardsville Post a charter on the ground that it ran a "Legion Special" and so helped to break the strike.

The question is whether a Legion post, as such, is justified in taking sides in an industrial disturbance. In nine cases out of ten all elements of the public would say decidedly that it has not. Many strikes are local and only indirectly concern the public. But this was not the case with the "outlaw" railway strike. A relatively small group of men attempted to hold up the life of an entire community. In the industrial sense that was civil war. As the world is now organized, a "militant minority" has it in its power to paralyze, at least temporarily, not merely a single city, but the entire nation. In such cases it is not only the right but the duty of every loyal American to act in behalf of peace and the general welfare.

Among the men under fire is Colonel W. M. MEAD, Commander of the post at Hackensack. His defense, as reported by The World, is that the strike was an "outlaw" and that in helping to break it he was not opposing the regular unions, but siding with them. Tactically, the defense is adroit; but it avoids the question what he would do if a similar strike should be authorized. The Hackensack Post as a whole is more outspoken. It has adopted a resolution supporting all posts that aided the commuters during the strike.

Reviving the Ring.

The way in which political terms come and go—and often come back—is illustrated by Mayor HYLAN's discovery of a "ring." His Honor has usually been seeing horrid visions of a "trust" or an "interest" or, at the feeblest, a "combine." But in denouncing, in connection with the new Court House, the nefarious members of the "Granite Ring," he must have been summoning up memories of his boyhood. Then there was the "Canal Ring," which TILDEN fought. There was also the Tweed Ring. But the word seems to have fallen into disuse in recent years. More offensive, or at least more horrendous, names have displaced it.

Roaming with the Romanies.

In the gypsy's life we read the life that all would like to lead. The poet who wrote that in the damp past never dreamed how true his words would seem to those who read of a gypsy camp up in Westchester consuming a hundred gallons of wine by way of celebration of a wedding, the wine being a necessary part of a religious ceremony and therefore entirely lawful. Gypsy courtships, as explained by a girl in the camp to a newspaper man, seem to be equally jovial.

"You like me. Maybe you want marry me. You tell your father. He come see my father. My father, he have bottle whisky, brandy, wine. Two fathers, they get drunk together. Your father say to my father: 'How much you want for your girl for my boy?' My father, he say $5,000. Your father say he give $2,000. Maybe after a while my father take $3,500. We get married. That's all. Everybody have good time."

Divorce is just as easy: "Gypsy man, he want divorce, he put girl out of tent. She go home to father. Money back like hell! Girl gets money then."

But romance is dead; there is no doubt about it. The gypsies of today travel in Fords. Devilshoof changing a tire—no, the imagination refuses to paint the picture.

The Real Cause of the Great War.

An anonymous writer whose article is reprinted in The Living Age tells of a recent conversation of his with a man prominent in German political life. They were talking about the war, and the German said: "It was the telephone that ruined us." Asked to explain, he reasoned that at the outbreak of the war communication between Berlin and Petrograd and Paris and Vienna and other cities was too easy and rapid. If the German authorities had had to write old-fashioned diplomatic notes, which took time to deliver and more time to answer, they could have kept their heads in the crisis and averted the war. But when everything was touch and go, instant communication by wire between the Foreign Offices was too much for the nerves, and the situation got out of hand.

This theory is perhaps a trifle paradoxical, but there is an element of truth in it. The inventions of civilization do not necessarily make for the preserving of civilization. The telephone is a great boon, but it is also sometimes, as we all know, both in business and in private life, a nuisance. If good telephone facilities really caused the great war, it is a pity that the Kaiser did not have to get his connections through the New York Exchange. Chicago papers please copy and make it read Chicago Exchange. Also London papers ditto.

Impartial Irish Views.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At a time when the feeling on both sides runs so high that few of either faction can discuss the Irish question without prejudice or passion, it is refreshing to read the amazingly fair, able and most enlightening articles of Mr. Charles H. Grasty on this vexed question. I trust in the interest of all concerned, and for the peace of the world at large, that Mr. Grasty's admirable exposition of the situation may have a wide circulation.

AN AMERICAN AND A CATHOLIC.

TO RECOVER OUR PLACE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In all the history of nations there has been no such slump in national feeling and national force as there has been since the Peace Treaty and League of Nations became the subject of discussion in the Senate of the United States.

There was a universal feeling that the treaty and League would be promptly ratified. The Republican leaders considered the treaty and League from the standpoint of party advantage; they feared its ratification would strengthen the Democratic Party and place Wilson as a statesman and patriot on the same level with Washington and Lincoln. Their war spirit and war enthusiasm at once dropped to the zero mark; they at once concentrated all their energy in one great attack on the treaty and League, and especially on President Wilson.

They were shrewd enough to begin with long delays in committee consideration, with objections and reservations of a tentative character. They knew a direct assault would provoke an outburst of indignation that would defeat their designs. They began by indirect attacks and by stimulating party feeling to the greatest extent.

It was the most despicable action ever undertaken by men in high station in any country or in any age. I am in my eighty-ninth year, an old soldier of the civil war, but I have a stronger feeling of indignation against these betrayers of the people than I had against the men who fired on Sumter in 1861.

Just at the time the victory was won, when America and the world were rejoicing in the belief that all war was ended and world peace for all time assured, then these men in the Senate of the United States threw up their hands and cried out in horror at Article X, and at the super-government about to be established over us. There was no danger in Article X. or any other article, and well they knew it.

Super-government was a big word with which to scare the unthinking. The Supreme Council had no power except by unanimous vote. The representative of the United States held veto power on action taken. The Constitution of the United States guards us against foreign war unless authorized by the Congress of the United States.

We would be far less exposed to war under the League of Nations than we now are standing by ourselves. The men who promoted this criminal party spirit and personal spite against President Wilson camouflaged the blackness of their work under the specious claim of Americanism. If this betrayal of right and justice affected themselves alone it would be a small matter; but they stand as leaders of thought and action, their words have weight with a large part of their party followers; many of these think there must be something terrible concealed in that League of Nations; they want peace at home and peace over all the world, but they are confused and uncertain and wonder where the truth may lie.

In this is the beginning of the turmoil and widespread feeling now prevalent in America and over the world. Had America promptly taken her place in the League of Nations, it would have been as a balance wheel to an engine—the world today would be moving with smoothness and regularity, giving confidence to the people and peace to the world.

President Wilson has been treated with disrespect by men who in character and ability are by far his inferiors. He has been made to suffer both physically and mentally, but notwithstanding all they have done or may do, his name will be a part of the history of his country, and his fame will go on increasing with the ages, while his detractors will shrink, shrivel and disappear.

The Peace Treaty and League of Nations will yet be ratified by the Senate, as it will be ratified by the people at the November election. It cannot be that the people of the United States will permit our country to remain a stumbling block in the path of progress and a nation disgraced in the eyes of the world. The partisan plan that was outlined and formulated in the Senate, indorsed and extended in the Republican platform, and accepted by Senator Harding in his speech of acceptance, deserves not only defeat by vote of the people, but also to be spurned with indignant contempt by all citizens of America who believe in honesty, right and justice.

Those who believe in the League of Nations have been too slow and torpid in its support. They have let the League of Nations sustain itself by its inherent merits, while virulent attacks are made upon it for party purposes by men lost alike to honor and self-respect. It is time we should show the faith in ourselves and in our country that was prevalent during the war. There is a responsibility resting on every citizen to stand true to the flag and to the Government until the treaty of peace and League of Nations shall be actually signed, sealed and delivered. The men who can block the ratification of the treaty and League at this time are worthy to be classed with the Tories of the Revolution and the Copperheads of the civil war.

If we fail now, far better we had never entered the war at all.

Our nation stands disgraced before the world. It is due to ourselves and to humanity to repudiate in the coming election men who have formed a party league to destroy the League of Nations and humiliate, if possible, the President of the United States.

T. A. CARPENTER.

Mr. Taft and His Party.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The only satisfactory explanation of Mr. Taft's inconsistent pronouncement that he still favors the League of Nations, but will support Harding, who has repudiated it, is suggested by an excerpt from Mme. Rémusat's writings; that brilliant authoress in her "Life at the Court of Bonaparte," reflecting upon the great lords of France, said:

"My comparison may seem trivial, but it is just to say that in the character of these great lords there is something of the cat, which becomes attached to one house and remains there, however its owner may change."

But such party fealty is of a kind and in keeping with the announcement of candidate Harding that he believes in party government as the force behind the Executive of this great nation in lieu of an independent and brave Executive to administer the executive department, which by our fathers was intended to be independent of the other two departments of Government, and, a fortiori, by the basic principles of our form and character of government, should be independent of party influence. O tempora, O mores! In these menacing and turbulent days is this what we may expect from the great lords of the Republican Party of which Mr. Taft should be the best type; in these dreadful times, when we need the highest and bravest men and statesmen? If so, let us yet hope that the plain people in this great party of Lincoln (is it sacrilege to now call it so?) may not follow the example of the ex-President, et id genus omne, whose garments are so blemished and stained with partisan hate and vengeance, and fear of a so-called Southern dynasty, that patriotism and freedom of thought and action are no longer mentioned save in derision.

INDIAN WRONGS.

So Busy Righting Them We Shall Have No Time to Take Up Foreign Affairs?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You state in today's issue, under comment on the Indian delegation's visit to Senator Harding, that "the Indians have been well treated in the last seven years."

It is notorious that the Indian Bureau has become filled with the evils of bureaucracy to a greater extent than any other department in our Government, and not in years more so than during the last seven years. Its doors have been closed to the Indians and their well wishers, and only the exigencies of the war saved the bureau from a scathing investigation.

"Justice to the Indian" was never more a mockery than during this seven years. What about Carlyle Indian School, that wonderful life-saver of the reservation Indian, and which has in the last seven years been officially well nigh obliterated? What about Camp McDowell, in Arizona, where the Indians are still coerced to give up their rights in the reservation, and nothing has been done that was ordered near the close of the Taft Administration, after a most exhaustive investigation?

These questions could be extended to cover nearly all Indian affairs as handled in the last seven years, and if the truth were known, as is known to a large number of Indians and their friends, the American people would demand the wiping out of the Indian Bureau.

Give the Indian question a little light and we will be pretty busy righting one of the shameful wrongs of our own country, and will have no immediate time to right the wrongs of Europe.

JOSEPH W. LATIMER.

Harding's Foreign Policy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In view of Senator Harding's promise that if elected he will completely reverse President Wilson's foreign policy, it may be interesting to note just what some of these policies have been:

Refusal to intervene in Russia, though expressing the determination that the Bolsheviki, no more than the Prussians, must be allowed world domination.

Friendship for England, France and the other Allies.

Peace with Japan.

Mandate over Armenia.

Entrance into the League of Nations.

Non-intervention in Ireland.

WILLIAM CARSON.

The Suffrage Victory.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It may be of interest to some of your readers just now to know that Tennessee, the State whose action happened to be the deciding factor in the question of woman suffrage, came very near to being the first, or among the first, States to enfranchise women.

My grandfather, P. P. C. Nelson, as Speaker of the Senate of Tennessee during reconstruction days, led a fight for the enfranchisement of women, which lacked but one vote of passing the Senate.

Of course, it was a foregone conclusion with all, who know anything about woman that she would get the vote once she started out for it in earnest. For that matter, I have never been able to see any reason why she should not have the right to vote just as I have never been able to see anything but reasons why she should not be a voter—a dabbler in politics.

The only hope I have now is that she will tire of the vote as a child of a toy and be content with the fact that her right to vote and hold political office is a constitutional fact that may be cited proudly as evidence of her ability to get whatever she goes after.

ROBERT N. CAMPBELL.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A ridiculous candidate running on a ridiculous platform necessarily provokes ridiculous editorial performances. The Tribune establishes a new record in today's issue. In concluding its editorial article entitled "Half a League" it says:

"The Republican Party is pledged to this labor of completing the League as yet but half formed. The Democratic Party is not. The Tribune believes that the Republican Party possesses very great personal abilities for the work. It hopes and believes that every friend of enduring peace will decide to place this task in the hands ready and competent to perform it."

The Tribune may be thinking of Root and Hughes and Taft as the possessors of the "great personal abilities for this work," but The Tribune's candidate for the Presidency has repudiated the theories of these gentlemen with regard to the League and now stands with Johnson, Borah and Lodge. Of course "every friend of enduring peace" will thrill with joy when he thinks of this precious trio at work "completing the League."

DINANT.

A gray wall stands in Dinant
Of tragic memory,
Piled high today with flowers
For all the world to see—
With living flowers for the dead
Who look from Heaven to see.

A gray stone wall in Dinant,
And you may see it yet,
And if the dead remember
Shall we who live forget?
So they hang roses on it
Who never will forget.

Facing the German rifles,
A long, long line.
These we remember,
One hundred thirty-nine.

By that gray wall in Dinant
Lie flowers red and white;
And still the wall remembers
Weeping in the night,
And blood that ran before it
In clear daylight.

The gray stone wall accuses,
It's hard beneath the flowers.
The women who bring roses
Grow old in a few hours.
They see what there is covered
By six years and the flowers.

Distance cannot hide them,
Nor flowers, nor bitter tears:
The hostages of Dinant
Will stand there through the years—
The murdered men of Dinant

LOUISE DRISCOLL.

FINDS ECONOMICS IGNORED

Europe for the last year has been suffering less from the effects of the war than from the effects of the peace, Otto H. Kahn declares in a paper, "Impressions from a Journey in Europe," which he has prepared, based upon his recent trip to England, Italy and France, where he conferred with economists, bankers and statesmen.

"Those who framed the Peace Treaty of Versailles, while affirming and, I doubt not, intending allegiance to the hopes and aspirations of the liberal opinion of the world, have to a considerable extent negatived them in fact," Mr. Kahn says.

"Bartering and compromising and sowing the seeds of dissension among one another and of discord throughout the world," he continues, "they have set up dispositions which resulted in leaving production, commerce, international intercourse, indeed, the very conditions of existence, completely out of joint in almost all of Europe east of the Rhine. They have ignored what was among the most essential of all the elements involved in readjusting the world from war to peace, namely, the element of practical economics.

"They have produced a treaty so little consonant with the realities that from the day of its promulgation to this day it has been a continuous object of controversy, of readjustment, of interpretation, of haggling and whittling down, and has consumed the time, thought and energies of the leading statesmen of the various countries to the detriment of domestic affairs.

"Solemnly proclaiming the principle of 'self determination,' they have granted or withheld it, according to their discretion. They have involved themselves in commitments of sovereignty, control or regulation throughout the world calling for military and other efforts, the cost and burden of which go beyond the present capacities of their respective nations and beyond the sanction of public opinion.

"They injected into the matter-of-fact business of making peace with Germany—a business which demanded promptitude and finality—the complexities, delays and uncertainties of a world-embracing ethical experiment that called for calm and detached and separate consideration and treatment.

"They have mishandled the fine and universally acclaimed conception of an association of nations to maintain and strengthen international law and preserve peace, and, seeking to utilize it for unrelated purposes, have evolved an instrument largely divergent from that conception.

"Thus and in other ways, instead of peace and settlement, they have wrought dispeace and unsettlement.

"It would be futile to discuss the distribution of responsibility among the treaty makers for the sad disillusionment which the outcome and sequel of the Versailles Conference brought to a world that stood ready and expectant to follow a lead worthy of the high inspiration which had actuated the people of the allied nations and America during the war."

BOLIVIA CALLS CONVENTION.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—The Bolivian Legation has been advised that elections for the new National Assembly in Bolivia will be held early in December. The Assembly will convene at once after the elections for decision whether the new President shall be chosen by direct vote of the people or selected by the Assembly.

According to a recent communication to the legation from the Bolivian Foreign Office, which was presented to the State Department at Washington, the duly elected members of the National Assembly "shall act the first year in capacity of conventional representatives and the remaining three years as regular legislators."

Confirmation has been received of the published report that the British Minister at La Paz had been instructed by his Government to recognize the new Government of Bolivia.

JAPANESE FEAR TRADE LOSS

Companies Prepare Campaign Against American Shipping Law.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—Reports received in Washington from Tokio indicate that the new American shipping law continues to be the cause of grave concern in Japanese shipping and trading circles in view of what is alleged to be its possible menace to the cargo business of Japanese steamship companies operating a service to America and to Japanese traders interested in trade between Japan and the United States.

According to the advices received the provisions of the law in favor of merchandise carried in American vessels is being taken by these circles as a measure aimed at the expulsion of Japanese and British shipping from American waters. Several of the leading Japanese steamship companies and kindred interests, the advices state, are preparing an energetic campaign against the new law.

PANAMA TO BUILD ROADS.

J. W. Beardsley to Have Prominent Part in $7,000,000 Program.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—The Panamian Government has appointed a Road Commission of five members which will have charge of a comprehensive road construction program to begin immediately, according to advices received by the Panamian legation.

J. W. Beardsley, a civil engineer of Rochester, N. Y., who has had road building experience in the Philippines and other tropical countries, has been selected as the engineer member of the commission.

The work is to cost in the neighborhood of $7,000,000, and to require five years or more for completion.

PLAN GORGAS MEMORIAL.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—Establishment in Panama of an International Institute for the Research of Tropical Diseases is proposed as a memorial to the late Major General William C. Gorgas, who died recently in London and whose most noteworthy health work was carried on in the Canal Zone.

The Panamanian Government, according to advices to Señor Don J. E. Lefevre, Chargé d'Affaires of Panama at Washington, would be willing to donate the $1,000,000 St. Thomas' Hospital for the proposed institute. Mr. Lefevre made it known today that he plans to take the matter up with the Rockefeller Foundation.

SUFFRAGISTS AIM TO END INJUNCTION

BUT HOLDS HE IS FREE

Anti-Ratificationists Predict Enfranchisement Will Be Delayed a Year and a Half.

Special to The New York Times.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 22.—The frenzy and bustle of the last week is over and hotel corridors are almost empty tonight, for the fight on ratification of the suffrage amendment by the Legislature is believed to be about over. The general opinion is that the ratification resolution is out of the hands of the Legislature and in those of Governor Roberts now.

Under a temporary injunction granted yesterday, the Governor is prohibited from certifying ratification of the amendment to Secretary Colby. Argument to dissolve this injunction will be made early this week, and legal opinion is that it will be speedily granted. Legal authorities cite numerous precedents of the Tennessee Supreme Court that the Governor is not subject to the mandate of any court.

Governor Roberts, who holds the same view, is refraining from certification of the amendment to Secretary Colby until the argument of the injunction has been made. He declares he has no other course out of respect to the court.

Senate Gets Resolution.

The general opinion is, however, that all action by the House is over, for the ratification resolution has been transmitted by the Clerk of the House to the Clerk of the Senate. The resolution, therefore, is out of the hands of the House and cannot be returned except with the consent of the Senate, which is overwhelmingly pro-suffrage.

There is no reason, therefore, according to the suffrage members of the House, for the runaway anti-ratificationists remaining away. The latter, however, according to messages from Decatur, where they are staying, have no intention of returning at present.

Friends of the Governor attribute this to the fact that these members wish to take vengeance upon him and defeat certain tax and other general legislation in the passage of which he is interested.

The horde of suffrage and anti-suffrage forces have melted away overnight, and few are to be seen in hotels. Only the leaders who are interested in the legal battle which is to be staged now over the ratification resolution are here. They will stay to see the whole fight through.

Predicts Year and a Half Delay.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 22 (Associated Press).—The Tennessee Constitutional League, in a statement today predicted that the injunction against certification of the ratification of suffrage obtained yesterday, would prevent enfranchisement of the woman of the Nation for at least a year and a half, as far as Tennessee is concerned.

The Constitutional League, which has been fighting ratification in Tennessee on the ground that the State constitution prohibited the present Legislature from acting on the suffrage amendment and which claims to include both suffrage opponents and advocates in its membership, made its prediction in a message addressed to the Governors of Vermont, Connecticut, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana, Delaware and South Carolina. The league's message declared that Tennessee had not ratified suffrage, and served notice that any State oficial who attempted certification would be attacked for contempt of court under the injunction, which, the League announced would, if necessary, be carried to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The message of the Constitutional League, which was sent out yesterday and was made public tonight, said:

"Secretary Colby will also be enjoined by amended bill filed by Charles S. Fairchild and the American Constitutional League at Washington.

"There is no reason for any stampede in other States on account of Tennessee's alleged action today and press reports assuming the ratification as completed are entirely misleading. Therefore, we earnestly ask you to makee careful examination of ratification status before doing anything that may have a tendency to complicate the coming Presidential election and the election of Governors, Congressmen, Legislators, &c., in many States."

Governor Roberts in a formal statement tonight declared he had been informed by State Attorney General Thompson that the action of the two houses of the Legislature constitutes ratification of the amendment, and that consequently he would countenance no act intended to nullify the ratification and the will of the majority by the minority, "either by flight and abandonment of official duty upon the part of the members, or otherwise."

"I will exercise and bring to bear all the legal and legitimate powers of the office of Governor to consummate in an orderly and legal manner the certification of the action of the Legislature to the proper Federal officials," he declared.

Filibusters Centre of Interest.

DECATUR, Ala., Aug. 22.—The thirty-one filibustering Tennessee legislators were the centre of a demonstration this afternoon when a train passed through here, carrying Mrs. James S. Pinchard, President of the Southern Rejection League, to her home in Montgomery. Mrs. Pinchard left Nashville, Tenn., early this morning, believing that the suffrage fight, so far as Tennessee is concerned, is over.

Mrs. Pinchard invited them to go to Montgomery to spend their "exile." Colonel W. T. Sanders of Athens, Ala., National Democratic Committeeman for Alabama, headed a delegation from Athens with an invitation to the Tennesseeans to go to Athens. He declared that the citizens there are prepared to throw open their homes to them for as long as it is necessary for them to remain away from Tennessee to break a quorum of the House.

Senator Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama, who is at his home in Birmingham, has been invited to address the filibusters here tomorrow night.

MME. YAW, SINGER, WEDS YOUNG CONCERT PIANIST

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 22.—Mme Ellen Beach Yaw, the coloratura soprano, and Franklin Cannon, the concert pianist, were married today at the home of Mme. Yaw's sister, Mrs. B. F. Thorpe. They started immediately on a short tour of coast resorts, after which they will be at home at Mme. Yaw's Covina home. From here they will start out together on concert tours, the first of which will begin in October.

The marriage ceremony was simple, only a few relatives and friends attending. A few boys and girls from the Lark-Ellen Home for Orphans later called on Mme. Yaw.

"The greatest thing in the world is home," said Mme. Yaw. "Where love reigns, where all is harmony: that's the ideal of home and that's the greatest thing in the world."

"People—young people, especially—must understand that it is not position in the world, not beauty, and not fine clothes that can make a home enduring. Only unselfish love can do that.

"To be happy together permanently, two persons must be in harmony mentally. They must agree on the big things of life; then the little differences easily may be smoothed over. Every woman should know how to cook. The rocks that so often wreck the matrimonial craft are on the dining table. I intend to be my housekeeper."

This is Mme. Yaw's second marriage. She is 52 years old, and Mr. Cannon is 37.

TEACHERS INVITED TO UNITE WITH LABOR

WANTS MINIMUM OF $2,000

Many Changes in School Laws to be Recommended to Convention at Binghamton Tomorrow.

An invitation to teachers' organizations to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor, coupled with a declaration in favor of further increases in teachers' salaries until the minimum pay for a teacher in this State is $2,000 a year, is contained in the report of the Committee on Education of the New York State Federation, which will be submitted to the State organization at its annual convention at Binghamton, N. Y., tomorrow. The report was made public yesterday by Peter J. Brady, Chairman of the committee.

The report declares for "a thoroughgoing and complete revision upward of teachers' salaries, which at present are outrageously low, especially in rural districts, and a State law to the effect that the minimum actual salaries for teachers shall not be less than $2,000 a year."

"While some progress was made in securing better pay for teachers at the last session of the Legislature," the report continues, "there is still a wide gap between the salaries paid and the amount necessary to attract the most efficient and capable talent to the teaching profession, and we urge that additional increases be immediately granted to permit teachers to live in health and comfort.

"Much of the success in securing increased salaries for teachers at the last session was due to unanimity among the teachers themselves in co-operation with the State Federation of Labor, and we call the attention of the teachers to the well known and successful policy of our unions that in 'unity there is strength.' We invite them to become affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and thereby take their proper place with the great American labor movement in its ever onward and successful march of progress for the securing of better and more equitable justice for humanity. The State Federation of Labor will give every possible aid to assist the teachers in organizing unions."

Other recommendations of the Committee on Education include a State law to furnish free text books to all school children, legislation to compel State and local educational authorities to provide dental, optical, medical and surgical care for all pupils, compulsory establishment of kindergartens, free school lunches, the repeal of the State law giving a charter to the Rockefeller Foundation and the General Education Board, compulsory education of children up to the sixteenth year, limitation of prevocational training to children of fourteen years and over and of vocational training to children of sixteen years and over, more free State scholarships for public school graduates in higher institutions of learning, improved facilities for play and gymnastic training, establishment of State and city supervised vacation camps, a State law providing for salaries for members of Boards of Education and their selection by election instead of by appointment, the appointment of representatives of labor on the State Board of Regents and the establishment of public forums in connection with all schools.

Other recommendations include declarations in favor of the establishment of self-governing school and district councils of teachers, laws to safeguard the tenure of office of teachers and forbidding dismissal without trial, a law requiring each teacher to do some professional improvement work during every three-year period with pay while doing so, consideration of the establishment of all the year schools and State control of so-called business and trade schools.

The report condemns elaborate graduation ceremonies as throwing an unwarranted expense for dress upon children of poorer families. It proposes a form of agreement between unions and employers regarding apprentices who are attending vocational schools and approves the plan, formulated by Governor Alfred E. Smith, for the rehabilitation by special vocational training of these physically incapacitated in industry.

WANTS OIL PLAGUE ABATED.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Aug. 22.—Protests by New Jersey coast residents against the laxity which has permitted large quantities of floating oil to spoil bathing and fishing along the New Jersey shore will culminate tonight in a meeting of Summer residents and fishermen here to take steps to determine what is responsible for the continuation of the nuisance all Summer and to determine whether some official, either State or Federal, has not the power to abate it.

The presence of oil in large quantities all along the coast from Sandy Hook to Atlantic City is said to have caused thousands of dollars in damage. Many of the bathing pavilions have practically been put out of business, as the film of oil overlaying the water has made a tub bath a necessary sequence to surf bathing, even when the bather has had the hardihood to risk having person and bathing suit covered with such a sticky, gummy substance as crude oil mixed with surface impurities of the water.

The fishermen have suffered financially for several reasons. Their nets in many cases have been all but spoiled by the coating of oil. In many cases fish by the hundreds have been killed by the oil getting into their gills, and have been cast up on the beaches. During the last week more than fifty barrels of fish caught by fishermen out of here have been thrown away as the oil in their gills made them unfit for marketing. Some varieties of fish, like bluefish, have apparently been driven from the coast by the presence of the oil, and the failure to make the usual catch is likely to cost many fishermen their season's profit.

Owners of private estates along the New Jersey shore have also incurred heavy loss by the destruction of lawns, shrubbery and flowers bordering on the beach, due to the oil being carried across the beach by heavy waves.

The exact cause of the plague of oil has not been determined. The oil tanker Gabrille grounded on the Brigantine Shoals late in July and got clear after discharging her cargo of 1,000 tons of crude oil, but it is not believed that this one accident could have caused so widespread a distribution of oil.

It has been conjectured that part of the oil may come from oil burning steamships cleaning out their burners just before going into New York harbor or by the cleaning of oil barges which lie off the Staten Island shore. Another theory is that the oil scum is due to waste from the oil pipe lines ending in the Amboys, Bayonne and Jersey City.

Officials in this neighborhood, including the authorities at Long Branch, Rumson, Allenhurst and Spring Lake will be asked to co-operate with the committee which is expected to be appointed by the Seabright meeting to end the nuisance.

FOUR DROWNED AT BEACHES

Four young men met death by drowning in the waters in and near New York City yesterday. Three rescues from drowning were reported from Coney Island.

When three watchmen saw a young man undress and dive into the Harlem River at 143d Street early yesterday morning they thought he was going in for a swim. When he failed to reappear after a long interval they took his clothes to the West 135th Street Police Station, where they were identified by his mother and sister as being those of James Monahan, 21 years old, of 1,214 Bryant Avenue, the Bronx.

W. E. Weingold, 20 years old, of 980 Prospect Avenue, the Bronx, was drowned while swimming in the Hudson River on the Jersey shore, opposite Dyckman Street. Friends who were with him in a motor boat from which he dived and policemen grappled without success for the body.

Max Lerner, 22 years old, of 341 Beekman Avenue, the Bronx, was drowned at Orchard Beach, the Bronx, late yesterday afternoon. He became exhausted while beyond his depth. Policemen recovered the body, but too late for resuscitation.

Edward Hammer, 24 years old, of 1,102 Longwood Avenue, the Bronx, was made helpless by cramps while swimming at Glen Island, New Rochelle. He sank before aid arrived. His body was recovered. He fought with the Third division, regular army, in France, and was an employe of the United States Rubber Company. He is survived by a widowed mother, with whom he lived.

At Coney Island, Mrs. Celia Bernhardt, 42 years old, of 402 Monroe Street, Brooklyn, was rescued by a life guard after she had been knocked down by a wave. Morris Linnicht, 17 years old, of 426 East 136th Street, was brought in by life guards after he had become exhausted beyond the life lines. Max Bayer was taken out of the water at West Thirtieth Street, after he had dislocated his left shoulder. After treatment at Coney Island Hospital, all three went home.

Mayor Hylan was a visitor at Rockaway Beach yesterday, where some estimates placed the number of pleasure seekers at 400,000. The police said more than 250,000 visited Coney Island.

TELLS OF PARIS CONDITIONS.

Dr. Clark, Head of Christian Endeavor Union, Preaches Here.

In spite of the war and all of its sacrifices, Paris is giving more attention to pet dogs than to little children, according to the Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark of Boston, President of the World's Christian Endeavor Union, who has just returned from a long stay in Eastern and Central Europe. Dr. Clark expressed this opinion yesterday afternoon in the course of a sermon in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church. There was a large audience, including several hundred Christian Endeavorers.

"In France the poverty one sees is heart-breaking," said Dr. Clark. "And yet there are many dog stores in Paris where little animals can be obtained at fancy prices," continued the preacher, "and there is a demand for jeweled dog collars. Attendants are employed to give all their time to caring for these pet dogs in costly bassinets, and yet within a short distance are starving babies."

Dr. Clark added that he understood there were such dog stores in most large American cities.

The Christian Endeavor President said that another sign of the times even worse than the "pet dog situation" was the desolation everywhere on the Continent. He said the hatred and mistrust were terrific and that there was no way of knowing every man was not a spy.

"There are armed guards at every imaginary line that separates one country from another," said Dr. Clark. He added that it was almost impossible to get from one country to another "even though you have a message to give."

"Oh, young men and young women, you live in wondrous times," he continued. "I envy you your youth. Ten years ago the world was largely made up of kingdoms. Today it is largely made up of republics. We live so near to all these changes that we cannot realize their significance."

Dr. Clark said there "was something in the religion of Jesus Christ that cannot be killed by any war. He said he found the pastor of a Calvanistic church in Budapest literally starving to death and was able to get together $500 for him and his family. "Yet the rich profiteers there were spending more than ever before," Dr. Clark said. He described the work of the Budapest Christian Endeavor societies, which includes a committee to win back would-be suicides.

The speaker said that Finland was another country that has suffered greatly. "Some of my friends lived recently for nearly four weeks on a kind of bread made from birchbark," Dr. Clark said.

ZORN, KING'S ARTIST, IS DEAD IN SWEDEN

Famous Painter Also Had Done Portraits and Etchings in This Country.

WORKS IN MUSEUM HERE

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 22.—Anders Zorn, the Swedish painter, died here today. He visited the United States in 1911. He was a contributor to the fund to enable Swedish scientists to pursue their studies in the United States

Anders Leonard Zorn, the famous Swedish portrait painter, etcher and sculptor, once lived in this country, and some of his work hangs in the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Chicago Institute of Art. He gave $25,000 to the fund which started the Sverig-Amerika Stiftflsen, the new Stockholm organization allied with the American-Scandinavian Foundation of New York.

With his etcher's needle and his brush he pictured many of the world's celebrities. He was the portrait painter of the King of Sweden and members of the Swedish and other royal families. In the United States he made portraits of Grover Cleveland, William Howard Taft, Saint-Gaudens, Mrs. Potter Palmer and many others. He also was a sculptor, and his most important work is the statue of Gustavus Vasa in Mora, his home in Sweden.

Zorn was born in Mora, Province of Delarne, Sweden, on Feb. 18, 1860, and he attended the Academy of Fine Arts in Stockholm. He traveled in Spain, Italy and England, painting water colors, and while in London learned the art of etching from the Swedish artist, Axel Haig. He painted his first oil pictures in England in 1888 and sold his "Fisherman from St. Ives" to the Luxenbourg Museum. He painted a portrait of himself at Florence in 1889, which found a place for itself in the Uffizi.

He first came to this country in 1893 and exhibited at the World's Fair, Chicago. His room full of paintings at that exhibition was one of the sensations of the art gallery, much admiration being levelled at his picture called The Omnibus, in which the cross lights from the windows, making strange shadows upon the passengers, were rendered with extraordinary fidelity.

He then began a series of portraits which led him eventually to the White House, where he painted the portrait of President Cleveland and later President Taft. His etched portraits were as popular as his paintings, and the etching of Mr. Taft was in several exhibitions.

GUARD MINISTER IN PULPIT.

Preacher Feared Attack Because He Criticised Summer Colonists.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 22.—Fearing to return to his church after he had heard threats of tar and feathers following his charges of immoral conditions at Washington Crossing, a nearby Summer colony, the Rev. Frederick Kopfman, pastor of the Titusville Methodist Episcopal Church near here, today appealed to Sheriff Rees to protect him while he conducted services in the church.

Accompanied by the Sheriff and Detective Stevenson, the minister went to the church, which was well filled, and conducted the services. There was no demonstration of any kind against him.

The remarks of the minister some days ago that women were lying about the beach scantily clad and that "spooning" was indulged in openly by the members of the Summer colony resulted in much indignation. Some of the colonists suggested that it might do the pastor some good to be ducked in the river or "treated to a coat of tar and feathers."

TWO NOW DEAD IN WRECK.

MERIDEN, Conn., Aug. 22.—William E. Cotter of Springfield, Mass., fireman of the New York to Springfield Express train which was wrecked south of this city late yesterday, died in the Meriden Hospital late tonight from burns received in the accident.

This brought the death list of the wreck to two, George E. Bill, engineer, of Hartford, having been killed outright. Eleven other persons who were injured had been discharged from the hospital tonight.

C. L. Bardo, manager of the New Haven road, and I. Rudd, chief engineer of the Public Utilities Commission, both said they believed the wreck was caused by a stone or wooden board being left on the tracks, probably by small boys.

RATTLESNAKE AT LARGE.

Police Lieutenant Suprised in Fort Washington Park.

One does not expect to encounter snakes—least of all a rattlesnake—in a city park. Lieutenant Van Curen of the West 177th Street Police Station was taking a quiet walk recently in Fort Washington Park, which, situated on the northern part of Manhattan Island, retains much of its primitive wildness. He was following an unfrequented path near the river when he found his progress disputed by a snake. As a boy he had lived in the mountains, where he had become familiar with many varieties of snakes.

The Lieutenant, as he regarded the snake closely, said he recognized it as a baby rattler. He was off duty at the time, having neither revolver nor nightstick, and as he wore low shoes he hesitated to attack the reptile. While he was deliberating what to do under the circumstance a stranger wearing heavy, nobnailed shoes appeared unexpectedly on the scene. The stranger, taking in the situation at a glance, jumped upon the rattler and trampled him to death.

An assiduous search through the park has failed to reveal any other such snakes or nests that might have been inhabited by them. Workmen in the park recently dislodged some old rocks which, it is believed, might have been a lair of snakes. It is possible that the snake encountered by Lieutenant Van Curen might have made its escape from a private collection.

TIGERS BEAT YANKS IN BATTLE OF HITS

Hugmen's Rally Falls Short in Eighth and They Lose Again to Detroit, 11 to 9.

BODIE FANS IN A PINCH

Bases Are Filled When Ping Fails in Hero Role — Each Team Uses Three Pitchers.

Ping Bodie unloaded the big crash of the afternoon at the Polo Grounds yesterday in a heavy scoring game between the Yankees and Tigers. It was a triple to the right field corner. As there were no home runs spilled around the Harlem scenery, Ping's effort was the clout de luxe of the ball game, but there was one severe bit of criticism to be directed at Ping's drive. He delivered it at the wrong time and the Yankees lost the ball game, 11 to 9.

Ping toed the dish five times during the sultry afternoon. Once he found the bases clogged to capacity, and twice he gazed upon two brother Yanks imploring him to do some damage and send them home. Did Pingo answer the call for help? He did not. He fanned in the first inning with the bases filled, and repeated in the eighth when the Yanks put on a big rally and cut down a five-run lead until the score was 10 to 9 against them. Two runners were on the bases, a hit would have tied up the game, and Ping brought the inning to a close by striking out. So disgusted was Mr. Pizzola over his failure that he did not raise his head until he had reached his position in centre field. Ping had previously brought the sixth inning to a close with two on the sacks by grounding to Bush.

"If he only had hit that triple at another time," was the moan of 36,000 fans as they traveled out at the end of the game. The three-bagger, it might be mentioned, came into the game in the third inning, when Ping was the first batsman to face Howard Ehmke. It developed into one run, but would have been good for several if Ping had dropped it into another section of the pastime.

It was a sad day for pitchers. Jack Quinn faded out early, after being heavily bombarded by the Tigers. Lefty Thormahlen ambled in for a short stay, and then came Ernie Shore, who was an improvement on his predecessors. But Ernie went out by the pinch hitter process in the eighth and Bob Shawkey finished the game. For the Tigers Ehmke went along well for a few innings, but he lost his grip in the eighth and gave way to Red Oldham, the latter giving way in turn to Doc Ayers. It was the Doc who played the cruel trick on Bodie in the eighth when Ping was all set for the hero stakes.

Five Hits for Ty Cobb.

Cobb had a big day with the stick, getting hits on each of his first five trips to the plate. In the ninth Ty faced the opportunity of making it six straight, but he lofted to left field and Lewis camped under the drive. In the sixth Ty raced from second to third on Veach's fly to Bodie, and when Umpire Nallin called him safe four pop bottles were thrown by fans in the upper and lower stands behind third base. Another was thrown later when Nallin changed to the other side of the diamond at the end of the inning. All landed close to players or umpire, but nobody was hit. One fan was dragged from his seat and placed under arrest for tossing the glassware.

The Hugmen trailed most of the way and appeared to be in line for another one-sided trimming, but they put on a rally in the eighth that turned the big crowd into a frenzy of excitement. Hits by Ward, Ruel and Meusel, two passes and an error by Bush served to chase four runs over the plate and put the Yanks back in the game. They fell one run short of tying the Tigers.

The Tigers picked up a run in the opening inning. Young drew a pass and moved along to second on Bush's sacrifice. Cobb sent him over with a single to left. Ty was left when Veach flied to Bodie and Heilman went out on a fancy catch by Ruth.

In the home half of the first the Hugmen went to the front. Peck walked and reached third on Pipp's single to left centre, Pipp reaching second on the throw-in. Ruth was purposely walked, filling the bases. Pratt's sacrifice fly to Shorten enabled Peck to score, and a pass to Lewis again crowded the corners. After Bodie had died on strikes Ward bounced a hit off Jones's shoes and Pipp registered. Ruel forced Ward at second, ending the inning.

Shorten's double along the left field foul line started the Tigers on the way to a tie score in the second. Jones bunted safely, and when Quinn threw past Pipp in a belated effort to get the runner Shorten crossed the plate.

Tigers Pick Up Two More.

Two more runs drifted over for the Tigers in the third. Bush singled to left and hustled along to third on Cobb's single to right. Veach forced Cobb at second with a grounder to Pratt, Bush scoring on the out. Heilman's hit off Quinn's glove sent Veach to second. After Shorten had flied to Bodie, Jones doubled to right, scoring Veach and sending Heilman to third. Stanage ended the inning with a grounder to Pipp.

Five hits added four runs to the Detroit score in the fourth. With one out, Young singled to centre and Bush beat out an infield roller. This ended Quinn's term on the hill, Thormahlen replacing him. Cobb's single to left sent Young home, Bush being held at second. Donie advanced on Veach's fly to Ruth and scored on Heilman's single to left. Cobb reached third on this hit and Heilman advanced on the throw-in. Flagstead's pass filled the bases, and when Hale appeared at the plate to bat for Jones Huggins derricked Thormahlen and called on Shore. Hale slapped a single to short right field, scoring Cobb and Heilman and sending Flagstead to third. Hale raced to second on the throw-in, but there was no more scoring, as Shore got Stanage on strikes.

Flagstead replaced Shorten in right field and Pinnelli succeeded Jones at third when the Tigers took the field in the fourth. The Yankees pushed over a run in this frame on Bodie's triple to right centre and Ward's infield out.

The Tigers went out hitless and runless in the fifth, this being the first inning that either condition prevailed.

Peck started the Yanks on the way to another run in the fifth when he opened with a double past third. He finished the journey on two successive infield outs, Heilman to Ehmke being the order in each.

Bottles Fly at Nallin.

Cobb was first up in Detroit's sixth and he bounced a double off Peck's leg. Veach flied to Bodie, and when Umpire Nallin ruled Ty safe at third after a flashy play by Peck four pop bottles came from the stand behind third base. Ty scored on Heilman's double to right, but Harry was left.

The Yankees got another lone marker in the eighth. After Peck had fanned Pipp drew a pass and advanced on Ruth's infield out. Pratt also walked, and then Lewis clipped a single to left, on which Pipp rode home.

A pass to Bush, Cobb's fifth hit and Veach's sacrifice fly to Ruth furnished still another run for the Tigers in the eighth.

The New York eighth was full of excitement, the Yanks cutting four runs off Detroit's five-run lead. Ward and Ruel got clean singles and Meusel's scratch hit filled the bases. Ehmke walked Peck, forcing in a run, and Oldham was called to the box. Pipp flied to Veach for the first out. Ruth's walk sent in another run, and when Bush fumbled Pratt's grounder Fewster, who ran for Meusel, crossed the plate. Oldham then gave way to Ayers. Lewis forced Ruth at third and Peck registered. Bodie's strikeout closed the inning with the score 10 to 9.

An excusable fumble by Peck paved the way to Detroit's final run in the ninth. Pinelli, first to face Shawkey, was safe on the bobble, Stanage struck out and Ayers furnished a surprise with a double to left centre, scoring Pinelli. In this inning Cobb had his chance for his sixth hit, but flied to Lewis.

Promises Workhouse Term To Curb Bottle Throwers

Notice of drastic measures to suppress bottle throwers at local baseball games was sounded last night by Magistrate Jesse Silberman in discharging Ernest De Lucca, a clerk, 29 years old, of 339 East 121st Street in the Night Court. De Lucca had been arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct at yesterday's Yankee-Detroit game at the Polo Grounds. Police Reserve Captain C. J. Casson of the Headquarters Division made the arrest, charging that De Lucca had thrown a bottle in the fifth inning as a means of showing dissatisfaction over a decision by Umpire Dick Nallin on the bases. Magistrate Silberman discharged the prisoner in Night Court for lack of evidence, but with the following admonition: "I want it known that if I had found you guilty, or if I find any one else guilty in the future of the dangerous practice of throwing bottles at baseball games, instead of inflicting a fine I will impose a sentence in the workhouse. This bottle throwing has got to stop."

CARDINALS WIN TWO.

Defeat Braves, 3 to 2, in Ten Innings, and Follow with 11-2 Victory.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 22.—St. Louis made a clean sweep of a four-game series with Boston by taking a double-header today, 3 to 2 and 11 to 2. The first game, which went ten innings, was won on singles by McHenry and Lavan and a double by Heathcote. In the second game McQuillan weakened after the third and the locals won easily.

Curves and Bingles

Cobb was received by the fans much better than on the day before. The writers whom Ty had blamed for something that happened in Boston had taken the opportunity to explain Cobb's side of the story and the fans accepted the explanation. A few jeered him, but the boots were drowned out by applause.

As the White Sox were winning another while the Yanks were losing to the Tigers, the Hugmen dropped back one more game in the pennant race. This morning they are three and one-half games behind the leaders.

The sale of all seats was stopped shortly after game time. The big stand was sold out some time before the game started and then the bleachers were filled up.

Ruth went through another game without a hit. He walked twice in his five trips to the plate, fanned once and was thrown out at first base on two occasions.

The Tigers have won as many games in this series as they accounted for on their two previous visits at the Polo Grounds. They lost two out of three on their first trip here and three out of four on the second.

An odd feature of the game was that not one inning was completed without one of the teams scoring. The Tigers scored in every inning except the fifth and seventh. The Yanks scored in these two frames, as well as in the first, fourth and eighth.

A fancy catch by Babe Ruth in the first inning prevented Heilman from getting five hits in as many times at bat. Babe got the ball close to the wall. On four subsequent trips to the plate Heilman collected three singles and a double.

The Yanks must give up those pennant ideas unless they are able to gain some ground at the expense of the second division clubs. After taking nine of their first eleven games with the Tigers they have dropped four of the last six.

GIANTS BEAT CUBS IN OVERTIME TILT

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—The Giants are held in high regard here in Chicago. There is no club on the National League circuit whose advent on the lake shore is more welcome, and fans always flock out to the north side in thousands, hoping to see the everlasting daylight knocked out of them. To be sure, it hasn't often happened lately, but it's a nice, enjoyable hope anyhow.

There's one fault found with the Giants here, however, and that is, they're so impatient. There may be a dandy pitchers' battle going on, with the crowd enjoying it to the utmost. All of a sudden, the New York gang gets sick of it and wades in and cracks it wide open. That's what happened today in the eleventh inning, and the Giants' childish behavior changed a splendid 1 to 1 tie into a messy, unpleasant 4 to 1 defeat for the Cubs.

And so 17,000 disappointed fans trooped out through the portals shaking their heads and saying, "What's come over the Giants? Nice, gentlemanly fellows they used to be earlier in the season, too. Why, if those boys don't look out, first thing they know, they'll be winning the pennant."

It was the third and final game of the Giants' first series of this Western trip and their second victory therein. In company with their fraternal foes across the East River, they gained ground upon the league-leading Reds, who were gently but firmly walloped by the Robins.

It was a chill clear day here in the city on the lake and the wind that swooped in from the northeast had teeth that were tipped with ice. Nevertheless, the fans of Chicago beat their way against the breeze to the north side park in such numbers that they jammed the place pretty thoroughly. They got so interested in the pitched battle between Fred Toney and Jim Vaughn that they didn't even know that they were shivering with cold as well as with excitement.

No Break Until Eleventh.

It wasn't a game that abounded in hair-raising situations. The rival twirlers were going along too well for that. A man on the base baths was a rare spectacle—until the eleventh, and then the whole place was filled with galloping Giants. When ten innings had passed into history Toney had allowed four hits and Vaughn had been touched for half a dozen, while errors had figured in the lone tallies made by each team. One inning later Toney's hit register still showed the same four, but ten safeties had been run up on Big Jim and the game was over with a crash. The Giants found Vaughn as easy in the eleventh as he had been puzzling in the previous sessions.

The final coup de grace was administered to Big Jim Vaughn by the equally Big George Kelly. Kelly took hold of one of Vaughn's twisters in the eleventh, and how he did elevate that ball! He acted like an anti-aircraft gun shooting at a Zeppelin. He hoisted the sphere over the fence and way off into the outlying district. Frank Frisch was sojourning on first base at the time, so the blow was good for a couple of tallies.

The Giants began proceedings by annexing one run in the opening inning. After that they did no further remunerative business until the eleventh. There were no hits mixed up with this initial tally, but an error by Terry helped a lot.

George Burns opened the contest by fanning. Terry fumbled Bancroft's grounder. On Young's rap, Bancroft beat Friberg's throw to Terry for an attempted force. After fouling off seven balls, much to the amusement of the throng, Frisch sent a long fly to Flack, Bancroft taking third. Bancroft and Young pulled a double steal, Bancroft scoring and Young taking second. Kelly walked and King fell a victim to Vaughn's wiles by the strike-out route.

Cubs Perish in a Hurry.

In the fourth inning the Cubs tied the score up in what looked for a long time thereafter like a safety knot. Davey Robertson benefited by one of the two bases on balls handed out by Toney during the course of the game. Robertson stole second and continued to the third corner when Snyder's throw to nip him went wild. Paskert scratched out a little infield single down Frisch's way and Robertson rushed home in safety.

For six innings thereafter both pitchers remained masters of the situation. In the eleventh also Toney kept on with the nerve of an ice man and the control of an expert gunner. But something happened to his opponent. Jim Vaughn slipped lamentably after twirling ten sessions of high grade baseball.

Young started the landslide with a two-bagger into deep left field. He raced over to third on a passed ball, and scored in a canter an instant later, when Frank Frisch hammered a single into centre. Then came the towering Kelly and his wild slash over the fence.

AKRON BEATS JERSEY CITY.

AKRON, O., Aug. 22.—A home run by Billy Purtell and a three-base hit by Jim Thorpe gave Akron the opening game in the series with Jersey City here today 4 to 3. Harscher outpitched Joe Finneran, but the local men bunched four of their six hits in two innings which gave them their only scores.

The Skeeters started out like winners, hopping on Finneran before he got thoroughly under way. Zimmerman drew a pass for a starter and Mooers laid down a bunt that Finneran couldn't field and Eddie was safe. Kane popped to Purtell and DeNoville was walked, filling the bases. Wigglesworth's long fly brought Zimmerman home and Mooers tallied when Zitman singled to left. Bauman's pop to Webb ended the inning.

Akron came back at the Skeeters again in the fifth. With one down Shields beat out a slow roller along the third base line. Walsh was passed and the two runners executed a double steal. Bauman threw out Webb, but Thorpe's long triple over Zimmerman's head brought Shields and Walsh across. Thorpe was left at third when Harscher threw out Shannon and the Rubber City's runmaking ended there for the day.

After pitching seven scoreless innings, Finneran confronted the ninth inning hoodoo that has become an obstacle in the numatics' path of late, ad Donovan's crew made a desperate effort to tie up the game. Zitman coaxed a walk and reached second while Shields tossed out Bauman. Shannon got his hands on Freitag's liner, but dropped the ball, the catcher being safe at first and Zitman reaching third. Harscher forced Freitag, Zitman scoring. Zimmerman popped to Webb for the third out.

ROBINS DOWN REDS AND DIVIDE SERIES

Pound Out Six Runs in One Prolific Inning and Take Game by Score of 6 to 3.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 22.—The Robins drew nearly abreast of the champion Reds by handing Pat Moran's team another walloping this afternoon, thereby evening up the four-game series. The victory, which was won by 6 to 3, shoved the Dodgers right up to the heels of the Reds, who hold first place by the slender margin of three points. The Flatbush clan, in turn, is only two games to the fore of the Giants, the race tightening up perceptibly by the New Yorkers' triumph over the Cubs.

One large and fruitful inning was enough for the Dodgers this afternoon. In the other eight frames Brooklyn was held scoreless by Jimmy Ring, who started the fray for the Reds, and by Fisher and Napier, who finished it up. Ring sailed along on an even tack for four innings, while Leon Cadore, on the mound for the Superbas, was having equal success with the opposing batsmen. What promised to be a close pitchers' battle was completely spoiled, however, in the fifth, when the visitors broke out into a hitting rash and pounded six runs over the platter before the storm subsided. The outburst was caused by six hits and a base on balls, and it settled the verdict then and there.

The Reds made some strenuous efforts to pick up a few runs in the late innings and threw such a scare into Wilbert Robinson that the rotund manager yanked Cadore in the seventh and sent Al Mamaux to the firing line. Before Al hove onto the scene the damage had been done, the champs having scored once in the sixth and twice in the seventh, until they were stopped by the relief twirler. In the eighth and ninth Mamaux continued his puzzling tenure of the hill and turned the Redlegs back as fast as they came to the plate.

After the Dodgers had tallied four of their six runs in the fifth, Ring received a summons in favor of Fisher, who finished the inning and went two more without further damage. Charley See batted for the pitcher in the seventh and Napier took up the reins for the remainder of the game, the Robins threatening but never getting as far as the run-making stage.

With the Reds hanging onto first place by only the margin of a thumbnail, about 22,000 fans turned out for the Sunday afternoon pastime, although the weather conditions were bad. Chilly winds and a cloudy sky failed to keep the attendance down and the seats were filled long before game time. The Dodgers' triumph was a bitter blow to the Reds, who were several games out in front after their first two victories in the Brooklyn series.

In the first four innings Brooklyn made only one hit off the offerings of Ring. The Superbas went out in order in the first, but Myers inserted a single into the proceedings in the second after one man was out. Myers stole second after Koney had flied out, but he died there when Wingo threw out Kilduff.

The Reds raised a rumpus in the third and seemed on the way to pushing a flock of runs across. Sicking walked to begin the canto. Wingo lined to Griffith and Sicking was forced by Ring, Olson to Kilduff. When Groh singled to left for the first Red hit Ring pulled up at second. Daubert failed to come through and forced Groh at second.

The big explosion came in the fifth. Petey Kilduff headed the parade by singling through Groh. Miller's sacrifice bunt sent Kilduff to second and the runner was advanced to third when Cadore's fly dropped safely in right field. Olson came through with a single to left that scored Kilduff and sent Cadore to second. Johnston smacked a single to centre, scoring Cadore. Olson went to third on the hit and when Sicking, handling Roush's throw, threw to first to nip Johnston, the ball bounded away, Olson scoring. Johnston was held to first. Griffith walked and Wheat brought Johnston across the platter with a single to right, Griffith going to third.

A Brace of Runs Added.

With four runs chalked up Ring was relieved and Fisher took up the twirling burden. The first man to face him, Myers, lofted a long fly to Roush that scored Griffith, and Wheat raced to second on the throw to the plate. Koney poked a single into the middle garden and Wheat cashed in with the sixth tally of the hectic session. Kilduff, up for the second time in the period, terminated the agony by grounding out to Groh.

In their half of the fifth Neale began for the Reds by beating out a hit to Kilduff. Sicking flied out and Wingo forced Neale at second. Fisher surprised the experts by inserting a single into the game, Wingo going to third on the surprise party. Groh ended the inning by forcing Fisher, Kilduff to Olson.

Cadore had to be erased from the game before the Reds could be stopped in the seventh, when they scored two markers, their last effort of the afternoon. Sicking led off with a single and the former Giant went to third on Wingo's safety. See, batting for Fisher, laced a nasty grounder at Kilduff, who made a glittering grab and nipped Wingo at second on a close play. Sicking scored while the highway robbery was being perpetrated. Groh's single to right sent See to third, and Cadore was given the air at this juncture to allow Mamaux to try his luck with the Reds. Al forced Daubert to fly out but See trotted across the plate after the catch.

In the eighth and ninth Mamaux held the Reds well in hand and kept the three-run margin handed to him by Cadore. Olson led with the stick today, adding two singles to his total. Griffith and Mamaux were the only Dodgers who failed to hit safely, all the others getting one blow apiece. Groh was Cincinnati's busiest representative with the hickory, Heinie getting two hits off Cadore.

The Robinson clan moved on to Pittsburgh tonight, where they will engage George Gibson's Pirates in an important series beginning tomorrow. Burleigh Grimes will probably lead off for the Robins in the first battle.

DEMPSEY AND MISKE NOW TRAINING HARD

With Battle Only Two Weeks Distant, Champion Boxes Several Rounds Daily.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Aug. 22.—The interest of the country's boxing enthusiasts will be directed to this section for the next two weeks. Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, and Billy Miske, St. Paul pretender to the title, have both arrived here to complete preparations for their ten-round battle which will be promoted by Floyd Fitzsimmons on Labor Day afternoon. The two ring rivals will engage in stiff training work up to the day of the bout. Both are eager to attain the best physical condition. Dempsey regards Miske as a worthy foe and is training hard, especially in view of the fact that more than a year has elapsed since the champion donned the gloves for serious ring combat.

Dempsey has established his training quarters near the battleground. The title-holder is now settled in a commodious twelve-room house almost adjacent to the arena in which he will defend his title. The house has been extensively fitted out for the purpose of providing every detail necessary to the champion's conditioning. In addition to Dempsey and his manager, Jack Kearns, a staff of camp assistants, including sparring partners, trainers, rubbers and a chef, have been installed.

Dempsey Ring Near Arena.

A temporary ring has been pitched in Promoter Fitzsimmons' baseball park near the Dempsey camp, where the champion will box daily with his sparring partners. Manager Kearns has announced that Dempsey will spar every afternoon at 3 o'clock with Bill Tate, colored heavyweight; Panama Joe Gans, Harry Greb of Pittsburgh and several others of the staff. Tate and Greb have both signed for bouts which are on the card in addition to the title match. Tate will engage the veteran Sam Langford and Greb will oppose Chuck Wiggins of Indianapolis.

Dempsey looked in good shape this afternoon after a jogging session of an hour on the turnpikes, a brisk rubdown and a splashing session in Lake Michigan. The title-holder plans to be fully prepared for Miske.

"Too many champions have suffered defeat because they thought they could not be beaten and refused to take their training seriously," he said today in explaining his intensive program. "I, for one, do not intend to be caught napping."

No referee has as yet been selected for the bout. Manager Kearns has registered an objection to a Chicago arbiter whose name was submitted, and has requested that a Benton Harbor referee or one enjoying a national reputation be selected for the important task. Promoter Fitzsimmons has not disclosed his choice, but it is understood that question has been amicably settled and the identity of the referee will be disclosed within a few days.

Miske, who has been training in Chicago, appears to have benefited immeasurably as a result fo his vacation, which lasted for more than a year. The St. Paul battler, once a terror to the men of his weight, is said to have improved under the period of inactivity. Miske's weight is reported at 185 pounds and he appears bigger and stronger than ever before. The St. Paul battler is confident of his ability to extend the champion and to stay the limit against Dempsey, as he did on two previous occasions.

Miske's present ability is somewhat of an unknown quantity. The St. Paul heavyweight has not engaged in a real ring test for more than a year. Given the form that was his several years ago, Miske would be a formidable foe in a limited bout for any boxer of his weight. The sturdy Minnesotan possessed a speed that was remarkable in a man of his poundage, a peculiar cleverness which made him a hard target for an opponent seeking to land an effective blow, and in addition a hitting propensity which made him feared.

Not Awed by Champion.

There is little chance of psychology adversely affecting Miske's efforts against the champion. There is nothing about Dempsey to awe the challenger or with which Miske is not familiar, except, possibly, the Salt Lake City boxer's possession of the title. Miske has engaged Dempsey on two previous occasions, prior to the time Dempsey battered Willard into submission. In these two bouts Dempsey emerged victorious, and there were reports attending both scraps that the Salt Lake City heavyweight did not seriously extend himself. Whether these reports contained any element of truth will be determined in the forthcoming bout. Dempsey will be boxing under different conditions than before. He will be defending his title against a capable foe, a shifty boxer and a dangerous hitter. The tornadic offensive characteristic of the champion should carry him through to a quick and decisive victory, for comparisons give Dempsey distinctive advantage over his prospective rival. It seems reasonable to assume, however, that the champion will take no chances, but will strive to polish off Miske with neatness and dispatch.

EVEN BREAK FOR BRITONS.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—Harry Vardon and Edward Ray, British professional golfers, broke even in two 18-hole best ball matches here today with locals.

Eddie Loos and Leo Diegel, professionals, defeated the Britons, three up, this morning, but in the afternoon Vardon and Ray won from Charles (Chick) Evans and Bob Gardner, amateurs, on the home green.

In the morning match Loos shot a par 71, Diegel was one over, and Ray had a 73. Vardon picked up his ball on one hole. In the afternoon match Evans turned in a par 71 card, Ray took 73, Gardner 75, and Vardon was high with 78. Both matches were on the Lake Shore course.

In the matches here Vardon and Ray made their poorest showing since coming to this country, losing two out of three. Evans and Phil Gaudin beat them yesterday. The Britons play in South Bend, Ind., tomorrow.

Mrs. William A. Gavin, playing against Dr. A. C. Haight on the links of the Belleclaire Country Club yesterday, eclipsed the record for the course by covering the distance in 81 strokes. The previous ladies' record for the course was an 84, which Mrs. Gavin hung up herself and which had not been equaled since. Yesterday she went out in 41 and came back in 40, finishing off with a 3 on the last hole. The members of the Belleclaire club were so impressed by Mrs. Gavin's playing yesterday that they are planning a nine-hole match between her and Walter Hagen, when the former open champion returns to the Metropolitan district.

Mrs. Gavin's card follows:

Out .... 5 5 4 4 3 5 3 6 6—41
In .... 5 5 4 5 5 3 6 4 3—40—81

E. F. Woodward, Houston, Texas, tied with F. Deal, Canton, Ohio, for first place in the registered tournament staged this afternoon by more than one hundred shotgun men. Each had 98 birds out of 100. J. H. Ferry of Lima, Ohio, was second with 96, and three were tied for third place with 94, as follows: George Nicolia, Kansas City, Mo.; C. A. Dogert, Sandusky, Ohio, and G. Butler of Lawrence, Kan. MOESKOPS IS VICTOR.

Holland's Cycling Champion Outrides Kramer in Match Race.

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 22.—Peter Moeskops, the champion bicycle rider of Holland, accomplished something no other foreign rider ever did when he defeated Frank L. Kramer, America's leading cyclist, in two straight heats of a one-mile match at the Velodrome here this afternoon. Numerous foreign stars have come to these shores, including Walter Rutt of Germany and the late Emil Friol of France, but no other European rider was ever able to beat Kramer, let alone turn the trick so decisively as Moeskops did today.

Moeskops rode both heats of the race in the same manner. It was not because Kramer wanted him to ride that way, but because Moeskops outjumped him and made him ride in second position. Moeskops in the first heat tore into the last lap in front, Kramer trying hard to go by him, but could not. He drew up even with the Hollander, but was unable to pass him. The second heat was ridden a good deal like the first, and again Moeskops rode from in front. On the back stretch a half a lap from home Kramer seemed to be inches ahead, but not far enough to cut down on the track and take the lead. Moeskops won by half a length, just as he did in the first heat.

Oscar Egg, the popular Swiss rider, defeated Alfred Goullet in the Australian pursuit race. Egg overtook Goullet after the race had gone three miles. Goullet proved a great deal easier for Egg than the fans expected.

Willie Spencer won the five-mile all-star invitation for the professionals, but was disqualified for teaming with Reggie McNamara and both riders were suspended indefinitely. First place went to Ray Eaton, who was but inches behind. Jake Magin was second and Eddie Madden third.

VOSHELL DEFEATED BY THROCKMORTON

FIRST SET DECIDES ISSUE

Throckmorton Breaks Through Opponent's Service and Thereafter Gains Speed.

In the long postponed final round of the invitation lawn tennis tournament for the Fletcher Cup on the turf courts of the Greenwich Field Club, Harold A. Throckmorton scored an impressive and somewhat unexpected victory over S. Howard Voshell yesterday afternoon by the decisive scores of 6—4, 6—3, 6—2. The tournament was begun way back in June, but the final round was repeatedly put off because of impossible weather conditions. The conditions yesterday, moreover, were far from ideal. The court was still heavy and slippery from the rains, and the balls frequently developed eccentricities on the bound that were impossible to anticipate. Considering this condition, the play was of high calibre, although the Brooklyn southpaw, excepting in the first set, which was nip and tuck all the way, was far from doing himself justice.

The match partook of the nature of an upset in that the New Jersey champion defeated a rival ranked higher than himself on the national list and who also, on the basis of comparative showings in several of this year's tournaments, was looked upon as the probable winner. Voshell has had two victories over Watson M. Washburn to his credit this Summer, while Washburn, in turn, has defeated Throckmorton. But the latter was at the top of his game yesterday, while Voshell, after the first set, seemed to lose interest in the proceedings, and threw away many points by banging comparatively easy returns into the net and out of court. There were many points where, by a bit of an effort, Voshell could readily have landed his racquet on the ball. But the effort was not forthcoming. The Brooklynite is capable of lifting his game to great heights, but the inclination yesterday, very obviously, was lacking. Possibly the fact that he was just off the train after his week in Longwood had its effect in slowing up his game.

Breaks Through Voshell's Service.

All this, however, is not to detract from the credit of a highly commendable and noteworthy victory for Throckmorton. Even in the first set, when Voshell was hitting hard and accurately and serving with his accustomed severity, Throckmorton had enough of an edge to break through for the decisive points. It was the Jerseyman's break through Voshell's service when the game stood 5—4 in the first set that really decided the match, for after that Throckmorton gained confidence and the speed and aggressiveness that go with it, while his opponent correspondingly slowed up his game and lapsed into frequent evidences of carelessness.

Throckmorton won through his success in charging the net and finishing off the points with sharply angled volleys, even more than through the errors into which his tactics forced Voshell. He ran to the net on every opportunity, while Voshell was frequently content to stay back. Throckmorton's service bothered his opponent so much that not once in the entire match was it broken through. In following it to the barrier the youngster had trouble on a number of occasions through faulty footing, due to the slipperiness of the ground, but his volleying throughout was admirable and his eye for the openings characteristically keen. He put plenty of pace on the ball at all times, and his strokes off the ground had power as well as right direction. His earned points considerably overbalanced his errors, and his victory was as clearly deserved as it was decisive.

The match opened with Throckmorton serving, and, despite the fact that he double-faulted twice in the opener, he carried away the game after the points had twice gone to deuce. Voshell promptly countered by taking his own service with the loss of but one point. In the third game, with the points 15—40 against him, Throckmorton applied additional speed and pulled up to deuce, running out the game after the count had twice been tied. Games continued to follow service, with both men playing strongly, up to 5—4. Then came the break through Voshell's service that was the decisive factor in the match. Voshell contributed to his own discomfiture with a double fault, and missed a chance of putting away another all-important point by cross-courting the ball a bare two inches outside the line.

Throckmorton Makes Pretty Play.

Throckmorton again started serving in the second set and delivered himself of one of the prettiest plays in the match in the opening game. This was a marvelous recovery of a shot to deep court that was all but unreachable, but which Throckmorton not only connected with, but turned into a winning shot for himself by a fine drive down the sideline. The break in this set came after Throckmorton was leading at 4—3. With both staying in back court, the Jersey champion outdrove Voshell, and then for the finishing points came to the net and won by slamming the ball at his opponent's feet. With the games at 5—3 in his favor, it was a simple matter for Throckmorton to finish out the set on his own service, which he did without allowing Voshell a point.

The final set was positively one-sided, with Voshell having apparently already conceded victory to his opponent. The southpaw took the opening game on his own service, and then dropped five in a row, Throckmorton applying increasing pace and playing beautifully from the net. Set point came up in the seventh game with Voshell serving, but Throckmorton netted the ball at the important moment and Voshell took the game. In the next, Throckmorton ran the score to 40—30, and then captured the final point and the match on a clean service ace.

"Congratulations upon showing of California team. Davis and Roberts surprised everyone at Longwood. Finals will be a California event. East-West match looks like great contest this year." In this message Julian S. Myrick, President of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, expressed to Dr. Summer Hardy, President of the California Lawn Tennis Association, the feelings of all who saw the magnificent semi-final match in the national doubles championship at Longwood. To say that the defeat of William T. Tilden, 2d, and Charles S. Garland by Willis E. Davis and Roland Roberts was a surprise to most of the tennis followers at Boston, is putting it mildly. While Roberts and Davis have been playing good tennis, Tilden and Garland were expected to uphold the honors of the East and to make a strong bid for the title against its former holders and new winners, William M. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin.

The showing of Davis and Roberts is even more surprising in view of Davis's statement at Seabright that he was not particularly interested in doubles. "I think I am going pretty well in singles and I want to stick to that end of the game," he said there. He went into the doubles mainly to help out his fellow-townsman, Roberts, and their performance at Longwood shows that they must be reckoned one of the best teams in the country.

While the outcome of the doubles gives the Davis Cup Committee something to think about in picking the combination which will be sent to Australia, it also puts a new angle on the East-West match which will be played at the Germantown Cricket Club in Philadelphia on Sept. 9, 10 and 11. For a number of years this intersectional contest has been one of the features of the tennis season. After the Californians' clean sweep at Newport and their remarkable play at Boston, the Eastern Committee will be forced to consider its team's candidates carefully to find a combination strong enough to win the series at Germantown.

"It looks now as though this will be the closest match in recent years," said Mr. Myrick after the semi-finals. "Everyone knows that the Californians play good tennis, but it must be confessed that the way they have gone through some of the best Eastern events is surprising local enthusiasts, to say the least. With Southampton affording another week of play on grass before the national championship, they ought to be in splendid form for the singles at Forest Hills the week of Aug. 30.

"Certainly there has been no such rivalry in recent seasons. It is almost certain, of course, that Johnston, Davis, Griffin and Roberts will represent the Coast. After their showing in singles and doubles the East must put its strongest combination forward if it expects to win. Just who will be selected for its team can not be decided now, for much will depend upon the outcome of the national singles. George W. Wightman of Boston has been asked to serve as Chairman of the committe to select the Eastern representatives and that committee will follow play very closely during the next two weeks, to choose the best team available."

Entries are still being received by the United States Lawn Tennis Association for the veterans' and father and son championships which will be decided at Forest Hills the week of Aug. 30. Entries for the open singles closed on Aug. 20, with the list more than filled. The tournament committee hopes to limit the draw to 128 players, and will go over the entries carefully today seeking to eliminate, if possible, contenders who fail to meet the requirements for entry. Even with a field of 128 players the committee will have a hard task to get the tournament finished on schedule, due to the number of titles which are determined during the week. The singles draw will be made at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, at the office of the Association. Competitors have the right to be present when the draw is made.

Harry Parker, Treasurer of the Nation Championship Committee, calls attention to the fact that the advance sale for season tickets for the championship closes on Wednesday. Although the advance sale has been heavy, there are still many good seats available and those who wish to be certain of having them should send applications immediately to 101 Park Avenue, New York. It is necessary to close the sale a few days before the tournament begins, in order to arrange details for the sale of single day tickets. The unsold balance of the season tickets will be available as well as seats in a special stand that is devoted entirely to these tickets. Every effort is being made to provide enough booths to handle the crowd quickly, thus avoiding long waits in line at the grounds.

WOODMERE TENNIS ENDS.

Harry Steinkampf and Halsey Wood were the winners in the final round of the doubles, which closed the invitation tennis tournament of the Peninsula Club of Woodmere, L. I., yesterday afternoon. They defeated A. J. Ostendorf and H. H. Bassford in four sets, 6—4, 10—8, 1—6, 6—2. The court was in splendid condition for the match and the play was fast all the way.

Steinkampf played a stellar game for the winning team and Wood backed up his partner well, his steadiness having an important bearing on the victory. Ostendorf, too, was at the top of his game, and some of his sensational backhand drives that found the corners aroused the gallery to particular enthusiasm.

The break of the match came in the second set, wherein the games were repeatedly deuced, and a point or two the other way would have altered the entire aspect of affairs. The ultimate winners relaxed in the third set, after the hard going in the 10—8 tussle, but recovered in time to take the fourth and final with the loss of but two games. Bassford bore the brunt of the winners' attack and stood up under it well during the second and third sets, although Ostendorf was mainly responsible for keeping his team in the running.

Comment on Current Events in Sports.

TRACK AND FIELD

America again has demonstrated her supremacy in athletics and the nation rejoices. In the current Olympic games at Antwerp the strong-limbed wearers of the American shield advanced to a distinctly brilliant triumph over the greatest athletes of the universe. Old Glory has once more been flung to the breeze as a token of success in international sport, and the athletes responsible for the triumph have covered themselves with lasting glory. Victories have been recorded which will be stamped indelibly in the pages of athletic history, and in addition records, thought safe from destruction, have been relegated to the discard by the nation's stars.

This latest success was by no means unexpected. It was positively forecast, and will be accepted more or less as an inevitable climax to the extensive program of preparation undertaken by the nation in advance of the classic games. In a strict analysis it is but natural, for America is far and away superior to any other nation in point of track and field development. The interest is here; the enthusiasm, the will, the material and, most important of all, the system, and this combination will keep America in the forefront of world athletics for years to come.

The result of the meet is particularly gratifying in view of the unfavorable conditions encountered by the nation's representatives. Almost from the time the athletes sailed from home they were beset with objectionable experiences. The conditions aboard ship were poor, decidedly so, and interfered noticeably with the activities of individuals. Conditions abroad were not what they might have been. There was little time for the athletes to accustom themselves to Belgium's climate or to train ashore after their arrival. A remarkable string of injuries eliminated some of the foremost members of the team. McDonald, McGrath, Ray, Butler and Plant were among the formidable athletes thus affected. Fortunately, however, the team was exceptionally well balanced and the holes were quickly filled.

It is a matter of regret that the conduct of the games should attract censure to the Belgian officials. It is patent from reports, however, that the International Olympic Committee in making the award to Antwerp made a mistake. The Belgian city was incapable under post-war conditions of accommodating an attraction of such huge importance, according to reports of conditions there. The patronage was disappointing, too, which only emphasized the mistake. It must be remembered, nevertheless, that the task of promoting the games entailed herculean effort under trying conditions. Probably when first-hand reports are carried back by the athletes it will be discovered that the Belgians acquitted themselves well under the circumstances.

BASEBALL

The tragic death of Ray Chapman has thrown a veil of sadness over major league baseball from which the sport will not entirely emerge during the remainder of the season. The taking off so suddenly of a sterling player and one of the game's best loved exponents was a shock that put all talk of pennants in the background for the time. Pennants are of little account in a time of tragedy such as baseball suffered last week.

That the sympathy of the entire baseball world goes out to the family and to the Cleveland Club in its great loss has been clearly proved. The city which the dead player had so well represented on the diamond over a stretch of years paid him the honors usually accorded upon the death of a public official and mourned as few big cities mourn the passing of a representative citizen. Notables of State and nation that their messages of condolence to the family. Chapman was the first major league player to be fatally injured on the field and in death he was honored as no other player ever was honored. The death of this sterling player has brought into clear view the fact that a ball player is judged by his public service just as are those in more important lines of endeavor.

The one note of bitterness which for a time threatened to develop from the unfortunate accident is, happily, passing. The tendency of some to put the blame on Carl Mays, because of certain difficulties in other years, has been offset by the sound words of cooler heads, who never doubted that the affair was accidental. When there seemed to be some idea of arousing major leaguers against the New York pitcher Connie Mack delivered timely words that had much weight, and the priest who delivered the touching eulogy over the body of Chapman last Friday also has been heard. The owners of the New York club have come out with a statement that must be reassuring to the grief-stricken pitcher, but it hardly is likely that there will be need of any support in this particular way.

Meanwhile the Cleveland players are face to face with the task of recovering from the disaster or losing the pennant that seemed all but won. The blow which took Chapman will be felt in every game that the Indians play during the closing weeks of the campaign and the followers of the sport are hoping that the shock may not result in the complete elimination of the Indians before Speaker can rally the depressed forces again. An instance of the sympathy for the Indians was shown at the Polo Grounds Saturday when the score of a defeat in Boston was posted on the board. Not a ripple of applause came from the stands. That is the feeling of the fans in general and to Tris Speaker and his game fighters they extend, as they did to the family of a great ball player and gentleman, their sincere sympathy.

TENNIS

The invitation tennis tournament which begins today at the Meadow Club of Southampton, Long Island, is the connecting link between the two national championships—the doubles, won by William M. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin at Longwood last Saturday, and the singles, scheduled to start at the West Side Club, Forest Hills, next Monday. The team event was a succession of surprises, and it is impossible to foretell what the individual championship may have in store for the tennis fans. Southampton may not provide much advance information, for it is fairly certain that the three leading contenders for the American singles title, Johnston, Tilden and Williams, will not compete, although the world's champion is to be seen in the doubles, paired with the Providence youngster, Arnold W. Jones. Charles S. Garland, last year's winner of the Southampton tourney, is to be on hand again and will team with Samuel Hardy, the veteran Captain of the Davis Cup team, in the doubles. Willis Davis, who a year ago conquered Norman Brookes on the courts of the Meadow Club, only to lose to Garland in the finals, is to try again for the historic trophy this week and, in partnership with Roland Roberts, is likely to give the Southamptonites a sample of the terrific hitting that carried the scratch California team to the finals of the national doubles last week. Clarence J. Griffin, the recent Newport winner, is also a probable contender at Southampton, while such Eastern stars as Watson M. Washburn, Dean Mathey, S. Howard Voshell, T. R. Pell and R. Lindley Murray are fairly sure to turn up. An interesting team in the doubles event will be composed of the veteran champions, William A. Larned and Robert D. Wrenn, this being their first appearance in years in an important tournament.

Recent tennis happenings have provided much food for thought on the part of the Davis Cup Committee, and by the middle of September the problem may be still more complicated. Unquestionably the results of the tournaments of August at Sea Bright, Newport, Longwood and Southampton, as well as the coming national singles championship and the East-West matches, will be carefully considered in selecting the team that goes to New Zealand in December. As a member of the new champion doubles team and a victor over his partner in the Newport singles, Clarence J. Griffin is entitled to serious consideration, particularly if it is proved beyond a doubt that Johnston and Tilden cannot work out a harmonious partnership. Garland's showing in the national doubles hurt his chances severely, and he must defeat some good men in the next two weeks to recover his standing. Williams also has done nothing since his return from abroad to support his claim to a place on the team, with the possible exception of his victory, with Harte, in the Newport doubles, which was offset by their one-sided defeat at the hands of Davis and Roberts at Longwood. Only a series of actual matches will settle the discussion.

TURF

Now that Man O'War has so definitely disposed of the last of the pretenders to the three-year-old crown, there is an increased public demand that the great colt be raced against the stars of the older division. With his easy victory in the Travers Stakes at Saratoga Saturday, he so completely established his supremacy among racers of his age that to start him in such events in the future would be to use him only as a show horse. His owner, Samuel D. Riddle, fully realizes this and therefore will undoubtedly change the earlier plans for the balance of the campaign.

While Mr. Riddle originally intended to start Man O'War only in races for horses of his age he probably did not expect so quickly to exhaust the field of conquest. Man O'War remained a great attraction while there was the slightest possibility of his being defeated or put to a hard test, but if he is to retain his drawing power he must invade a new field. There have been several offers of match races in addition to the fixed attractions in which the colt would meet such speed wonders as Sir Barton and Exterminator, and Mr. Riddle is now considering such a contest for his racer.

There is some sentiment in favor of keeping Man O'War in his class so that he may certainly go through the year without a defeat. However, to follow such a plan would be to pamper a horse capable of accomplishing greater things than any yet attempted. There is nothing to be gained by keeping his record clean through picking spots for him and an expressed or indicated apprehension that he might be defeated would amount to admission that he is not as great a horse as most persons think he is.

As a matter of fact Man O'War is a super-horse, undoubtedly the greatest horse this country, probably the world, has ever seen, and among racing men there is not the slightest doubt that at scale weights he can take the measure of any horse in America. The outcome of a campaign against the older horses would, in the opinion of most experts, prove him invincible.

Mr. Riddle may be perfectly right if he refuses to start his colt in handicap events, for from the hands of the handicappers Man O'War might receive such weight as would cause his defeat. But there can be no objection to a weight-for-age race, which is the fairest test of horses. Two of the best of the weight-for-age races in the country are the Saratoga Cup and the Jockey Club Stakes and it is hoped Man O'War will be a starter in both of them.

GOLF

Highly satisfactory to the Middle Western professional golfers was the victory on Saturday at Flossmoor of Jock Hutchison in the annual championship tournament. Easterners, too, will feel that the outcome serves opportunely to placate a group in the still new P. G. A. of America, which has shown signs of Bolshevist peevishness under the terms of Rodman Wanamaker's endowment of $2,580 in purses each year in addition to one diamond, one gold, two silver and twenty-eight bronze medals.

The original plan was to hold the event yearly on a New York course. In 1916 it was launched at Siwanoy and held last year at Engineers. At the beginning of the present season, however, the West made considerable more than a quiet request for the tourney, and it was assigned to Flossmoor.

As for the tournament itself nothing more can be desired than to have yearly repetitions of the three great events already held. The event ranks for the professionals second only to the national open in importance, and indeed outranks this in value of prizes. It is the pros' sole match play event of the year, and has been copied largely from the British fixture, including such features as sectional qualifications. Vardon and Ray regarded with such pride their own British professional regulations that they declined graciously to enter last week's event without qualifying, although invited to do so. They arrived in this country too late for this preliminary step.

With a highly satisfactory tournament there, it is to be regretted that many of the members of the P. G. A., mostly Middle Westerners, displayed such short and narrow vision in the annual meeting two weeks ago at Toledo when by a bare majority it was voted to change the qualifiying conditions. Such hard workers as Secrtary Alex Pirie and President Jack Mackie spent most of their spare time last Winter in perfecting the organization, making it a truly helpful group for the rapidly increasing number of golf professionals, and laying plans for even greater tournaments in the future. Yet in a meeting in which many voting delegates were ignorant of the purposes of the P. G. A. it was voted to change the system of sectional qualifying. Unless this is remedied by a mail ballot by next year the 1920 tournament will comprise a field of the thirty-one highest pros in the national open in addition to the champion.

If that method is not changed the professional championship is certain to lose its importance and interest. Excepting always the leaders, pros from Massachusetts, for example, would not enter a national open held in Minneapolis for the sake of gaining entrance to the P. G. A. tourney. The professionals' own event will be resolved into something entirely too local to have country-wide importance, particularly when the additional open happens to be held in a city isolated from the main golf centres.

MARATHON RACE IS WON FOR FINLAND

By P. J. PHILIP.

order of the start, but when the men reached the open road they began to get into place. Though the earth path along the road was wide, several took to the cobbles to save time. At the end of the first mile the race had settled down, the Americans running in thirteenth place, according to the classification by countries.

At the end of five kilometers the men were running in this order: Gitsham (South Africa), Kolehmainen (Finland), Broos (Belgium), Blasi (Italy), Dumkoski (Finland), Loosman (Esthonia) and Jorquera (Chile).

At ten kilometers the Americans had advanced one place to twelfth, and at fifteen kilometers they were eleventh. By this time the runners had spread out over a considerable distance, and the first twenty covered nearly a mile. At ten and fifteen kilometers the order was almost the same among the first ten, with Gitsham leading, closely followed by Kolehmainen and with Broos, Blasi and Dumkoski following, running well together.

At twenty-five kilometers the Esthonian, Loosman, began to make up distance and passed the Italian, Blasi, and the Belgian, Broos. At thirty-five kilometers he had taken second place from Gitsham and began pulling up on Kolehmainen. Some runners had dropped back by then, and the Americans, Mellor and Linder, running fairly close, began to improve their position.

At forty kilometers, Kolehmainen was leading by only 100 yards, with Loosman second and Blasi and Broos some distance behind. The same positions were kept for the rest of the distance.

Americans Break Relay Records.

American athletes in the Olympic Stadium made a new world's record today. In the 400-meter relay race Paddock, Murchison, Scholz and Kirksey covered the distance with the baton in forty-two and one-fifth seconds, beating the record set up by Germany in 1912 by two-fifths of a second.

The order of the race was the same as yesterday, and it was run in almost the same way, each of the American runners winning his distance and handing the baton on without fault in the regulation distance. The race showed, better than almost any other event, the superiority of the American runners over short distances.

Second place was taken by France, third by Sweden and fourth by England, which, owing to accidents to Edward and other runners, had to use a team almost entirely composed of reserve men.

In the 3,000-meter team race the Americans also made a wonderful display. As a team they were by far the best in the field of five countries which started. Almost all the way they ran together, leaving the lead most of the time to the other nations. At the fifth lap Hallock Brown, Shardt, Dresser and Shields were still grouped, with Brown shepherding them on. Devaney, the fifth member of the team, had fallen back, but the four others held their places well till the last round. The Swede, Brackman, led till the straight and then Hallock Brown drew out and with a great dash beat him by a yard at the tape for first place. Schardt came in third, Dresser sixth, Shields ninth and Devaney twelfth.

America Increases Its Lead in Olympics to 113 Points

ANTWERP, Aug. 22 (Associated Press).—The total points thus far scored in the Olympics are: America, 199; Finland, 86; England, 75; Sweden, 75; France, 29; Italy, 26. The other points are scattered, no one of the twelve nations having as much as twenty points.

Today's points, not including the Decathlon, were: Finland, 21; America, 20; Sweden, 12; France, 8; England, 8; Italy, 6; Esthonia, 5; Denmark, 3; Belgium, 3; Luxemburg, 1.

The total of the first three places gave the team a magnificent victory of ten points against second place to England, with twenty points, and third to Sweden, with twenty-four. The race was the longest won in these games by Americans, and the winner's time was good—8 minutes 51 1-5 seconds.

In the 1,600-meter relay race tryouts the American team, although it took second place, behind South Africa, showed great winning possibilities. The baton was taken in this order: Schiller, Dretnall, Meredith and Shea. Meredith made good time over the 400-meter distance from a flying start, and Shea finished ten yards behind the South African, who made the time.

The final of the discus throwing was won by Finland, which has been piling up points all the week. The Finns took first and second places, with the American thrower, Rope, third, and William Bartlett fifth.

Forty-nine Men Start.

ANTWERP, Aug. 22 (Associated Press).—The marathon runners got away at 4:12 P. M. Altogether there were forty-nine starters. The weather was cold and showery and chilled the spectators in the half-filled Stadium stands. It was fine running weather for the marthoners, however. The contestants passed over the country fields and through small villages, where the spectators watched the cavalcade of official and beflagged automobiles with more interest than they did the splashing runners. The contestants switched constantly from gravel patches and cobblestones and brick walks to mud roads. But it appeared to affect but little the stamina of the leaders.

Tatu Kolehmainen, a brother of the marathon winner, came in a good tenth. Tomoskoki, who captured fifth place, is a well-known runner who lives in Quincy, Mass., but, like the winner, who lives in New York, he came home to run for Finland on the eve of the Olympics, as he is not an American citizen.

Among the Canadian contestants in the marathon, Dellow, whose time was 2 hours 46 minutes 47 seconds, was placed thirteenth, and Scholes, fifteenth. His time was 2 hours 48 minutes 30 seconds. The other Canadian entries were not among the 32 who had finished when the time-keepers began to shut up shop.

Swimming Records Are Broken.

In the swimming events, Duke Kahanamoku of the American swimming team broke his own Olympic record of 1 minute 2 2-5 seconds by three-fifth of a second in the qualifying heat of the 100 meters, free style. His time was 1 minute 1 4-5 second. In the same event P. Kealeha of Honolulu won his heat in 1 minute 2 seconds. Norman Ross and W. W. Harris, Jr, also were victorious in their heats and qualified

In the 100 meter back-stroke, four Americans, R. Kegeris, Los Angeles; Harold Kruger, Honolulu; P. Kealeha and Perry McGillivray, Illinois A. C., qualified. In his heat Kealeha, in addition to breaking the Olympic record, smashed the world's record, his time being 1 minute, 14 seconds. Both Kegeris and Kruger also broke the Olympic record of 1 minute 20 4-5 seconds, made by H. J. Herner of the American team in Stockholm in 1912.

In the 1,500 meters free style swim, Ludy Langer, Honolulu, and E. T. Bolden, Illinois A. C., qualified, Langer winning his heat in 24 minutes, 28 4-5 seconds.

Americans Walk Out.

Two decisions in the boxing preliminaries, which ended after midnight, evoked loud jeers and dissenting cries from the Americans present, which other spectators sought to drown with hisses and booing. The uproar continued for several minutes and culminated in virtually all the Americans present walking out. Most of the American spectators were army and navy officers.

The objections of the Americans were first voiced over the decision in the bout between E. Hartman, American, and Walker, South Africa. During the first three rounds Walker was floored twice, and the Americans evinced surprise when the bout was declared a draw and an extra round was ordered, at the close of which Walker was declared the winner.

This decision drew from the Americans shouts of dissatisfaction, but the walkout occurred when Hebrants, a Belgian, was awarded the decision over S. Vogel, Pastime A. C.

While the Americans were filing out of the arena, the American coach, Webb, complained to the judges, who in turn complained to Major Graves, the American boxing representative, for what they termed the insulting remarks of several of the Americans. Major Graves went into the dressing room and criticised Webb for failing to take up the matter through the proper channels. Webb, however, was backed by the entire boxing team. He insisted that his action was justified and Major Graves agreed to protest the Hartman and Vogel matches to the international jury.

The scene, which for a time was threatening, was calmed, and the program was concluded with F. de Genero, Paulist A. C., an American, outpointing a Frenchman in a neat and speedy bout, which made the thirteenth American win out of seventeen bouts in the preliminaries.

ARIA IS WINNER IN CLASS A YACHTING

Unable to sail their yachts from Manhasset Bay to Little Neck Bay because of the absence of sufficient breeze, yachtsmen of the Port Washington and Manhasset Bay Yacht Clubs did not compete in the eighth of a series of races of the Star class for the interclub championships yesterday. The committee delayed the start of the races an hour to await the arrival of the Port Washington yachtsmen. A dispatch boat was sent around the Great Neck point and brought word that none of the yachts from Manhasset Bay were in sight.

It was afterwards learned that the Port Washington yachtsmen encountered such a slight semblance of a breeze when they attempted to start that they considered it extremely unlikely that a race would be held.

Despite the fact that there was little breeze, an exciting race in Class A developed. Only a second separated the winner, George Abbott's Aria and the Milky Way, owned and sailed by F. W. Teves. After the race was over the committee disqualified the latter. Mr. Teves was sailing on the port tack with the Milky Way and B. L. Linkfield in the Maia was on the starboard tack. The skipper of the Milky Way did not give the right of way to the Linkfield yacht.

A second behind the Milky Way, Donald Cowl finished in the Tara, while two seconds later W. Clive Crosby finished in the Mars.

The light breeze came from the southwest, and it was of such a mild variety that it took the fastest yacht in the race 2 hours, 38 minutes and 10 seconds to sail the course.

NAVY OARSMAN INJURED.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ANTWERP, Aug. 22.—What may prove to be a serious loss to the Naval Academy crew, American champions and representatives of the United States in the Olympics, has occurred in an injury to the hand of Jacomini, bow. If Jacomini is unable to row in the eight, it is probable that Lee will take his place. It is thought that a change in the crew at this late date may damage the crew's prospects of victory.

Percy Kynaston Keeps On Collecting Tennis Titles

Percy L. Kynaston of Rockville Centre, L. I., has added two more tennis titles to his collection, the North Jersey Coast and the Housatonic Valley championships, taking the doubles also in the latter, with E. S. Chase as a partner, whom he defeated in the final round of the singles. Among Kynaston's victims in the Jersey tournament were Ralph L. Baggs, Ludlow Vandeventer and J. P. Stockton. He had already won the Nassau and Queens closed tourney and the Old Dominion title this season, giving him four important championships shortly after his graduation from the junior ranks.

COMMODORE'S CUP WON BY MOHAWK

Vice Commodore Critchley's Mohawk was the winner of the annnal race for the Commodore's Cup, held under the auspices of the Tamaqua Yacht Club yesterday. The race was 15¼ nautical miles over an ocean course that took the craft from the starting line off Manhattan Beach to tne Whistle Buoy off Rockaway Point, thence to and around Scotland Lightship and thence back to the starting line.

Not only was it an ocean race but the brush developed into one of deep sea navigation. A thick fog hung over the old Atlantic throughout the day, making it impossible for the craft to see any of the turning marks until they were within a few hundred feet of the buoys. Owing to the fog the race was more or less of a farce. William Bond's Champ II. should have been the winner. She made the best actual time over the course, but lost many valuable minutes through poor navigation. The yachts started on their handicap times, the first craft home being the winner.

JACK O' LANTERN VICTOR.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Aug. 22.—Abbott Brush sailed Leonard H. Byer's Jack o' Lantern to victory in the race among Arrow Class yachts this morning over the Indian Harbor Yacht Club's five-mile course. Through his clever handling of the yacht he secured the lead at the start and finished by a good margin ahead of Ralph E. Slaven's Hawk.

The Salony, owned by H. Newton Whittelsey, the only yacht to enter the race in the Indian Harbor One Design Class, was sailed by Mr. Whittelsey's 10-year-old son, Souther, better known as "Chick." There was a good breeze blowing from the southeast during the race.

HARD-FOUGHT RACE IN HARLEM ROWING

Louis Zoha, winner of the N. A. A. O. Association singles at Worcester, assisted yesterday in bringing victory to his crew in the most interesting race of the annual members' regatta of the First Bohemian Boat Club on the Harlem River. Zoha was a member of No. 2 crew in the eight-oared shell, and after a hard struggle over the half-mile stretch of water which marked the course, the shell was propelled home a half length in front of the craft holding Crew No. 1. No time was taken on the race.

The race was a bitter struggle from first to last. Crew No. 2 got away to a good start, and with a steady sweep gradually forged ahead of the rival shell. Coxswain Ed Kallina, with short, snappy barks, steadied his men when they showed signs of wavering with the race nearing the half-way mark and Crew No. 1 fighting doggedly for supremacy. The latter crew's stroke became ragged shortly after the start but the oarsmen recovered quickly and at the quarter-mile mark were gradually cutting down the lead of Crew No. 2. At this stage of the race Coxswain Kallina's muscular eight put added strength to the blades in an effort to shake off the rival crew. Powerful strokes by Crew No. 1, however, kept the shell a few inches from the lead until about 100 yards from the finish, when the effort told and Coxswain Nocar's eight began to weaken. Crew No. 2, spent after the stiff early struggle for the lead, wavered near the finish but recovered and flashed past the clubhouse float about half a length in front of the rival shell, while the crowd on the club balcony and float sent up a thunderous shout.

Joseph Blovsky showed promising form in carrying off the premier prize in the novice single gig event. Blovsky was forced to extend himself to his limit to win by less than a yard from A. Zoha, brother of the oarsman who finished runner-up to Jack Kelly for the national sculling title. These two oarsmen were foremost contenders from the start. A strong finish, however, gave the honors to Blovsky.

Coxswain Kallina enjoyed the distinction of sitting in two other victorious boats during the afternoon's sport. He was coxswain of the winning Crew No. 2 in the fouroared gig event, and in the closing race, a women's eight-oared barge test, he also barked orders to the crew.

The summaries:

Long Time Bonds

The amount and variety of long time bonds available at present low prices is limited, owing to the fact that most of the new issues are of short or medium duration. Corporations are unwilling to pay present burdensome rates of interest on new issues, except for a relatively short period.

Those desiring long term investments must depend largely upon old seasoned issues, and many experienced investors are now buying this class of security.

We can supply a limited amount of long time bonds at prices yielding around 7%, and we recommend the purchase of such bonds at the present time. We shall be glad to send details and circulars to those interested.

FINANCIAL SITUATION

Banking sentiment in respect to the country's Autumn demand for money and credit improved measurably last week. The impression was gathered in local quarters of prominence and also in the Middle West that the crop financing period can be gone through with without overstrain of bank resources. That is not to say, however, that bank statements may be expected to show from now on that the peak of the credit burden has been passed. It may be several weeks before the Federal Reserve institutions of the East will reflect the return of funds loaned to Reserve Banks of the interior, and, perhaps, longer before the Clearing House banks at New York will disclose in their weekly figures that deposits are accumulating and loans being paid off to substantial totals. A gulf still stands between the ability of the banks to meet agricultural and mercantile demands and a real easement of money at the major centres. But tendencies appear to be working to narrow the chasm. Speculation has largely been wrung out of the commodities markets, evidence being supplied in falling quotations in many directions. The effect of the general banking attitude against the expansion of new loans and close observation of the growth of standing lines of credit is coming further into the light as time passes. It is evident, also, that the conservation of credit in the last few months has come into favorable conjunction with falling prices for some grains, cotton, foodstuffs other than grain, and in the textile field. The fall of about 6 cents a pound in cotton this month means, naturally, a decrease of millions of dollars of credit necessary to carry the forthcoming crop while it is being fed into manufacturing channels.

The decline of wheat futures from the initial quotations of more than $2.70 per bushel when the market was reopened July 15 to around $2.37 indicates a revision downward of banking estimates of credit need next Winter, and this has been furthered by a fairly rapid flow of the old crop from storage into domestic and export consumption since railroad facilities began to loosen up a month ago. Since the Argentine put an embargo upon exports of wheat it has been noticeable that foreign demand in the United States has increased. August exports to date of wheat and flour equivalent have exceeded those of the same period last year by more than 6,000,000 bushels. Cotton exports have contracted sharply this month, while the buying by spinners has been of the reluctant order, but the fall of the price has been commensurate with the receding demand and the movement stands as an offset to declining consumption in respect to the use of bank credit. The signs point definitely toward a lighter load upon the banks than was expected on July 1. But there is nothing in sight as yet pointing toward a genuine easement of credit costs during the early part of the Autumn, at least. While business has slackened in some directions, the aggregate of bank clearings and railroad gross traffic returns disclose the continuance of an enormous business turnover. The country continues prosperous, the healthy state of the investment market discloses large profits seeking employment in securities. While this situation exists, and it may be hoped that it grows stronger instead of sluggish, there is certain to be a steady call upon investment funds with a collateral demand upon credit. The railroads are planning to draw as far upon investment money as they are able for current needs, and it is expected that many industrial corporations will enter the Autumn market, anticipating needs of the Winter and Spring. The French Government, for one, will apply shortly for probably $100,000,000, and other foreign Governments are awaiting the opportunity of applying to American investors for funds. So it is seen that a demand will appear all the way along as credit conditions permit, which militates against the likelihood of an accumulation of investment credit in a fashion to lower the cost.

The stock market in recent sessions has been responding to some favorable developments, among them the change of sentiment toward Autumn credit demands. Rather small turnovers on the Stock Exchange last week suggested that the short covering of professional traders supplied the bulk of buying, but such a process is one of the earliest developments in a period of growing price stability. The money situation at New York was hardly conducive during the week to an expansion of buying for the rise and it may not be for some time. A moderate recovery after so sharp a reaction as has been experienced since the first week of July, however, is encouraging not only to holders of shares but to the general business community, and it goes without saying that firm or stable stock market prices would make easier the volume of new financing in prospect. Here and there the share list has disclosed unsatisfactory features, reflective either of unsettled conditions of trade or a lack of adequate working capital. This situation is likely to exist for a period because readjustments of supply and demand for products cannot be brought about in a few weeks, while the bankers will continue to be sparing in their loans to corporations which rely to a more than average extent upon temporary accommodation instead of building up adequate fixed capital.

One development which could be interpreted favorable to the stock market appeared in the railroad rate decisions of the States of New Jersey, California and New York. The New Jersey Public Utilities Commission decided that the Interstate Commerce Commission's rate award should be accepted because the increases "must be applied to intrastate as well as interstate rates to provide the return which Congress has declared the railroads shall receive, and it would be unfortunate if the States, assuming that they have the power, should restrict the general application of the increases." The New York State Public Service Commission, up-State, accepted the 40 per cent. freight rate decision at Washington with restrictions upon milk, cream and allied products, but rejected the proposed 20 per cent. advance of passenger fares. As freight rates are paramount, it is seen that these decisions point a line of action which will at least be closely studied by other Eastern States, especially as the great freight-originating State of Pennsylvania granted increases equal to the national schedule almost immediately after the Interstate Commerce Commission acted. The New Jersey body plainly indicated a doubt whether State authorities could object effectively to the Interstate Commission's ruling, but elsewhere action has forecast an attitude which may ultimately be carried into the courts. The Commerce Commission has broad powers to enforce its award everywhere, but the railroads are vitally concerned in the matter of general acceptance of new rate schedules on a prescribed day this week. They want to get a start into the new railroad epoch with as few restrictions as possible.

Burning Lubricating Oil

The wheels of all industry are due for a gumming up if the supply of lubricating oil is exhausted. There are only three types of lubricants—organic fats, vegetable oils and mineral oils. To attempt to use whale oil is ridiculous. Vegetable fats play too important a part in the food of the world to be considered available as lubricants, leaving mineral oils as the only hope. The skimming plant may be making a profit with crude at its present level, but it is not making anything like the amount of profit that it should be making if it were a complete refinery. Yet despite this fact—despite the constantly rising price of lubricants due to increasing demand—thousands of barrels of lubricating oil are burned under boilers in the United States today.

STOCKHOLDERS VOTE FOR BIG OIL MERGER

DETAILS ARE ANNOUNCED

The deal whereby the International Petroleum Company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, will take over the Tropical Oil Company, has at last been concluded. The plan for combining the two companies has been under consideration for about a year, and the official statement that it has been definitely arranged comes from G. H. Smith, President of the International Petroleum Company, and J. C. Trees, President of the Tropical Oil Company. Holders of more than 90 per cent. of the Tropical shares and a large majority of the stockholders of International have approved the arrangement.

It is planned to organize a new International Petroleum Company, Ltd., under the laws of Canada, authorized to issue at least 100,000 preference shares of a par value of $5, and at least 7,118,138 common shares without par value. The Tropical Company has outstanding approximately 1,575,000 shares and the International 2,606,802 shares of common and 100,000 shares of preferred.

Basis of Exchange of Shares.

For the outstanding stock of both companies the new International Petroleum Company, Ltd., will exchange its shares on the following basis:

To the Tropical Oil Company 1,804,534 common shares upon receipt of 1,575,000 shares of Tropical. After setting aside enough of the common stock to meet obligations, the Tropical will have 1,732,500 common shares of new International, which it will exchange in the proportion of 1.1 shares for each share of Tropical.

To the old International Petroleum Company, Ltd., 5,313,804 common shares and 100,000 preference shares, to be exchanged on the basis of one share common and one preference share for each preference share now outstanding, and two shares of the new common for each share of old common stock now outstanding.

The plan is of advantage to both companies, the one being a producing, refining and marketing organization capable of handling a larger production for its future needs, and the other a producing company without sufficient facilities for distribution. Their properties are in the same general latitude, and the new company will be one of the most powerful, if not the largest, oil company doing business in the Latin Americans. It will start off as a well-rounded organization, owning ample production, large refineries, a fleet of oil-carrying tankers and distributing stations.

The International's Field.

The International Petroleum Company, Ltd., was incorporated in Canada in 1914, and acquired control of three British corporations, the London and Pacific Petroleum Company, Ltd., and the Lagunitos Oil Company, Ltd., both producers, and the West Coast Oil Fuel Company, Ltd., a marketing concern. It operates in Peru, with a refinery and shipping port at Talara. It has nine tank steamers, with a combined capacity of 55,500 tons, and a 20,000-ton vessel under construction. The company supplies the local trade in Peru and exports to Chile, Ecuador and Panama. Surplus crude oil and naphtha are shipped in bulk to Vancouver. The company also purchases large quantities of Mexican oil. It has between 500 and 600 square miles of territory, of which only sixteen square miles have been drilled upon, besides 125,000 acres in Ecuador.

The Tropical Oil Company was organized in Delaware in 1916, and acquired the de Mares concession of 2,000,000 acres in Colombia. It has drilled three wells, estimated at from 1,000 to 5,000 barrels daily capacity each. The company is constructing a road and pipe lines from its wells to the Magdalena River, a distance of twenty-eight miles, and a refinery and tanks on the river bank. It is planned eventually to build a pipe line from the concession, about 300 miles, to the Atlantic Coast. The Colombian Government has consented to transfer of the de Mares concession to the Tropical Company, which has since inaugurated an aggressive campaign of development.

TO ENFORCE ZONE LAWS.

The Fifth Avenue Association announced yesterday that the policy of the association would be to enforce the existing zoning regulations in the Fifth Avenue district. The association has prepared a map showing the zones in the Fifth Avenue district within which buildings are restricted by law under the zoning regulations, effective July 25, 1916.

The map indicates the sections which are restricted for business use only, pointing out that within these districts not more than 25 per cent. of the floor space in any building can lawfully be used for manufacturing purposes unless such occupancy was in effect prior to the passage of the zoning law, July 25, 1916. The map also indicates the sections which are reserved to residential purposes.

Stock raising is the principal industry, but a considerable portion of the county is under cultivation, producing good crops of cotton, corn, wheat, peanuts, potatoes and fruit.

Weatherford, the county seat and principal town, is a prosperous community with a population of about 7,000, four banks with combined resources of over three and one-half million dollars. Transportation facilities are furnished by the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe, the Texas and Pacific and the Weatherford, Mineral Wells and Northwestern Railroads.

Westinghouse Air Brake Company

Its Dividend Record

Westinghouse Air Brake Company has maintained a stable earning record over a long period—through good years and bad. Since 1895 its cash dividends have averaged 20.8%.

These substantial cash dividends have been accompanied by stock dividends aggregating over 180% in the past 25 years.

In some years the stock dividend had a cash value far above its par. In 1912, for example, the 33⅓% stock dividend, based on the average price of the shares, had a cash value in excess of par or over 100%.

The policy of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company of conservatively capitalizing surplus earnings and enabling the shareholders to profit through the declaration of stock dividends, is one of the many that has established the splendid reputation enjoyed by the company among the investment public. These policies also are the foundation of our recommendation of this strongly safeguarded stock for investment

FINDS EUROPE NEEDS AMERICAN COPPER

INDUSTRY FAST RECOVERING

Edward Mosehauer of 42 Broadway, who has been in Europe for the last year in the interests of American copper producers, has returned. He says he found an encouraging outlook in Central Europe for future requirements of copper and other raw materials produced in the United States.

"Germany," said Mr. Mosehauer, "is coming back fast. She is showing a return to her old-time faculty for organization, solving her many problems, political, social and industrial, in a determined way.

"The Spa conference was helpful in many ways, and after further conferences have taken place and settlements been agreed upon industry will be free to satisfy the tremendous requirements for articles of every description. For example, the country is bare of manufactured copper articles, and a huge demand for copper will have to be satisfied. The participation of American interests in the large manufacturing companies is welcomed and is exerting a helpful influence.

"Industrially Germany has always been well organized for work, and there are many indications of a return to her former system of combinations for home and foreign trade. Manufacturing companies are well supplied with orders and foreign buyers are anxious to take advantage of a falling rate of exchange to pay for the labor to manufacture goods. Production is increasing, and more and more German products are being released for export. The latest is 30,000 tons of cement a month.

"Labor is settling down to work rapidly. The efficiency of the workmen in some large plants is rated at almost normal. Food is more plentiful, and rationing is being discontinued as rapidly as possible, with a consequent reduction in prices. Fixed prices developed a wide field for food speculators. The present crops are the best in five years.

"Czechoslovakia is busy, and her crops are good. She is able to export various of her home products, including sugar, to the United States. In Austria leading manufacturers see their country's only salvation in an alliance with Germany. Her present restricted territory can produce only two months' food supply, and depression is general.

"Sweden and Norway are occupied with orders for domestic and foreign trade, but certain industries are not without labor troubles. The consumption of copper throughout Scandinavia is normal. The development and use of her water power by Norway will require large tonnages of copper.

"At present the advance of the Bolsheviki is causing concern throughout Central Europe. The Germans have seen enough at close range to make a Bolshevist Government undesirable from their point of view. German observers back from Russia report that the strength of Bolshevism and the unlikelihood of its early collapse are due to the satisfactory condition in which the agricultural population finds itself."

HONOR FRANCE LABOR DAY.

Labor unions throughout the country will celebrate Lafayette Day and the anniversary of the Battle of the Marne on Sept. 6, in connection with the observance of Labor Day, it was announced yesterday by the Lafayette Day National Committee. Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation, has notified all affiliated unions that the Executive Council at a meeting on Aug. 10 adopted resolutions urging the triple observance.

The resolutions in part read:

"Whereas, Labor Day this year falls on the anniversary of the birthday of Lafayette, whose services to the American people in their hour of greatest trial made possible their victory in the War of the Revolution and paved the way for democratic government in this, our country, and

"Whereas, Labor Day this year marks also the anniversary of the Battle of the Marne, which effectually checked the German armies in their march of destruction and conquest, and by saving France rendered supreme service to the world-wide cause of democratic liberty, which is and always has been the cause of organized labor;

"Resolved, that the Executive Council urge upon all affiliated unions that in connection with their Labor Day celebrations this year appropriate recognition be given to the fact that the day is also the anniversary of Lafayette's birth and of the self-sacrifice of the heroes of the Marne."

Existing low prices for sound railroad bonds do not reflect upon their security, but are mainly due to present high interest rates. As interest rates decline bond prices should advance.

We therefore recommend the purchase of long term bonds in order that prevailing high returns may be obtained over a long period.

Next to Wheat—

Two-thirds of the newsprint used in United States is imported from Canada or made from Canadian pulpwood.

For year ended December 31, 1919, the amount of manufactured newsprint sold to the United States was over 650,000 tons, value $43,603,922.

Many United States investors are now placing funds in Canadian pulp and paper securities. Security is unquestioned, income is high and the prospects of increasing values very bright.

We originally financed very many of Canada's large pulp and paper corporations so that we are in a position to advise you about investing in them.

If you will write to-day, we will gladly send you a list of very desirable offerings.

Due to Tremendous Shortage

Caused by insufficient mills and machinery (which takes years to build) the pulp and paper industry is scheduled for an era of exceptional and continued prosperity.

For expansion of the business, we offer a limited amount of 8% preferred stock at par—carrying a common stock bonus of 50%.

Due to a small capitalization, a low operating expense, spendid management, tremendous demand and prevailing prices, the common stock bonus makes this an attractive and safe investment opportunity.

Sees Conditions Approaching Normal, Prosperity Everywhere—U. S. Looked On as World Supply Source.

One of the large number of American business men who returned from Europe on Saturday by the Holland-America liner Rotterdam was G. P. Kievenaar, who had been abroad seven months making a survey of Europe and Northern Africa for the National Association of Manufacturers. During his tour he visited England, France, Belgium, Switzerland, Italy, Greece, Spain and Portugal in Europe and Egypt, Tunis, Algiers and Morocco in Northern Africa.

Permanent world markets for American products are practically unlimited, if they are properly sought after and cared for, according to Mr. Kievenaar. His observations convinced him that despite difficulties between capital and labor, inflation of values and shortage of primary necessities in many countries, that the productive forces of commerce are rapidly approaching normal.

"The period of confusion and paralysis which immediately succeeded the end of the war is past," he said. "The entire world is showing the tremendous recuperative powers that it has always displayed following a great cataclysm. There is great general prosperity everywhere, despite heavy Government debts and the necessity of renewing properties that were allowed to depreciate during five years of strife.

"This coming year will see further strides toward normal, and there will undoubtedly be a more insistent demand for American manufactured products. Everywhere that I went I found a most significant fact to be true. That is this: In the reorganization of commercial relations that has followed the war, the United States has come to be looked upon as the great world source of supply. This is true not only of our raw and semi-manufactured materials, but also of our manufactured products, particularly textiles, machinery, building materials, automobiles and accessories, agricultural implements and luxuries.

"Of course we are meeting with competition and will meet with it all the time. But whatever the development of industrial progress in Europe, only the United States can supply the ever increasing demands of the world. Despite enormous purchases here during the last several years I found in every country that I visited that those purchases represented only the urgent necessities of the moment and not of normal demand. That has been waiting for more settled conditions that are rapidly coming into being.

"Then also the demands of the world are in new hands. The masses of people everywhere are richer than they have ever been before, and the level of their incomes, inflated by the war, is being maintained. As in the United States, they are buying in greater quantities and of better qualities than ever before.

"In Egypt, Tunis, Algiers and Morocco the people made enormous sums during the war and since peace was declared. The Egyptian 'fellah' is a rich man today. He buys automobiles and his women wear silk—and only silk. Egypt is a fine market for automobiles and accessories, agricultural implements of all kinds, including tractors; food products, textiles of cotton and silk and building materials, including structural steel. One Swiss salesman whom I met in Egypt told me that he had sold 5,000,000 francs' worth of silk in Egypt in ten days.

"The demand for automobiles in Egypt is very great and the incidents connected with their purchase is at times ridiculous. I myself saw a barefooted Arab pay 4,000 British pounds for a second-hand automobile of Italian make. He was a cotton grower and he had become rich through his cotton. Despite restrictions and the high price and scarcity of gasoline, almost any kind of an automobile can be sold anywhere in Europe, and with the automobiles, accessories, including tires, &c.

"In Tunis, Algiers and Morocco the purchasing power of the people is greater than in Egypt and there is great commercial activity there. The people, great growers and exporters of cereals, are extremely prosperous. There is a demand for iron and steel and for textiles. American plate glass and other glassware can be sold there, displacing the Belgian product.

"There has been a great deal of speculation in Greece, and as a result of the liquidation that followed it conditions now are somewhat uncertain. But when the present uncertainty is ended there will undoubtedly be excellent markets for the United States. Portugal, because of political conditions, does not present favorable prospects. Spain, on the other hand, is a good market and promises to become a better one. It is extremely rich and is in fine industrial shape. There is a tremendous market for machine tools, factory supplies, for textiles and for lubricating and mineral oils. This demand for oils, I may add, is universal throughout the countries in which I traveled.

"In brief, I return to make my reports unexpectedly optimistic. I am certain that American products have found a certain and assured place throughout the markets of the world. They can be kept there only by proper salesmanship of course, but we have the demand and, in nearly every country, the good-will, which are necessary adjuncts to successful business."

Mr. Kievenaar, who was formerly in the consular service, will remain in New York for six weeks, preparing his reports.

STOCK EXCHANGE – 1920

Like the Bank of the Manhattan Company, the great New York Stock Exchange of today grew naturally out of those splendid commercial and marine enterprises founded by old-time New Yorkers. In spirit and character the Stock Exchange is a logical descendant of the Tontine Coffee House, founded in 1792, which served as a gathering place for the early New York merchants. The Coffee House, indeed, was the first official quarters of the Associated Brokers. It was to the Coffee House that the capitalists of the day resorted in financing their mercantile and shipping projects. In that historic building were held the early Directors' meetings of the Bank of the Manhattan Company and plans laid that have their fruition in the rich and powerful Bank of today. For many years the Tontine Coffee House flourished as the principal business center of New York. It was the favored rendezvous for all the men of affairs of the time. And on its walls in 1804 were posted bulletins of Hamilton's fight for life after his fatal duel with Burr.

AGAIN— THE FEDERAL PROBLEM TABLE

There was a labyrinth of complications without precedent for guidance. Labor, materials, production cost, increased price and changing demands all contributed difficulties to the solution.

An invaluable good will of years' establishment was at stake, but the right course was found and charted in conference with the Federal Executives at the Federal Problem Table.

Federal is not a one-mind organization. The composite ability of Federal encompasses experience so wide that it sees the right detour when the old road is out of condition.

TOTAL MEAT STOCKS 5% LESS THAN 1919

BIG RISE IN BUTTER SUPPLY

Holdings Still 23,500,000 Pounds Under Year Ago—Big Danish Shipment Coming.

The Federal Bureau of Markets announced yesterday that the total stocks of meats in cold-storage warehouses and packing-house plants on Aug. 1 were 5 per cent. less than in 1919 and 1 per cent. less than in 1918, but cured meats and frozen pork showed large increases. Stocks of frozen pork and cured meats were 158,000,000 pounds as compared with 131,000,000 pounds last year and 91,500,000 pounds the year before.

"Frozen beef showed a decrease of 81,000,000 pounds under 1919 and nearly 103,000,000 pounds under 1918," the Bureau reports. "At the average rate of distribution for the calendar year, these meat stocks represent a 90 days' supply of all meats and a 103 days' supply of cured meats.

"There was practically no change in the lard stocks during the month of July. Although the production amounted to 95,000,000 pounds, the deliveries were the same amount. The stocks were almost double those of the preceding two years.

"The creamery butter holding increased from 52,500,000 pounds on July 1 to almost 100,000,000 pounds on Aug. 1, but they were still 23,500,000 pounds under last year's stocks.

"The cheese stocks amounted to about 69,750,000 pounds of which more than 51,000,000 pounds were American style cheese. This is 11 per cent. less than was held in 1919, but 23 per cent. more than on the same date in 1918.

"The 22,000,000 pounds of frozen poultry were 45 per cent. less than the 1919 stocks, but 18 per cent. more than were held in 1918. There was a decrease of nearly 5,250,000 pounds during the month."

More than 1,000,000 pounds of butter are now on the way to this country from Denmark, according to a cablegram received by the Bureau of Markets from the American Consul General at Copenhagen. The total shipments reported to the Bureau was 1,050,000 pounds, but some of this has arrived. Denmark has become an important source of supply for the American consumers and for the last several months shipments have constantly been received from that country.

KOREANS PRESENT PLEAS.

Tell Senator Harris and Representative Porter of Their Grievances.

PEKING, Aug. 20.—A group of Korean leaders conferred with Senator William J. Harris of Georgia and Representative Stephen B. Porter of Pennsylvania here today. They presented documents and oral statements concerning Korean grievances against Japanese rule in their country and urged assistance from the Americans.

The fact that the Japanese Legation warned the Americans of the prevalence of cholera in Korea failed to cause any change in the party's itinerary through Korea to Japan.

DR. KELMAN SAILS SEPT. 4.

Pastor and Wife Have Been Visiting Daughter in Japan.

The Rev. Dr. John Kelman, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, and Mrs. Kelman, will sail from Yokohama, Japan, for America, Sept. 4, on the Empress of Russia. They are due to arrive at Vancouver Sept. 13, and will come from their direct to New York. Dr. Kelman will be back in his pulpit Sunday, Oct. 3. The preacher the last three Sundays in September will be the Rev. Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, formerly of London, but now of Winona Lake, Ind.

Dr. and Mrs. Kelman have been spending the Summer with their only daughter at Koruiza, in the mountains of Japan. This daughter, who is the wife of the Rev. John Hayes, a missionary in Peking, has been in poor health for some months. Mrs. Kelman left here last Christmas Day for China and Dr. Kelman left the last of May, joining his wife and daughter's family in Japan.

It had been feared Mrs. Hayes would have to leave the mission field altogether, but she has so nearly recovered that she and her husband can resume their duties this Fall in Peking.

Dr. Kelman came here last November to succeed the Rev. Dr. John Henry Jowett, now in London.

PRICES SLIP BACK AS BUILDING FEELS PALL

Building material price reductions at the week-end forecast still greater complications of the construction situation next year, according to the current analysis of the Dow Service Daily Building Reports.

There is no worthy opinion among the building construction interests that does not earnestly hope for an early, permanent price readjustment downward for all building construction commodities. But price reductions when there is absolutely no change in the supply of materials at manufaturing points and with potential demand already absorbing all the available building material supply for the remainder of this year can have only one effect, the skyrocketing of prices, counter-bidding evils so far only tasted, delivery delays, premium baiting and snowballing of wages next year at least.

The real perspective of the latest turn of events in the leading distributing markets can be viewed from the two extremes of the industry, namely, the source of supply and the ultimate consumer. The present sag is in the mean that lies between these two extremes, namely, in the handling and transportation departments. Being palpably a temporary slump, the ultimate effect upon the building situation is all the more harmful.

New and second hand brick, wood lath, shingles and certain kinds of flooring represent the weakest sections in the price situation so far, but there are other departments that are likely to feel the effect of the waning market by reflection in price pruning at least for desirable business.

Expressed tersely, the falling off of new construction work has curtailed demand. Dealers, unlike those in other lines of commerce, are without stocks. Their storage sheds are literally bare. Deliveries are made to jobs direct from incoming cars and lighters and ships.

The goods seldom pass through the distributers' yards. But the dealers have not been able to get shipments from the manufacturers on orders placed a quarter to a half year ago, and to make sure of adequate supply when the building movement finally gets under way, they are ordering far in excess of their normal requirements, mostly without cancellation privilege.

The mere fact that deliveries have been hampered and retarded even worse than they were during the conscription of tracks for war needs, has effectually shut down construction projects so that new construction above Ninety-sixth Street is practically stopped, except for work that is being finished up. There is plenty of commercial building, in so far as materials delivery will permit and much alteration work, but mostly away from structures designed for dwelling purposes.

If the present tendency toward weakened market for basic materials and lower prices result from compulsory price cuts by holders who have a desire to dispose of excess products in an attempt to force a market for commodities or to stimulate building at a time when conditions are so adverse to construction work of all kinds it will not fill up dealers' yards when railroad embargoes continue to be declared, as in the case of some of the railroads terminating in New Jersey today, when lighterage is deferred, necessitating expensive trucking, any faster than the yards heretofore have been able to fill up.

General price cutting as a temporary expedient will have the immediate effect of closing down manufacturing plants. Under the existing credit curtailment the mills are being financed out of their own resources or from current sales. Let the sales stop and the mills will immediately cut off the operating overheads, make deliveries on back orders and await a more stable market before resuming.

Under such a condition, the building market of next year will be once more undersupplied with materials, just exactly as it is now undersupplied, and with construction work on a clearer path as far as finance and legislation are concerned, the present ragged condition of the building material price levels will be much more aggravated. Exhibits are at hand to show that this situation is already being molded.

The current report compiled by George M. Gifford, Secretary of the Bridge Builders and Structural Society, shows that during the month of July only 90,500 tons of fabricated steel were contracted for throughout the United States. This is equivalent to only 50 per cent. of the structural steel capacity. In this connection it is interesting to note that the railroad requirements are not yet in.

Hudson River common brick manufacturers, noting the trend of the market, are beginning to close for the year, six weeks ahead of time, with only $50,000,000 manufactured out of a normal production of 1,200,000,000.

They produced only 400,000,000 brick last year. Lime manufacturers are extending their plant capacities and are not able to ship fast enough to meet the current construction demand, much less to permit the dealers to store material. The cement plants are closed in many districts because they cannot ship.

Prospective builders will take brief comfort in any current sign of price curtailment. Those who have desirable business can probably obtain advantages in shading, for the market is unquestionably hungry, and while Legislatures and investigators ponder, it is getting hungrier, but commercial buyers, not home buyers, will reap the benefit.

Ordered, that the bankrupts, all creditors and other persons in interest be, and they hereby are, directed to show cause at said hearing why the said bid or proposal or such other bids or proposals as may be made should not be accepted and why such other order in respect to the property and assets of this estate or any part thereof should not be made, such as the Court may deem just, proper and equitable.

SHIP OFFICERS' WIVES MAY NOW GO TO SEA

Benson Rules That Women May Accompany Husbands In Merchant Marine Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—Admiral Benson, Chairman of the Shipping Board, tonight made public a letter to Captain Paul Foley, Director of Operations for the Board, stating that the privilege of permitting wives of officers of the merchant marine to accompany their husbands on voyages may now be extended to them in certain cases, after thorough investigation as to its advisability.

Admiral Benson's action was based on a memorandum submitted on Aug 13 by Captain Foley, transmitting a letter from a woman who desired to take passage in the ship of which her husband is master. Her letter, in part, follows:

"My husband, Captain ——, of the S. S. —— will sail next week for —— to load and then he will sail for ——, and I do so much want to go with him. When I tell you how I have been left alone for the past three years, I am sure you will give your consent for me to make just one trip. Please let him sign me on as one of the crew. I have my passport, and I will not be in the way. I do all of his book work and keep his accounts for him. I am an orphan, and I get so lonely on his runs to South America. Keeps him away some times for six months.

"After being away six months he is going to sail again after being in port a little over two weeks. In all the last three years he has only been home three months, up until last October he was in the U. S. navy. He is on inactive duty now. During the war I did not mind being left alone for I was busy with my war work, but now it seems like I can't be left alone any more.

"I am proud of my husband's war record, for his boat sank a submarine and he has a sword given him by the boys on his boat when he was put on inactive duty."

Captain Foley in submitting the question to the Shipping Board said:

"As conditions afloat tend more each month to stabilize themselves, the practice of private companies has tended strongly toward permitting the wives of masters to accompany their husbands in cases where the quarters of the ship permit, and where the records of the officer warrants such consideration.

"I have been repeatedly informed by ship masters of established reputation of offers made them by private companies involving high salaries with the privilege of carrying their wives at all times, and of a bonus in addition. Unless we extend equal inducement, I do not very well see how we can long continue to command the highest class personnel in our ships, which should be our natural aim and endeavor."

CHARGE EMBEZZLEMENT BY PIPE COMPANY HEAD

J. Fillmore Cox, President of $100,000 Concern, Arrested On Treasurers Complaint.

J. Fillmore Cox, President of the Cox Pipe Bending Company, a $100,000 corporation of Bayonne, was arrested late Saturday night on a warrant charging embezzlement. The warrant was sworn out by former Mayor Matthew P. Cronin, Treasurer of the pipe company, who alleged that Cox diverted to his personal account a check drawn for $1,747 by the Sun Shipbuilding Company of Philadelphia.

Cox was arraigned yesterday before Recorder William J. Cain and released in $3,000 bail for hearing on Sept. 2. At the time of the arrest, Cronin served his fellow-officer with an order issued by Vice Chancellor Stevenson directing Cox to turn over to Cronin his personal bank account at the Greenville Banking and Trust Company, Jersey City. A similar order was issued on application of the Lackhart Foundry Company of Newark, this order, however, also calling upon the officers of the Cox concern to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed for the corporation. Hearing on the receivership application will be held today.

The plant of the company occupies a half block along the Boulevard at Twenty-fifth Street. It has a weekly payroll of about $1,000. Last week the employes were not paid. Cox, who is the inventor of the pipe bending process used at the plant, has a fine home at 36 Edwards Court.

Cox issued a statement last night asserting that the charges against him were false, and that the condition of his company had been brought about by others. Stockholders, many of them residents of Bayonne, held a meeting and appointed a committee to investigate the company's financial status.

210-Pound Schoolboy Missing.

The Bureau of Missing Persons yesterday sent out a general alarm for Paul V. George, a 14-year-old schoolboy, of 1,133 Intervale Av., missing since Saturday morning, when he left his home after telling his mother he was going out "to see the sight." The boy weighs 21 po0unds, is 5 feet 7 inches tall and has blue eyes, brown hair and light complexion. He wore a green coat, blue trousers, a white outing shirt with soft collar, tan shoes and a peaked cap. His disappearance was reported by George Paul, his cousin, of the same address.

BACHE ASKS AID FOR SERBIA.

Quotes Kingsbury Report in Appeal to New York Business Men.

Following a report on conditions in Serbia by John A. Kingsbury, ex-Commissioner of Charities in this city, Jules S. Bache, a sponsor of the Serbian Child Welfare Association, 7 West Eighth Street, has issued a personal appeal to New York business men to increase their aid to Serbia's destitute.

Present day conditions in Serbia as disclosed by Mr. Kingsbury, who is Executive Chairman of the Serbian Child Welfare Association, indicate the urgent necessity for a renewal of activity on behalf of that stricken country. Mr. Bache's appeal said:

"Food in sufficient quantities to meet normal demands has reached Serbia. There is a satisfactory if not a plentiful crop, but the paramount need of Serbia today is clothing and medical aid. In order to furnish these essentials to a deserved rehabilitation it is urged that every trade in New York City redouble their efforts to realize the achievement of this worthy ambition for Serbia's salvation."

PACIFIC SHIP FARE RAISED.

Steamship Companies Advance Rate to Yokohama to $300.

The steamship companies on the Pacific coast have raised the first class fare from San Francisco, Seattle and Vancouver to Yokohama to $300, and no reduction on the round trip tickets. Previous to the war, in 1914, a first-class round-the-world ticket, via the Suez Canal and return by the Pacific, or vice versa, could be purchased for $625. At the present time it could not be obtained for less than $1,200 and would have to be purchased in sections. Prior to 1914 the school teachers could take a trip to Europe and back for $300, including hotel expenses, sightseeing and drives in the principal cities. It could not be made today, with the high ocean rates and hotel charges, for double that sum.

SPENCER QUITS COMMITTEE.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 22.—United States Senator Selden P. Spencer announced yesterday that he would resign as a member of the special Senate Committee appointed to investigate presidential campaign expenditures.

Mr. Spencer explained that, being a candidate for re-election, he would prefer being no longer a member of the committee, as the investigation might be extended into the expenditures of candidates during the primary election, and under these conditions his own expenditures would be subject to investigation.

Heads Methodist Education.

Bishop Thomas Nicholson announced yesterday that the Administrative Committee of the Methodist Boards of Benevolence had approved the appointment of Ralph E. Diffendorfer of this city as head of the Methodist Department of Education. Mr. Diffendorfer has had a prominent position with the Methodist Board of Home Missions and Church Extension for a long time. Recently he has been active in the Interchurch World Movement.

The New York Times:

It was a brilliant idea to combine the Book Review with the Magazine Section.

To see the faces of the writers, beautifully reproduced, as you read about their books makes such reading peculiarly easy and pleasant. This should prove of great value to the publishers.

BROOKLYN TUBE EXTENSIONS OPEN

FIVE MILES OF NEW TRACK

Trains Enter West Side Subway—Change at Nevins St. for East Side—Cost $14,500,000.

The Eastern Parkway and Nostrand Avenue extensions of the Interborough Rapid Transit system began running at 12:40 o'clock this morning, thus furnishing rapid transit facilities to a large section of Brooklyn not served heretofore. This section extends for approximately three-quarters of a mile outside the new routes, as well as the large triangle between President Street and Utica and Flatbush Avenues. These extensions, which complete the principal Brooklyn link of the Interborough system, consist of five and a half miles of a four-track subway. Of the fourteen stations on the extensions only eleven will be open today, because the others are not sufficiently near completion to make it safe to use them.

These eleven stations will be located at Flatbush, Nostrand, Kingston and Utica Avenues on the Eastern Parkway line, and on the Nostrand Avenue line at President Street, Sterling and Winthrop Streets, Church Avenue and Beverly Road and Newkirk and Flatbush Avenues. The route of the Eastern Parkway extension is from Atlantic to Utica Avenue, through Flatbush Avenue and Prospect Park Plaza, and thence easterly through Eastern Parkway. The route of the Nostrand Avenue extension begins at Nostrand Avenue of the Eastern Parkway line, and thence southerly through Nostrand Avenue to Flatbush Avenue. A schedule prepared by the Interborough provides for the starting of trains so that during the rush hours there will be trains west of Nostrand Avenue every two and a half minutes.

All of the trains will journey in Manhattan on the west side subway, so that passengers desiring to reach points on the east side of Manhattan will have to change at Nevins Street station, Brooklyn. There is an island platform at this station, so that passengers will only have to cross the platform to get from one line to the other.

All of the trains will enter Manhattan through the Clark Street tunnel and go northerly over the west side route, stopping at all the express stations. In describing the new extensions, the Interborough Company explained that a very large district in Brooklyn heretofore unprovided with adequate rapid transit will not only be in handy reach of the great shopping, theatre and hotel sections of Manhattan, but will also be able to reach any point in New York City quickly, conveniently and cheaply.

The Interborough's new routes will be largely fed by the various trolley lines of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system. How to reach the Interborough ticket boxes by using the B. R. T. surface system is thus pointed out:

The length of the line from Atlantic Avenue to Utica Avenue is 3.09 miles, and the running time is nine minutes; from Atlantic Avenue to the terminal at Nostrand and Flatbush Avenues (through Nostrand Avenue) is 4.67 miles, and the running time is fifteen minutes. From Atlantic Avenue to President Street, 2.14 miles, the running time is five and a half minutes. The cost to the city of the two extensions, includng the stations will be $14,500,000. Before the end of the year there will be an elevated extension of the route along Livena Avenue to the Brownsville district. The steel work of this extension has been completed.

WOUNDED WRITE HARDING.

Disabled Soldiers Ask His Views on Laws for Their Welfare.

Senator Warren G. Harding, Republican candidate for President, is requested in a public letter addressed to him by the National Disabled Soldiers' League, at 17 East Forty-first Street, to define his attitude concerning adequate legislation for the benefit of these soldiers and their dependents. The communication reminds Senator Harding that the Democratic candidate for President, Governor James M. Cox of Ohio, publicly promised his aid to the disabled men in his speech of acceptance on Aug. 7.

Declaring that no reply had been received to a request made through Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, for a pledge of assistance in the acceptance speech of the Republican candidate for President, the letter says:

"We now ask you pointblank the reason for your lack of interest and your refusal to make the requested pledge to America's disabled soldiers."

Four paragraphs from the acceptance speech of Governor Cox, relating to the subject of the welfare of the disabled men, were attached to the letter.

Brazilian Battleship Arrives.

The Brazilian battleship Minas Geraes arrived yesterday from Pernambuco and anchored off Ninety-sixth Street, North River. She saluted the United States flag passing by Fort Wadsworth and was answered by the battery on Governor's Island with twenty-one guns. The battleship, which was built at Fore River Works, Quincy, Mass., has come to New York for an overhauling of her machinery, and will go to the Navy Yard this week.

RUSSIAN SERVICE PEACEFUL.

In spite of the anti-American disturbance perpetrated by Bolsheviki a week ago at the morning service in the Holy Russian Orthodox Cathedral of St. Nicholas, in Ninety-seventh Street, east of Fifth Avenue, no police aid was requested for the services yesterday. There were no interruptions.

"We did not ask for protection from the police today," the Rev. A. Kukulevsky, a canon at the cathedral, said. "We don't think there will be any more trouble." The canon declared that about every two weeks a letter comes to the clergy from a Bolshevik. About three weeks ago a threatening letter was received marked with skull and crossbones.

In spite of the displeasure of the Bolsheviki at the use of English for the service the previous week, part of yesterday's worship was still conducted in English. The sermon, however, was in Russian. A prayer was offered in English "for the President of the United States and all others in authority." The preacher yesterday was Archbishop Alexander of North America and the Alentian Islands. He likewise was celebrant of the mass. Abbot Patrick was to have preached again, but he was taken ill and the Bishop took his place. He declared the unity of Russia must be preserved. He stated it could not be preserved by quarrels. He called on the Russian citizens of America to prove to the world that Russian civilization is going to conquer.

PLEA FOR RUSSIAN ORPHANS

Catherine Breshkovsky, "the Little Grandmother of the Russian Revolution," is now at work among the orphans in Russian Carpathia and has started an orphanage at Uzhorod, where she begs her friends in America to send clothing, paper, pencils, pens and ink, slates, maps, scissors, knives and other tools, playthings and instructive pictures.

"Clothes for children are indispensable," she writes, "Coarse and second-hand garments would do, for they are naked, and the Winter begins in November and in Autumn we have rain. We shall be very grateful for every donation to our naked and hungry, ignorant, but very capable, children." Any one may send donations to A. A. Beskida, Uzhorod, Karpato Russ, Czechoslovakia, or to Mrs. S. Eleanor Gregg, 3 Monadnock Street, Boston, Mass.
